SAYS FOLKS ARE OVER-STOCKED WITH HUMOROUS MATTER.

Humorist Found on Almost Every Paper-The Work Done by a Local Funny Man-Twain, Cable, Nye, Riley and M. Quad Tired Out

"The humorous papers, as a class, don't hold the distinctive place they did a few years ago," said Robert J. Burdette, in a conversation at the Monongahela house the other afternoon.
"What I mean," he continued, "is that nearly every paper of any size in the country has discovered that it has one or wo men who write creditable humor.

They may not make a department of it, or the man may not be labeled a furny man, but you can see it cropping out all through the paper. You will find in the city department reports with touches of bright and original humor which would do credit to a professional. You will find it in the ditorial department and the paragraphs, and even in the head lines of the telegraph editor. Then, too, most papers have adopted a department of clipped humor. This effect has been produced on the daily and weekly newspapers by the humorous papers, and while it has brightened up the former considerably, it has, to some extent, hurt the humorous papers, as it furnishes about all that sort of matter that most people care to read," The conversation running upon the lec-ture platform, the humorist was asked if he had met the Bill Nye and Whitcomb

Riley combination. "No, I have not," he replied, "but I understand they are very successful. That rarely happens, when two lecturers travel together. I don't think it would be possible for two humorists to make a successful combination. The similarity would surfeit an audience.

"Now Mark Twain and Cable were two of the best combinations I ever knew. One could hardly conceive of two more opposite, in manner, taste, style, and every-thing else, than these two. Mr. Cable is a small, refined, scholarly man, very quiet, almost effeminate in look and manner, and At ROSEBURG, Shop on Main St.

The only man who can do that sort of thing, and do it well for so long a period, is C. B. Lewis, of The Detroit Free Press. Periodical Plagues of Mice. At intervals of a few years, the Brazilian colony of Lourenco suffers from a remarkable visitation of field mice, the lates of which, in 1876, has just been described Dr. H. Von Ihring. These creatures, ordinarily not numerous, appeared in enormous quantities, and in a few days destroyed the fields of corn, potatoes, clover, oats, barley, gourds, pumpkins, and even weeds, actually damaging houses to a considerable extent and ruining furniture and cloth-The periodical occurrences of these plagues seems to be due to the chief food supply of the mice, the seeds of the bamboo-grass, which at regular intervals of six to thirty years, matures over a large territory, and then disappears. The field mice increase so rapidly that, if all the conditions which keep them in check were removed, a single pair would bear a progeny of 23,000 individuals in a single namer, and every living thing upon the earth would be consumed in a half-dozen years .- Arkansaw Traveler. Acres for England's Laboring Classes. The question of allotment of ground to the laboring classes in England, and on which the Tory government was defeated has been solved in a very practical manner by Sir George Wombwell. On his esstates in Yorkshire, comprising 13,000 that order in Washington, and a comacres, nearly all the cottages in the important villages have three acres of grass let with them-some have more-and to every cottage is attached a cowhouse, piggery, and garden of good size adjoining the cottage. The rent of cottage and garden is £4 to £5, and for cowgate of three acres £6. The present system of allotments on this estate has been in existence more than fifty years, and the owner increases the number of these holdings at ever opportunity, as in practice they answer well .-San Francisco Chroniele.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, Nov. 23, 1886. Yesterday was the day of ex-President Arthur's funeral, and all of the Executive Departments were closed and the clerks had holiday. The United States Supreme Court adjourned from Friday until Tuesday for the same reason. All of the public buildings in Washington are draped in black for the dead ex President and flags are displayed at half mast. President Cleveland and Congress was represented by a committee of Senators and Repre-

Since the black draportes have been hung on the front portico of the White House, the President and Mrs. Cleveland take their carriage at the south entrance when they go out for a drive, and all the projected gayeties at the Executive Mansion will be postponed for the thirty days of mourning. Then the black bounting will be taken down and folded up and laid away to do service again at the death of the next high official or ex-official of the Government, and the gay social season will

The custom of shutting down on public work, and turning fifteen thousand employes loose whenever a President. ex-President, a Cabinet officer or ex-Cabinet officer happens to die, is a questionable way of showing respectito the distinguished dead. It is a pic-nic for the clerks and a time for congratulation and they would be glad to multiply by a hundred fold the occasions of public sorrow that give them a day off and out. There is no doubt that the custom would be more henored in the breach than in the observance, but it is one of those things that a long line of precedent has establisted and it would be difficult to decide where or with whose demise it should end. President Cleveland has been much displeased at efforts to get him to interfere in the new widely discussed Washington Police scandal. He does not feel, in the present condition of affairs, that he would be warranted in taking hold of the matter, although the time may come when he may be called upon to take some action. The President is deeply absorbed with the preparation of his message, and although he is subjected to some unavoidable interruptions, the approaches to him are closely guarded. The President's appointment of Mr. Fulton as Paymaster General of the Navy was very gratifying to naval officers and his appointment of Col, Moore as Surgeon General of the Army was received with satisfaction mong officers of the army. The regular Army officers who have been examining the militia of the States and Territories have reported commending the efficiency of the respective organizations. They think, however, that the armed militia of the country would be doubled if Congress would appropriate annually a much larger sum to be distributed among the States for improved arms and accontrements. In the latter case it is estimated that the militia would consist of 300,000 well drilled men, who could be called into active service at a noment's notice, and who would be almost as effective at the outset of war, as the regular Army. Many conventions and associations -more than ever before -want to come to Washington during the next year.
