

VARIETIES.

A Shm professor of Christianity does more harm than the most virulent infidel. At yet some persons are so self-deluded that they hope to get to heaven on a sham profession. Stupidity, hypocrisy, and presumption—an evil trinity—are apt to be found together.

Men talk patronizingly of "Christianizing the masses," whose heathenism, though sleek and shiny, is in the sight of God more pronounced than that of the vilest dwellers in the slum. There is nothing so hard as luxurious selfishness lacquered over by genteel phariseism.

An Austin boy came from school very much excited, and told his father that all human beings were descended from the ape, which made the old man so mad that he replied angrily: "That may be the case with you, but it ain't with me, I can tell you that now, my son." The boy didn't say anything, but when his mother came home he told her about it.

Mr. Walter Rye has published a History of Norfolk," says the London Truth. He gives some curious instances of fictitious Norman pedigrees. The Howards, it would seem, are descended from a hogward, whose business it was to mind hogs; the Townshends from one John atto Town's end who was a small tenant farmer in 1398; the Bulwer, from the bull-ward, as the man was called who looked after the manor bull.

What men usually say of misfortunes that they never come alone, may with equal truth be said of good fortune; nay, of other circumstances which gather around us in a harmonious way, whether it arise from a fatality or that man has the power of attracting to himself things that are mutually related.

"Why are two buttons put on the back of a man's coat?" asks a writer. They are put on for the same reason that about 250 buttons are put on the front of a woman's dress, and of course everybody knows why a lady's dress is thus garnished.—Norristown Herald.

In all the great affairs of State The thoughtful ones will find The sturdiest patriot is the man Who has an ax to grind.

Arnold speaks of "earning genuine manhood by steadily serving out the period of boyhood."

The body and the soul are so nearly related that they often catch each other's diseases.—Talmage.

Public spirited American citizens dislike a high tariff or they dislike free trade; the men who oppose the liquor traffic generally hate it, having directly or indirectly felt its sting. Hence the intensity that so astonishes many in the prohibition fight.

Several recent notable exhibitions of magnanimity and gentlemanly delicacy by men in official station in this country encourage the hope that we are on an up-grade in the morale of our public servants. There was, and is, room for farther progress.

STATE NEWS.
The Steamer Idaho was placed under $30,000 bonds at Seattle last week.

In the case brought in the circuit court by T. J. Beale against John Morgan, to recover as swamp land the south-east quarter of section 3, township 28 south, range 13 west, in this county, Judge Bean has decided in favor of Beale. In his decision the Judge says the defendant Morgan is not one of the class of persons who come within the provisions of section 19, page 48, of the laws of 1878, as he never was in possession of, or an actual settler upon the track of land in dispute in this action.—Coast Mail.

The citizens of Portland are intensely interested concerning the Chinese question, and they mean business. The gain that will accrue to Portland by the expulsion of these pesky, stinking heathens, from the very heart of that great city, can hardly be computed in dollars and cents. It will be a grand moral as well as economic revolution. As a sanitary measure its worth is inestimable. When these heathens are gone people will wonder how they ever allowed them to enter themselves and gain such a firm foothold.—Courier.

Several months ago the Democrat gave an account of how a man calling himself Whitney in Portland had certain certificates of deposit printed in Portland and then at Butte, Montana, Ogden, and other places tried to get money on certain bank paper. As a sequel to the above the same man was a short time ago arrested in Chicago, under the name of Hale. It now transpires that he was a partner of one of the most famous forgers of this century, and has himself had a checkered career, having served nearly ten years for previous forgeries. On his last expedition he, with his gang, it is reported, collected about fifty thousand dollars, presenting forged paper to banks all over the United States, many times being successful. Although he obtained no money from Oregon we are glad to know that he has at last been brought to justice.

HOW LAMP CHIMNEYS ARE MADE.
What Kind is the Best.

No kind of manufacturing is so interesting to many people as glass making, and it really deserves attention for the use of glass was universal, exceeded by no other article unless it be iron.

There are quite a variety of kinds of glass, and the composition has been very much changed during the past few years. For instance, we seldom get the good flint glassware formerly made. We may visit the stores in vain to find a dozen good flint goblets. Hence the frequent and easy breakage at which so many have wondered. This difference is explained by the use of what manufacturers call lime-glass (made of lime, soda-ash and sand) which make cheap and nice looking-glass, but it is the "easy break" kind. While real (or lead) glass made from potash, lead and sand, is much more durable, being a better conductor of heat and a very much tougher ware. It is somewhat more expensive but cheaper in the end to the consumer.

This is particularly true of lamp chimneys, and one reason there is so large a breakage of them (and a most annoying breakage it is) is that so many are made of Lime Glass, and so few comparatively of the real Flint Glass.

Many people think "glass is glass" and do not know what to buy or what kind of chimneys to call for. One thing can be depended upon, viz: that if no mention is made, and even then sometimes, the commonest kind of breakable Lime Glass chimney will be handed over the counter, and ten to one, by the time one gets comfortably seated to read, away goes the chimney.

There is one glass manufacturer in Pittsburgh, Pa., where the finest quality of glass is made, especially for Lamp Chimneys, and where their goods are known this firm have a very extended trade. The firm is Geo. A. McBeth & Co., proprietors of the Pittsburgh Lead Glass Works.

On a visit to their works about three hundred men are found busy as bees, making lamp chimneys at the rate of from 125,000 to 150,000 per week. Their process of manufacturing, and materials used, are both curious and interesting.

First, they use the pure white sand found in but few localities, which, when thoroughly washed and dried, is almost white as snow. Then the potash (purified) and the lead, in the form of oxide, perfectly pure, are added to the sand and thoroughly mixed until the batch resembles ordinary sugar in grain, but is quite red in color. It is now ready to go into the pots—twenty four in number, made of a peculiar kind of clay, being from 42 to 48 inches in height and about the same in width. These pots are closed at the top, to prevent the fire from injuring the melted glass, with the mouth on the side near the top. The furnace being circular, and covered with fire brick, present their open mouths only, and when looked at resembles a hot summer's sun.

When in this condition the pot is filled with the mixture above mentioned, closed tight, and in about twenty-four hours is about ready to work. A workman called a gatherer, dips his pipe into the melted mass and gathers enough on its end to make a chimney. This he rolls on a smooth iron plate to get evenly on end of pipe, when he blows it about the size of a boy's top, and hands it to another workman, who further blows it up, and proceeds to form the lower part of chimney, which fits the burners, which he does by forming a small knot on the end of the now pear-shaped bulb, giving it a sharp stroke with his shears breaks the knob off leaving a small hole in the bottom of the bulb. It is now heated red hot again and the lower end of the chimney formed by the blower whirling and spreading the glass with a tool resembling sheepshears, but larger and narrower blades. The chimney is now broken off the pipe and put into a "snap" an instrument which holds it as one would clutch an apple firmly in the hand, and heated red hot again.

The top is finished by machinery invented and owned by this firm, making it bell-shaped and beaded on the top, from which the chimney gets the name "Pearl Top," distinguishing them from the ordinary crimped or scalloped tops made of poor glass. This form has been closely imitated and it has been found necessary to affix a label and wrapper with special mention of the name. There is no process by which poor glass can be made good, and all "fancy" processes of "annealing" and "tempering" are lost from the first or second time the chimney is heated on the lamp.

The firm of Geo. A. McBeth & Co., make about one hundred and fifty different shaped chimneys, all of this fine quality glass, and as some are so shaped that the "Pearl Top" cannot be put on, each chimney is labeled with their trade mark.

Strangers visiting Pittsburgh would be well repaid by a trip through the extensive works of the firm, where all different lamp chimneys are the leading product yet they will find globes and a great variety of other appliances.

WORTHY Of Confidence.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a medicine that, during nearly 40 years, in all parts of the world, has proved its efficacy as the best blood purifier known to medical science.

SARSAPARILLA (extracted from the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla) is its base, and its powers are enhanced by the extracts of Yellow Dock and Sillington, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other potent ingredients.

IS your blood vitiated by derangements of the digestive and assimilatory functions? Is it tainted by Scrofula? or does it contain the poison of Mercury or Contagious Disease?

THE leading physicians of the United States, who know the composition of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, say that nothing else so good for the purification of the blood is within the range of pharmacy.

ONLY by the use of this remedy is it possible for a person who has corrupted blood to attain sound health and prevent transmission of the destructive taint to posterity.

THOROUGHLY effective renovation of the system must include not only the removal of corruption from the blood, but its enrichment and the strengthening of the vital organs.

RELIABLE witnesses, all over the world, testify that this work is better accomplished by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA than by any other remedy.

BLOOD that is corrupted through diseased liver, is made pure, and blood weakened through diminution of the red corpuscles is made strong, by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

PURIFYING the blood and building up the system require time in serious cases, but benefit will be derived from the use of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA more speedily than from anything else.

MEDICINE falsely claimed, is abundant in the market, and many of them, but the only preparation that has stood the test of time, and proved worthy of the world's confidence, is
