ROSEBURG REVIEW

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY, 4, 1887.

CENTRALIZATION.

That noble Roman Judge Thurman, speaks his mind on this important topic. The S. F. Examiner then writes an able editorial relating to the threatening danger that is now deprecated by the thinking men of all political parties. The Editor substantially talks as follows:

The recent address of Judge Thurman on the dangers of centralization is one much more likely to be carefully read at the present time than it would have been twenty years ago, when home rule in this country was lost sight of in the fury of sectional conflict. But of late this question has assumed a new form, from the fact that those who were formerly counted upon to defend the principles of local government have now, in many instances, abandoned the work and are now quite as strong advocates of the centralizing principle as their old time adversaries. In every session bills are introduced into Congress granting larger and larger powers to the Federal authority. The danger of having a strong centralized Government secured by depriving local governments of their former ascendency, is that in a large country like this it may frequently happen that a great section of the people will believe that they have not been fairly used, and consider that there is no means of relief short of separation from the Union. A French writer who has been recently traveling in this country asserts in a generation more the United States must inevitably be broken up into three or more seperate nationalities. He cannot believe that the people of the Pacific States will be contented while their interests are legislated upon by those dwelling on the east side of the Rocky mountains, where political supremacy rests; and if such a break occurs he thinks it doubtful if the American people would consent to another war; while a successful secession in the extreme West might and probably would be followed by the creation of a great central empire in the Mississippi valley.

Of course all this is highly speculative and imaginary. The next generation, nor twenty generations hence, will witness the dissolution of the republic. And those who think the people of this country will not fight again; if the occasion requires it, to preserve the Union, have conned the lesson of experience to but little purpose. Still centralization is a menacing evil. The tendency should be curbed. The real power of a republic lies in the people, and there it ought to rest. No democrat can look with indifference upon the undue development of Federal authority. Judge Thurman speaks the universal sentiment of his party when he points out the dangers of that insidious doctrine. While we are not concerned about the dangers of disunion, we are concerned about the dangers of centralization which the republican party has so persistently encouraged.

THE Drain Echo ought to know that "we fostered that railroad project for years past." What is it we have not done? Bro. Buick tells you plainly that this, with many other enterprises have been advocated in the Plaindealer for years. Now we are surprised at the Echo we hear from the Calapooia hills, bewailing our indifference to this important undertaking. Sincerely we do now say for the first time in our existence that we do favor the road from Drain to Scottsburg. However we never were opposed to it but we never heard of it until recently. We should like a railroad to Coos Bay, yet this Drain road it seems to us is necessary any way as a "feeder" if nothing more. No gentlemen, withhold your wrath for our direliction, save your dynamite to blast the bluffs on the Drain & Scottsburg railroad. Sic transit.

THE PEACEFUL SOUTH.

The Louisville Democrat presents these thoughts for the reflection of our republican friends who predicted all kinds of bad things in case the democracy gained power once more in this country: "The attitude of the solid south since the advent of the democratic administration of federal affairs can not fail to strike every reflecting mind in the northern and western states with satisfaction and admiration. Those who were apprehensive that the advent of the democratic party to power would be, as predicted and alleged by republican editors, orators and statesmen, the pretext or occasion of turbulent conduct throughout the solid south, must look on the peaceful and industrial flow of events in that section as some thing marvelous as well as something grand and glorious to behold. At the same time one can not help animadverting upon the wickedly false prophecies of the aforesaid republican leaders. It can not simply be said that they were mistaken. The contrast between what ensued naturally, and that which they predicted, is too great for them to have had any basis at all for their predictions."

JUDGE Deady has made a failure in sustaining his criticism upon Gov. Pennoyer's message. The papers have proven beyond a question that Deady has been very inconsistent, while the Gov. has been consistent. That reference by Judge Deady at the Unitarian Church in Portland the other evening to Pennoyer, was not in very good taste for a man of Deady's pretended erudition.

EXTRAVAGANCE.

EDITOR REVIEW: We are living in the age of wonders. We send officers to the legislature to enact laws to amend them for to better our condition but instead they make them worse. They promise economy, but they forget their promises the first day the legislature is in session, They introduced one bill to our disadvantage of $1200, the salaries of the Supreme Judges are high enough, $5.50 per day is a plenty. Work or play, rain or shine, Sundays and all, they want to give them $10 per day. A hand can be hired to maul rails 10 hours for $1, is this equal pay? Is that the way to do with our money? Now they have too much money in the treasury, so they don't have to work for it. They had better not give it to the Judges but pass a state bounty for coyote scalps of $10, and the bill that the Judges would get more than the voters is willing they shall have, would pay for $1200 worth of scalps, which would save the sheep of Oregon to the value of $438,000, counting sheep and lambs at $1 per head, and I think that many coyotes will destroy that many or more. I will close for this time, think of these things. G. W. GENGER.

Ratification Meeting.

The meeting at the M. E. church, last night, to ratify the action of the legislature in submitting the proposed prohibitory amendment to the people, was fairley attended. Speeches were made in favor of the amendment and temperance by Rev. J. W. Webb, and Senators Dimick, Siglin, Watts, and Lee. Great satisfaction was expressed by the speakers that the legislature had taken the action they did, and the determination to work for the passage of the amendment by the people was declared. The last speaker, besides Timothy Davenport from Silverton, was Mr. O' Malley, an Irish-republican-Catholic-prohibitionist from Kansas.—Salem Statesman.

THE rich men of the United States senate that will assemble March 4, are: Sherman, Beck, Allison, Chace, Cameron, Edmunds. Hale, Hiscock, Morrill, Plumb, Eustis, Gibson, Stockbridge, Palmer, Sawyer, Payne, Maxey, Kenna, McPherson, Jones, Brown, Evarts and Camden. The only men rated as in very moderate circumstances are Davis, Stewart, Ingalls, Cullom, Butler and Hampton.

M. G. WILKINS (Mat) has been appointed commissary of the penitentiary and takes charge of that position, with the rest of the new officers, this morning. Mr. Wilkins, has many friends in Lane county, and in fact all over the state He has been keeping a hotel for some time at Junction City. —Stateman. [This is a good appointment and pleases us amazingly. ED.]

A citizen, speaking yesterday with indignation about the Roberts affair, said: "Surely that man can have no political future." It is hardly wise to jump to this conclusion. Roberts may be elected United States senator. He has the qualifications of conduct and character.—Oregonian.

TEXAS elected John H. Reagan U. S. Senator, he receiving seventy-one votes, and Maxey forty-nine. Reagans election was then made unanimous. Reagan the new senator is a democrat, and has served several terms in congress.

UNITED STATES TREASURER JORDAN will resign shortly after the adjournment of congress to accept the presidency of a national bank. The national bank system is getting more popular as the years roll on.

THE committee exonerated J. H. Roberts of Coos from any blame what ever in regard to his improper proposals to the would-be lady clerks.

Pennoyer on Deady.

Gov. Pennoyer, being asked by a news reporter as to whether he had anything to say in answer to Judge Deady's stricture on his message, replied he believed it hardly worth while to say anything, as there was assumption only, instead of argument, in all that the judge had said. "If he had adduced proof from either State or Federal constitution that the Federal courts had right to nullify State laws; in regard to matters over which the State under the constitution has complete control, then I might have been called upon to answer him, but the judge, in the lecture, realy said nothing worthy of an answer. To be sure, he termed me 'cranky,' but in regard to polities the Judge is more entitled to that term than myself. A crank turns, and the Judge has turned his coat in politics while I never have. When I first came to Oregon we both stood shoulder to shoulder as State's Rights Democrats, and if I am correctly informed the Judge is the author of Section 8,. Article 15, of the State constitution, forbidding Chinamen from holding real estate in Oregon. No I think I have no reply to make to the Judge's strictures, as there is nothing in them really worth noticing.—News

The editor of the Oregonian affects to see in Governor Pennoyer's message a great deal of heresy and absurdity cropping out, and bastinades him accordingly. However, as often as Scott comes up to any of the Governor's propositions, he has to admit their opositeness; for instance, the Governor arraigns Senator Dolph for his ready acquiescence to the behests of the corporations, in the matter of an unsuitable bridge across the Willamette in Portland. For this on Thursday, the Governor is berated soundly; but on Friday Scott comes into possession of the Senate Bill, introduced by Dolph and concludes along with the Governor, that it isn't just the thing. His recantation doesn't include an apology to the Governor, but it ought to. Scott will find out if he lives long enough, Governor Pennoyer always speaks by the card. If he is eccentric, it is the kind of eccentricity the people admire, inasmuch as he is always on the side of the people. —Vidette.

THE effort being made by interested parties for the retention of Dr. Josephi as superintendent of the insane asylum, together with his coterie of republican assistants and subordinates, will no doubt fail. The former board of asylum managers never filled but one position with a democrat, and it would be well to follow that precedent. Julius Stratton, clerk of the supreme court, should also be relived as promptly as was P. H. D' Arcy when Judges Watson, Waldo and Lord assumed the ermine. Mugwumpery should be kept away below par in Oregon.—Dem. Times.

THE esteemed Oregonian 'and the esteemed News are fighting each other like our highly valued friends, the cats and dogs. The one blandly refers to the other as the "bogus" journal, to which the other responds with epithets of "snide" journal and "morning mossback." Gentleman, we wish you every success. These journalistic amenities are most pleasing and refreshing. They give a zest of originality to your columns. "Lay on, McDuff."—Evening Democrat.

JUDGE GRESHAM, who was so promptly nominated by certain persons for the presidency when he rendered his decision in the case of the Wabash receivership, says he has no aspirations in that direction. This is good for the Judge. It is a great reflection upon the rest of the judiciary when one honest decision is made the platform for a man to stand upon in running for the presidency. It is an unjust reflection, and is so broad as almost to cast a shadow upon Judge GRESHAM himself.

HON. JAMES G. BLAINE will speak in Detroit February 22, on the occasion of the celebration of Washington's birthday by the Detroit Republican club. The statement that Mr. Blaine will make a European trip is denied. He will, however, make an extended western trip. It is not improbable that he will visit Oregon. The appearance of President Cleveland and Blaine on this coast next summer seems to be on the programme.

GOVERNOR PENNOYER will have his hands full if he succeeds in breaking up the swamp land ring of this state. This ring has been most active in the state in villifying and slandering all whom it could not control in its interests, and there seems now to be some hope that it will be brought to the bar of justice and fully exposed to an out raged people.

By our dispatches to-day you will see that Mr. Blaine is pushing his candidacy. The democrats of these United States, joined by many republicans said we do not want Mr. Blaine for President, and they will say it louder next time, even in tones not to be mis understood.

HAPPENINGS AT THE STATE CAPITOL.

THE WHISKY RING.

When it was suggested in this correspondence two weeks ago that the whisky ring would make its "usual dirty fight" against anything which threatened interference with its interests, I was taken to task by a well known wholesale dealer who protested that "the trade" had no wish to interfere with the course of legislation. An interesting fact in connection with this matter came to light to-day. The prohibitory resolution passed the house on Thursday and shortly after the following note came to the clerk's desk:

Mr.——: The constitution requires a spicial and peculiar kind of entry on constitutional amendments, if you will send me that on prohibition (that is, Benjamin's motion,) and the vote on the adoption of the resolution, I will prepare the journal entry for you, as I am now idle.——

Nothing could be more transparent than this. The writer wished not so much to "prepare" as to "fix" the journal. If not, why this polite attention in the matter of the prohibitory resolution only? Two other similar resolutions relative to other matters passed at the same time. but no offer was made to prepare that part of the journal relating to them. It is a subject of speculation on part of the gentleman to whom this proposition was addressed, and his fellow clerks, whether he was assumed to be a knave or a fool. It is to be regretted that he will not permit the publication of the name of his correspondent, who of course has been hired by the whisky ring to mutilate the record. It may be assumed from this incident that no means, however foul, will be spared to nullify the action of the legislature respecting the liquor traffic. Those especially interested in the temperance legislation should be on their guard and see to it that the records are fairly made.

THE GRANTS PASS CHARTER.

The contest over the Grants Pass charter is making a deal of confusion among the members, and the division is not so much upon the facts as upon the personal good will either for Riddle, on the one hand, or Miller on the other. The proposed charter gives the city council the authority "to supply the inhabitants with pure water for domestic purposes, and for other legitimate beneficial uses, and for this purpose may extend its works and own property beyond the limits of the incorporation but for this purpose it shall not have power to create a bonded indebtedness to exceed $40,000."

The council is also given authority "to make laws for the encouragement of manufactories, and for this purpose may exempt them from municial taxation."

Those who oppose the charter claim that the privilige of creating a bonded indebtedness for water-works is simply a means by which Miller proposes to supply water power to his mill at the expense of others, and that the further provision is a means by which he proposes to escape the payment of local taxes. They claim further that the creation of a city government, with city taxation, will amount practically to confiscation of their property

On the other hand Miller claims that their taxes will be trifling, and that they are fighting this charter because they have a scheme to build private water-works. From what I can learn I believe that if the bill passes it will be with the clause giving the council outority to issue water bond, stricken out.—Al. Holman in Oregonian.

STORM-BOUND LEGISLATORS, 41 IN NUMBER.

The Stay at Yaquina is Prolonged by Several Slides on the Oregon Pacific.

The following telegrams from the Statesman's representative with the legislative excursion will explain the present situation:

YAQUINA CITY, Jan. 31, 7 a. m.—There are several slides in the mountains between here and Corvallis. We will start over this morning. If we get through we will go to Salem on the Bentley to-night. All here

LATER.

YAQUINA CITY, Jan. 31, 8 p. m.—The legislative party did not get away from here today. There were several slides this morning, but the company put 300 men at work to-day and now the road is clear to the summit. The train leaves here at six o'clock to-morrow morning. We will probably reach Corvallis by the middle of the afternoon. The party will then be taken to Salem on the Bentley, which is held at Corvallis for that purpose. Speaker Gregg started through to Albany on a velocipede this morning. He will probably reach home on the Albany express tomorrow morning.

The company is putting forth every endeavor to get the road open through. The weather is very stormy. The steamer has been delayed since Thursday. There has been a heavy sea on the bar for over a week. The storm is reported general along the coast.

STILL LATER.

CORVALLIS, Feb. 1.—The legislative party left Yaquina City at half past five o'clock this morning. They arrived at tunnel No. 2 at half past 11, and walked a mile and a half. They then proceeded on their way for eleven miles in a box car. They then walked seven miles to near Philomath, where the bridge is washed out, and then proceeded by train to Corvallis, arriving at 7 p. m. for supper. We go on board the steamer Bently here, and proceed to Albany to-night. We will probably lay there to-night, and proceed to Salem early to-morrow morning by boat. We encountered from three to ten inches of snow all the way over. The members of the party are all in good health, and jolly, but suffering considerable fatigue. There will be a quorum in the house to-morrow. Speaker Gregg beat the party to Corvallis three hours. The Oregon Pacific railroad company is treating the party finely, using all possible means to get it to Salem.
