PERSONAL MENTION.

J. I. Chapman of Wilbur, spent Tuesday in our city. S. C. Flint was in Roseburg to stay, and to visit the trip.

Mr. Hughes the celebrated prohibition lecturer was in Roseburg Tuesday. Sheriff Agee's cousin from Arkansas, and enroute to Tacoma with a car load of fine work cattle, stopped over in this city yesterday to rest and visit with his relatives.

Ex Senator Slater is much worse at his home in LaGrande, and is not expected to live. The state will lose a valuable man in Mr. Slater, and the Democracy one its best exponents.

Miss Nettie Hawn having been offered a more lucrative position in Portland than the one she held at the poor farm has resigned, we learn that she is a faithful worker and trustworthy in her position. She has her mother and the family to support, hence the reason of the change. Mr. Booth regrets the necessity of her resignation.

"A Converted Gambler." Mason Long the "converted gambler," will speak at the Baptist church to night. We do not approve of this method of advertising sin.

It is better for a man to live righteously from his "youth up." A "converted gambler" is no greater work to advertise than a converted liar, or a converted prostitute, or a converted sinner of any ordinary type.

The great conversion recorded in the Bible was St. Paul, and he was no "gambler" but an upright gentleman in every sense of the word, humanly speaking. Gambling is a very bad practice, but advertising it, does more harm than the gambling itself. A proper advertisement would be, "There will be preaching at the Baptist church this evening by Rev. Mr. Long."

Again, whenever the Devil's works will draw more largely than the works of God, then our state of society is quite morbid. If to draw a crowd, one must advertise that he has been in the service of his satanic majesty, in preference to saying that he has studied deeply in the schools and colleges of our land, and in the reading of the Holy Scriptures, and the sciences, then indeed society is in a deplorable plight, and the vitiated taste of the public would become evident. There are lots of "converted gamblers" around town, but some of them at least are ashamed to let people know that they ever did gamble at all.

Water Works. Several of our citizens met at the court house Monday evening to consider the question of water works for the city. The meeting was called to order by W. F. Benjamin, and J. C. Fullerton was chosen to act as Chairman and G. A. Taylor secretary.

After discussing the question for some time it was decided that the city is unable at present to construct a suitable system of water works and that they are only to be secured by forming a corporation or a joint stock company for that purpose. A committee of five was appointed to investigate the subject and report at their earliest convenience. The members of the committee are T. R. Sheridan, D. S. K. Buick, W. S. Hamilton, O. L. Willis and W. F. Benjamin. Now let us all give such encouragement to this committee as will ensure the construction of this much needed enterprise. Water works or drouth, which?

Later: The water committee met last night and incorporated with a capital stock of $20,000. The articles were signed by O. L. Willis, T. R. Sheridan, W. S. Hamilton and Buick and Benjamin. The committee will solicit stock right away, so let everybody add 10 percent to their property by making the water works a success.

DEAR SIR: As I am needing whatever is coming to me very much, and as I have waited on you long and patiently, I again take the liberty to inform you that your account with me is $..... and ask you to settle the same as soon as possible.

Unless you comply with this request within the next Thirty Days, I will not only place this account in the hands of my lawyer for forced collection but will publish your name on my black list besides.

Fortranee has ceased to be a virtue, and I will tolerate no more delays. Hoping that this note is sufficient to remind you of your duty, and will avert further proceedings, I am Yours Truly, Srv.

The above is pretty tough, and is the form of notice of a certain newspaper in Southern Oregon sent to delinquent subscribers. We are happy to state that THE REVIEW does business the other way.

"I have used St. Patrick's Pills," says Mr. J. Reynolds, of Mayfield, Ky., "and pronounce them superior to any I have ever before used. I do not hesitate to recommend them, knowing them to be reliable." They are thorough, yet gentle in their action and leave the system in splendid condition. As a cathartic, or for disorders of the liver, St. Patrick's Pills have no equal. For sale by A. C. MARSTERS.

THE INAUGURATION.

President Harrison Takes the Oath of Office. A MIGHTY CROWD IN ATTENDANCE. The Inaugural Address a Document of Hope and Patriotism.

The Procession Marches in a Beating Rain.—In the Senate Chamber. WASHINGTON, March 4.—With simple solemn ceremony, in the presence of all the windows and authoritatively embodied in the coordinate branches of the government, and surrounded by representatives of all the great nations on the face of the globe, Benjamin Harrison was today inducted into the highest office within the gift of the American people.

Never was such a crowd in Washington before. It is estimated that half a million strangers camped in the city last night, filling every inch of hotel and boarding house accommodation, and drawing to the full limit on private hospitality. Even then many were forced to sleep on floors, and some on billiard tables. Even the welcome recess of an occasional bathtub was not despised.

IN A BEATING RAIN. THE MARCH FROM THE WHITE HOUSE TO THE CAPITOL. WASHINGTON, March 4.—Mr. Harrison, accompanied by the inauguration committee, was taken in a close carriage, drawn by four horses, to the White House, about half past 10 o'clock. Rain was pouring down in torrents and drove many of the streets, and made sorry work of the decorations.

Arriving at the White House, Harrison was received by Cleveland and his cabinet in the blue parlor, where they were soon joined by Morton. At 12 o'clock, Cleveland, Harrison and Morton took carriages for the capitol. The first carriage, an open landau, contained Cleveland, Harrison, Hoar and Cockrell; the second, Morton and Cullom. Mrs. Cleveland witnessed the departure from the window.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS. At 12:45 the president-elect reached the platform, and after taking the oath of office, read his inaugural address, as follows: There is no constitutional or legal requirement that the president shall take the oath of office in the presence of the people. But there is so manifest an appropriateness in the public induction into office of the chief executive officer of the nation, that from the beginning of the government the people to whose service the official oath consecrates the officer, have been called to witness the solemn ceremonial. The oath taken in the presence of the people becomes a mutual covenant.

PRESENT CONDITION OF THE NATION. Our growth has not been limited to territory, population and aggregate wealth, marvelous as it has been in each of these directions. The masses of our people are better fed, clothed and housed than their fathers were. The facilities for popular education have been vastly enlarged and more generally diffused. The virtues of courage and patriotism have given recent proof of their continued presence and increasing power in the hearts and over the lives of our people. The influences of religion have been multiplied and strengthened. The sweet offices of charity have greatly increased, and the virtue of temperance is held in higher estimation. We have not attained an ideal condition; not all of our people are happy and prosperous, not all of them virtuous and law abiding; but, on the whole, the opportunities offered to the industrious to secure the comforts of life are better than elsewhere and largely better than they were two years ago. The surrender of a large measure of the sovereignty to the general government affected by the adoption of the constitution was not accomplished until the suggestions of reason were strongly reinforced by the more imperative voice of experience.

CORPORATIONS CAUSE MOB VIOLENCE. If our great corporations would more scrupulously observe their legal limitations and duties they would have less cause to complain of unlawful limitations of their rights for violent interference with their operations. A community that by concert, open or secret, among its citizens, denies to a portion of its members their rights under the law has severed the only safe bond of social order and prosperity.

NATURALIZATION LAWS. Our naturalization laws should be so amended as to make the inquiry into the character and good dispositions of persons applying for citizenship more careful and searching. Our existing laws have been in their administration unimpressive and often unintelligible in form. We accept a man as a citizen without any knowledge of his fitness, and he assumes the duties of a citizen without any knowledge as to what they are.

THE CIVIL SERVICE. The duty devolved by law upon the president to nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate to appoint, all public officers whose appointment is not otherwise provided for in the constitution, or by act of congress, has become very burdensome, and its wise and efficient discharge full of difficulty. The civil service is so large that personal knowledge of any large number of applicants is impossible. The president must rely upon the representation of others, and these are often made inconsistently and without any just sense of responsibility. I have a right, I think, to insist that those who volunteer, or are invited to give advice as to appointments should exercise consideration and fidelity. A high sense of duty and an ambition to improve the service should characterize all public officers.

THE SURPLUS. While the treasury surplus is not the great evil, it is a serious evil. Our revenue should be ample to meet the ordinary annual demands upon our treasury, with a sufficient margin for those extraordinary but scarcely less imperative demands which arise now and then. Expenditure should always be made with economy and only upon Public necessity.

IN CONCLUSION. Let us exalt patriotism and moderate our party contentions. Let those who would die for the flag on the field of battle give glory to their patriotism and higher glory to their country by promoting fraternity and justice. Party success achieved by unfair methods or by practices that partake of revolution is hurtful and evanescent even from a party standpoint. We should hold our differing opinions in mutual respect, and having submitted them to the arbitration of the ballot, should accept an adverse judgment with the same respect we should demand of our opponents if the decision had been in our favor.

PACIFIC COAST RAINFALL.

Signal Service Report for the Month of February, 1889. Few storms appeared on the Pacific Coast during the month and these were as a rule of short duration, and were accompanied by light precipitation. Rain fell in Oregon and Washington on the 7th, 13th, 15th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 23d, and 27th; in California on the 6th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 23d, 24th and 25th. The mean temperature was higher than the average February temperature, the departure from the normal being about 6° for stations in Oregon and Washington, and about 3° for those in California. The mean monthly temperature at selected stations was as follows: Portland 44°, Roseburg 45°, Red Bluff 52°, Sacramento 50°, San Francisco 52°, Fresno 50°, Los Angeles 53° and San Diego 55°. The rainfall was markedly below the normal February rainfall in all districts. At all stations in Western Oregon and Washington the rainfall was less than that for any February since the commencement of observations. The rainfall though light was well distributed, both as regards the territory covered and in time, thus securing the maximum benefit to growing crops.

The following table shows for selected stations the rainfall for the month and for the season to March 1st.

Table with columns: Stations, Normal for Feb., Total for Feb., Avg. for Season, and Total for year to date. Rows include Olympia, Wash; Spokane Falls; Walla Walla; Portland, Or.; Roseburg; Winnemucca Nev.; Red Bluff Cal.; Sacramento; San Francisco; San Jose; Santa Cruz; Fresno; Los Angeles; San Diego; Yuma A.
