THANKSGIVING DAY.

Observance in the City-Family Re-unions-Religious Ob-

From Friday's Daily Yesterday was a bright and spring-like day. The air was balmy, and very many of our citizens spent the afternoon on their porches enjoying the sunshine. It was like nearing from another world to read in the dispatches of blizzards and show storms in the east, and it could hardly be realized that such a distance would make the difference in climate. But the fact remained A brighter, more enjoyable day was rarely ever enjoyed in this latitude in November, and was such as reminded one of the early days of spring. In very many instances family reunions were had, where all had not met for many ong years. This beautiful New England custom is worthy of being followed by others. There should be one day in the iong year when brother should greet brother, sister sister, and all these should congregate around the family board to evidence their affection for parents. New England has given us our religious observations and than the annual meeting of families on Thanksgiving day. During the afternoon all business houses were closed, and the city had the appearance of a religious hotiday. The beach was crowded with an eager throng of men, who passed the time in shooting at turkeys, geese and ducks. This was fine sport, but we understand that some of these birds cost our shootists from $6 to $8 a piece. The un was worth the amount of money paid, and the birds were thrown in. In the evening the Catholic fair attracted the usual crowd, and all seemed to enjoy the occasion. The programme was a most entertaining one, and all present seemed to amuse themselves looking at the articles on At the old armory, the Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational church gave an en-tertainment, which has rarely been equalled, and never excelled. The opening chorus b ladies—Nanoa—was excellently rendered and had the effect to arouse the enthusiass of the people. This was followed by reading by Miss Towles, in her own unex

More Successful Every Day, From Friday's Daily. Cur friends will hardly say that we not try, as nearly as possible, to keep our well rendered selections. Miss C. Mesphe. in excellent voice, sang a beautiful song, and was loudly applauded. Messrs. Lawlor brought the house down by their comic songs and recitations, and were not allowed to retire until they had given several others. On Wednesday the phonograph was in ously if not fatally injured by a team of mired. A clarionet and cornet solo was played into the phonograph by Messrs Tully and Benton, and several bugle calls but the operator not being in good health could not give an exhibition last night, but hopes for his own and friends' sake to give a free exhibition this evening. Terpsichore tainly enjoyed. The Mikado band, assisted by Messrs. Tully, Benton and Gottfried and perhaps others, furnished excellent ing music, and the fifty cents charge for the bon mots and admission made the numbers of the dance select, and created comfort, This was the object of the charge. Thanksgiving day is over, the fair dining room is closed—which people will regret— but the fair itself will continue until Saturday night. This was found necessary in order to dispose of the many artices. Raffling is getting to be a serious matter, and we must commence to look for our share. we must commence to look for our share. East Oregonian: Some sneak thief catered a building in the lower end of town, used as a store-room by J. H. Keables, and stole a quantity of fruit and preserves, two cases of machine oil, and other articles. The fruit had been put up by Mrs. Keables for the winter's use, and the thief did not possess liberality enough in his make-up to leave a single jar, but stole it all. It may be high-toued enough to walk away with a cool million or two, but a brute who will steal provisions from a family who is illy able to bear the loss, would rob his grandmother of the gold rims of her spectacles or sand-bag a man for a four-bit piece. It is a specimen of arrant cussedness which should subject the thief to a long term in the pen if discovered.

On Friday afternoon Rolla Fogg, a young man, almost a boy, was brought before Justice Taylor on a charge of petty larceny, and being convicted, was fined $50 and costs. He was rent to jail. This young fellow is an example of base ingratitude. He came to the city about a week since destitute, half clad and hungry. On applying to the Western Hotel, he was taken in from motives of charity, and given food and shelter. On Sunday, while the people in the house were at dinner, Fogg sneaked into a family bedroom in the house and stole $20. When the coin was missed a number of people were suspected, among them A man of wealth named Phineas Fogg laid a wager of £50,000 in a London club house that he would travel round the world in eighty days. He made the trail to the suspected among them a lady who was staying at the hotel. When young Fogg heard of the suspicion against her he immediately asserted his belieft in house that he would travel round the world in eighty days. He made the trip world in eighty days. Doles of fish are very numerous, and with particulars of a few examples we close our paper. John Thake, in his will. drawn up in 1537, left his house and land on condition that his heirs, annually on Friday, in the first week in Lent, gave to the poor of Clavering, in Essez, one barrel of white herrings and a cade of red herrings. At Dronfield, Derbyshire, in 1577, Richard Stevenson left half a hundred of herrings, and as much bread as could be made from a "strike" of good wheat. The doles were to be distributed every Friday during Lent forever. At Farnham Royal, Buckinghamshire, in 1664, David Slater gave money to pur-chase bread and herrings and a pair of kid gloves annually for the parson of the parish for the time being. The gloves were to be purchased ready for the first

Dr. Pinel, of Paris, is said to have succeeded in hypnotizing several subjects by means of the phonograph. All the commands given through this channel were, he declares, as readily obeyed as those which he uttered directly, and "suggestions" of every possible sort were as effectually communicated through the medium of the machine as if made viva voce. The conclusion which he deduces from his experiments is that the received theory of a magnetic current passng from the operator to the subject is entirely baseless, and that the real cause of the phenomena of hypnotism is nervous derangement on the part of the
