He is now about 4 years of age and is perfectly healthy, and gives evidence of possessing the average amount of intelligence possessed by other Indian children where the state of gence possessed by other Indian children of similar age. This peculiar piece of humanity has one body, but has two well formed heads, with perfect eyes, mouth and nose, but one of the heads has very peculiarly formed ears. The heads are peculiarly formed ears. The heads are grown together, and the appearance of this freak of nature is anything but preposessing. But one mouth is used in eating and in making sounds, the other seemingly not being perfectly connected with the laryns. When the child was born the Indians looked upon it with horror and many favored taking its life. A council was held and the result was the dual headed creature was allowed to live, and is now looked upon by the tribe as a supersatural being.

CROOK COUNTY. Items of Interest Culled From the Newsy Columns of the Ochoco

Joe Howard was quite busy with a boat last Tuesday driving cattle out of Crooked river bottom above town. Some of them had been surrounded on high spots of ground and had to swim to reach the hills.

Sandy Finlayson is said to have lost about one-half his sheep during the recent storm. He had plenty of feed on the place he bought of Colonel Nvc. but for some reason the sheep did not do well on hay alone.

Joe Crooks says the snow drifts still remain level with the fences on Willow creek, though the snow has gone off the country generally. Willow creekers will be able to test the glacier method of irrigating from these drifts the coming season.

About three acres of the W. V. & C. M. Co's, land, in the eastern part of town, was washed away Tuesday and Wednesday. Fortunately there was no houses on the ground that was attacked by the water. Had a few hundred dollars been spent in dyking the stream this land could have been saved.

Hon, S. A. Johns died at Good Samsritan pospital in Portland on Wednesday of last week. He was well known in Prineville. having spent several years here with his son, the late W. S. A. Johns, county judge of this county, who died a year ago last

The high water Tuesday washed out the foundation of the bridge across Ochoco, in The Project That is Recommended by the eastern part of town, but the bridge was ecured with ropes and chains and kept from floating down the stream. The piers to the bridge on Main streetlwere also conbridge was kept in position.

The warm weather and rains the first of river and Ochoco [got on a regular "bust" being higher than they have been for years, though no material damage was done except the washing out of one bridge and the drowning of a few stock. The past few nights have been cool, and it is generally thought the streams will stay within their banks the rest of the season.

The high water on Crooked river the first of the week carried out the new bridge across the river at the mouth of Newsone creek. It is said that the pier in the center of the river, on which the bridge rested, was filled with brush instead of rock as the contract called for, and would not withstand the force of the water and ice that came something over $800, though it had been received by the county court, and the loss will no doubt fall on the county. The washing out of this bridgens a serious disadvantage to the people of the easrern part of the county, and it will be necessary for another to be built next season. But if one is erected it should be a single span, resting on solid butments at each end, so it would not be endangered by high waters and floating ice.

In its preliminary report, rendered in Pecember last, the board recommended, as a temporary expedient for overcoming these obstructions, that a portage single track railroad be made on the Washington side, at an estimated cost of $431,500. This could be contructed in one year, and would undoubtedly be the quickest and cheapest solution of the existing difficulties. Recognizing that this project 13 not free from objections, in that it re quires transhipment of freight, and that while perhaps adequate for the present it may not answer future requirements, the board has, as directed by the act defining against it.
