ISSUED FRIDAY MORNINGS... THE REVIEW PUBLISHING CO. J. R. N. BELL, - - Editor FRIDAY, AUGUST 31, 1888.

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT, GROVER CLEVELAND, Of New York. FOR VICE-PRESIDENT, ALLEN G. THURMAN, Of Ohio. FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS, W. H. EFFINGER, W. R. BILYEU, E. R. SKIPWORTH.

TARIFF REFORM.

The Editor of the Press, who manages the Tariff department, evidently takes an occasional holiday, else how do we account for the following most atrocious statement of the worth of American labor contained in its issue of July 17th.

"The paper mill at Schuylerville employs 37 men, at the average yearly wages of $395, and produces 11,000 tons of paper daily, or an average daily production for each laborer of 293 tons, making the average laborer a ton of paper at that mill $3.25."

"The average yearly production of paper per capita in the English mills is $13.46. In other words, paper is made at Schuylerville at a cost for labor of $4.59 less per ton than the labor cost of manufacturing in England."

"The campaign which we are about to enter will concern more than any other, the manufacturers of this country."

"We have talked so long about 'protection of American labor' that a good honest people no doubt believe that the tariff does help wages."

"The above on our esteemed contemporary evinces a case of growing hysteria. The fact is the gentleman now astride the editorial tripod of the Review has been continually during the last eight or ten months pouring out hints of mismanagement of county affairs, etc., until we should suppose something in the nature of facts ought to materialize by this time."

"The Star reporter asked Mr. Gray if the statement credited to Mr. Miller was correctly reported in yesterday's Star."

"In connection with the high wages theory the following is interesting: When the salt lobbyists are at Washington pleading with Congress to protect them, they profess a profound interest in their workmen, to whom, it might be supposed, they were paying the most liberal wages."

WHAT PROTECTION TAKES FROM THE PEOPLE

The national issue between the two great political parties in the coming presidential contest is a high protective tariff advocated by Republicans for the benefit of corporations under the pretext of protecting the laborer, but being careful that he don't get any more than a living.

The Democratic policy is to take no more money from the masses of the people than will be required to meet the actual expenses of the government. The Republicans want cheap whisky and tobacco. The Democrats want cheap clothing and blankets.

This remark confirms what the "theorists" have been saying. There is no intelligent effort on the part of Congress to frame these laws in the interest of the public.

"The Democrats, when in power seldom or never appoint a Republican to an office of public trust. There is no law compelling them to do so, and it is against their political principles to see a Republican in office when the same can be filled by a Democrat."

"The Woolly Horse did not win in 1856, and the Woolly Sheep will not win in 1888. Wool was played out as a political issue in 1876, when the country elected Samuel J. Tilden to the Presidency."

FREE THINKER.

The following from the Oregonian shows a good deal of the old Adam that still remains in all of us.

An Oregon democratic paper says: "In 1820, after an existence of thirty-two years, the federal party went to pieces; in 1856, the whig party, having existed thirty-two years, died also, and the republican party was formed by the free-soil democrats, whigs, abolitionists and know-nothings. The republican party has reached the age of thirty-two years and it shows signs of dissolution, but the democratic party, though a century old, is still hearty and full of fight."

"The Democrats, when in power seldom or never appoint a Republican to an office of public trust. There is no law compelling them to do so, and it is against their political principles to see a Republican in office when the same can be filled by a Democrat."

WHEN GROVER TOOK A TURN AT THE BRITISH LION'S TAIL

When Grover took a turn at the British lion's tail a howl went clear around the globe. Mr. Blaine's efforts haven't provoked a white even.
