The Roseburg correspondent to the daily Oregonian Dec. 31st, ultimo has this kind word for us:—"J. R. N. Bell's holiday edition of THE REVIEW is commented upon very highly by our citizens."

Although Salem boasts of a population of 5000 inhabitants there are not so many non-resident pupils attending all the public schools of that city as there are non-resident pupils in the public school of Roseburg.

The Paul Schlosser at Drain is decidedly able to fill all orders in the tin and hardware line equal to any other store in the county. Call on the gentleman at once and prove our assertion true. See his new ad this week.

We are glad to offer you our 42 Bro. Langell. We waited, we wanted to see what you could do in the journalistic line. You can get a point as well as a shoe. Even including your policies we say large success to you.

Last Tuesday evening at the Grange hall the Reform club met. A large and enthusiastic crowd was present. The speeches by Messrs Rapp, Benjamin and Schreiber were well spoken of. The literary exercises were good.

County Treasurer, D. S. West on the 28th of December last, sent to Salem the balance of our state tax amounting in the whole $5749.19 being $3015.58 less than last year. This speaks well for the management of our state affairs.

Mr. Hanson lately from Ohio is now in Cole's Valley thinking of starting a tile factory for drainage. This gentleman says that he has found clay in that section that is equal to any he has seen. We do hope this enterprise will succeed.

The Eugene Guard says the Presbyterian church of that city contemplates the publication of the life of its late pastor, Dr. E. R. Krum, in handsomely printed and bound volume. The work will be much sought after, as Dr. Geary was admired by all for his learning and goodness of heart, besides he was prominently identified with the early and subsequent history of Oregon. The book will be furnished all who desire it at a moderate cost.

FOR SALE.—Two beautiful lots for sale in the western part of Roseburg near the bridge, well located, fenced, and sidewalk on one side. Terms reasonable. Inquire at THE REVIEW office

THE LAST MOMENTS OF MRS. E. A. DEMOSS OF THE DE MOSS FAMILY MUSICIANS.

ROSEBURG, Ore., Tuesday, Dec. 28, 1886. The last advice of Mrs. E. A. DeMoss, wife of Prof. James DeMoss, to the family, while dying...

Papa! I can't stay with you much longer, you'll soon have to be alone, you'll have to do the best you can without me.

Minnie and Lizzie I can't be with you long, you must be moral and pious girls, remember your mother's example and never forget to pray, for you know I always pray.

Henry I am going to leave you soon, be honest, upright and religious and pray often and meet me.

George I'll soon leave you, be sure and be a good Christian, and pray often, and be an upright good man.

Well papa I want you to be a good religious man and promise to meet me in Heaven. Father—"Mother I will."

Mother—"Thank the Lord. May the Lord be with you all. Henry—Mother what do you want us to sing?"

Mother—"No 9 (Forever with the Lord.) "Shall we gather at the River," "Jesus Lover of my Soul." "We'll meet in the By and By," (solo by father.) Mother said, "This so nice, sing Darling May"—Solo by Minnie.

While Minnie was singing, father said, "Mother you'll soon be with the angels and with little May. Mother said "Yes, yes for I know that my Redeemer liveth," (Mey, the youngest daughter who died Oct. 6th.)

The family all joined in singing "Sweet By and By," and at the close of the last word the mother passed away without a struggle in the presence of W. L. Freeman M. D.

SISTER NELLE CHURCHILL, Elkhead, Ore., Dec. 25, 1886. A Precious Illustration.

In a recent discourse Rev. L. D. Driver, of East Portland, speaking of a virtuous course of life being open to all men, said: "But few can be rich and few will be wise, but all can be good and right. Col. Ingersoll, in the labor question, recently said: "Five men worked in a shoe store; each made 75 cents per day more than expenses. One spent his earnings with a respectable family in social converse with their pretty daughter; the other four in a saloon."

One saved up enough to buy a nice little home and got married. In two or three years more he could hire a horse and buggy and take his wife out riding. The other four went to saloon and passed resolutions that there was a conflict between labor and capital. This is a fair statement of principles involved even on a higher plane and runs thus: Col. Ingersoll and four others advocate temperance and morality; one of them practices what he teaches and Col. Ingersoll and the other three stultify themselves, get drunk and by a violation of their own teachings are self-condemned.

It is a process of time all five die, the one who by self denial and the conscientious practice of what he believed and taught, is qualified for the association of the pure and good spiritual home. Col. Ingersoll and the other three go to hell and pass resolutions that there is conflict between justice and grace."—Oregonian.

Cure for Piles. Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, issuing from the rectum, or a itching, after getting warm, is a common attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosnan's Pile remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address, The Dr. Bosnan Medicine Co., Piqua, O. Sold by Dr. S. Hamilton.

Dr. Guin's Improved Liver Pills. Removes constipation, prevents malaria, cures dyspepsia, and gives new life to the system. Only one for a dose. Free samples at W. S. Hamilton's.

CHRISTMAS CAROL.

Down the ages floats the echo of an anthem sweet and clear, Chanted by a host of angels, In the calm Judean air.

Of that glory and the rapture Of that loud, triumphant strain; Sweetest song e'er sent from Heaven; "Peace on earth, good will to men."

There is no minor in the carol, Sidest notes belong to earth, Bright and joy and peace and gladness, Shining hearts that drop beneath, Bearing weights of gloom and darkness, Mearless sadness, voiceless care, Bringing sunshine into shadows, Bringing hope to grim despair.

Of that heavenly benediction! Of the king of the nativity, Of the king of earth and heaven, Bless the peace that grandly lay, Bless the peace that came from Eden: Like a snowflake pure and white, Calming life's great stormy billows, Lighting up earth's blackest night.

High hymn, forever ringing, "Through the corridors" of years, Bringing peace that never ends, Drying sorrow's bitter tears, While the white robed angel choir Chant for joy that happy strain, May the saints unite in singing "Peace on earth, good will to men."

IN MEMORIAM. Died in Santa Rosa Cal., Dec. 15, 1886, Mrs. Olla Cannon, aged 27 years and 5 months.

Mrs. Olla Cannon was born in California July 23, 1859, when about 12 years old her parents moved to Douglas county Oregon, where in 1876 she was married to H. H. Churchill of Polk county Oregon, and in 84 they moved to California for her health where they have since resided. She leaves a husband and little girl, father, sister and three brothers to mourn her loss, she was a consistent member of the Baptist church and died in the hope of a blessed eternity. She is far happier than we, but 'tis sad to think we have gazed upon her dear face for the last time, that we shall never hear her dear voice and loving words again upon earth. She has gone to meet our loved one who has gone before her. May God in his loving mercy, prepare us to meet them with our blessed savior in heaven where there is no parting or shedding of tears.

Dearest sister, thou hast left us, And thy loss we deeply feel, But 'tis God that has bereft us, He can all our sorrows heal.

A COMMUNICATION.

DEAR EDITOR: I went by rail from San Diego to Los Angeles. The country for a hundred miles north of San Diego presents a dreary appearance being much broken and nude of trees with now and then a hedge garden, like an oasis in the desert, to relieve the monotony of an almost unintercepted view of barren hills and plains. In my former letter I did not mention the old town which is about four miles north of the new town of San Diego and is now called "North San Diego." It was, up to 1868 the county seat of San Diego County and the only place of importance in the county. It long since lost its prestige and now contains a population of 300, with post office, schoolhouse, hotel and Catholic church. Close by are the ruins of Gen. Stockton's fortifications, and three miles to the east is the old "Mission" over one hundred years old, and on its porch a mule and tourist are wont to sit and muse with the dust of a century about them of the characteristics of the people who worshipped there in whose bones have long ago crumbled into dust. The California Southern railroad passes close to the town and has a station there. For about fifty miles this road runs near the ocean beach and every few miles there is a station where a small town has sprung up by magic. It is claimed for each town by those interested, to have the best climate, the best bathing on the coast. Some of the towns are pleasantly situated with a grand view of the ocean, valleys and mountains. Residence lots in these towns are selling for fifty dollars and on. Now we come to Temecula canyon which is nearly twenty two miles long. The scenery in and around the canyon is picturesque. Lolly barren mountains on either side shaded with rocks of all sizes and shapes and piled one upon another is a scene long to be remembered. About three years ago here was the great railroad without which could not be repaired the road to build it. At one time there were grave doubts whether or not the railroad company would repair it. In places in the canyon after the washout there was not a vestige of the road left. After coming out of the mouth of the canyon the valley opens out wider and the country looks better, but there is no water at present and nothing can be raised without irrigation. Now we reach Riverside valley famous for fine oranges and other fruits. It is a decided change from the barren rocky country over which we have traveled. There are some beautiful oranges whose trees are laden with the delicious fruit, some green, others ripe, and the very air is perfumed. There is thrift on every hand. There are many beautiful homes with flower gardens. This valley is called the new Eden. Now we pass San Gabriel where there is an old adobe Mexican Church over one hundred years old. It is an ancient looking structure. Pasadena is the next town of importance. It is nine miles north east of Los Angeles, on the line of the San Gabriel valley railroad. It is said that San Gabriel valley, of which Pasadena is the capital, is in points of beauty and productivity the wonderland of the West. This valley is now covered with thousands of acres of rich vineyards and citrus groves. I am especially adapted to the growth of the vine-producing both the raisin and wild varieties of grapes. The orange, lemon, olive and several varieties of nuts are cultivated quite extensively. Most of the land in the valley has been divided into lots from five to thirty acres, five acres being considered as sufficient for one man to cultivate. The land is valued at prices ranging from $200 to $1000 per acre. This is direct communication by the San Gabriel valley R. R. with all through Northern and Eastern lines. Pasadena has a population of 4000 and over a $1000,000 has been invested in building improvements in the last year. It has three banks, two newspapers and all branches of trade and commerce are well represented. It has fine public and private schools, and churches of different denominations doing good work. It has fine hotels and public buildings of the finest structures of that class on the Pacific coast. The Raymond and it is a place in all its appointments. Now we arrive at Los Angeles, "The Angel City," but I failed to see any angles, that is, I saw no wings. The city of Los Angeles has a population of about 45000 and it is the great metropolis of Southern California. Its growth has been phenomenal, and no city in the state has enjoyed such unprecedented prosperity in so few years. It is situated on the line of the S. P. R. R. and is the center of a network of railways running to the various points of interest in Southern California. It contains many of the old adobes in a dilapidated condition which are eyesores to the city as fastagers seeing them are not at first favorably impressed with the city. The streets are crowded and there is business activity everywhere. There are many fine business blocks and elegant buildings with beautiful parks and private schools, electric lights, cable streets railways, several hotels, first class hotels with ample accommodations and the churches are strongly represented. There are many places of attractions in and around Los Angeles. There is fine surf bathing at Santa Monica and Long Beach which can be reached daily, and a short ride will take one up to the Sierra Madre, whose peaks reach skyward, where can be had all mountain sports. It is claimed that the climate of Los Angeles is as equable and salubrious as any where in Southern California. Its business and residence property is held at high prices, and its real estate boom continues unabated. Every few days visitors from the East by the hundreds arrive who are seeking a mild climate, this "Utopia of the West." The real estate men have purchased all the available locations along the coast and inland in Southern California and laid them out into town lots and extensively advertised their great attractions as health and pleasure resorts with a climate unequalled and a soil that will grow all the tropical fruits to perfection. The result of this is that there is a boom and estate all over Southern California and many fortunes have been made suddenly. Now as far as I have been able to observe Los Angeles is the only city south of San Francisco that has a sufficient land country to sustain a large city. The great drawback to this country is the want of rain and water for irrigation. In many localities no water can be obtained without enormous expense. In all towns of Southern California there is quite a sprinkling of Mexicans or greasers. In going by rail from Los Angeles to San Pedro I saw some fine vineyards and orange groves. In the afternoon I boarded the steamer for San Francisco. The next morning we reached the port to San Luis Obispo which town lay inland about fifteen miles. As the steamer had to lay there for several hours to take on freight an excursion was gotten up for the passengers to visit this old historic town. The brass-worn put up by Gen. Fremont and an old Mexican church with a cannon ball hole through it are still there and are objects of great interest. There is considerable grain raised around San Luis Obispo. About four o'clock P. M. we left this port and early next morning arrived at San Francisco in good spirits. Eastern capital is what is developing the resources of Southern California. After all old Utopia with its gleams and grand mountains, its verdant hills and fertile fields, its pure
