And this is what our Chicago contemporary calls a restriction of trade. Because we have taken steps to produce in our own country many things which we formerly bought from the foreigner this remarkable economist says we are restricting trade. The California raisin producers are displacing the products of Spain, but because the people of Chicago are buying from California rather than the foreigner the Herald says trade is restricted. And yet we venture to assert that in spite of the falling off of imports of Spanish raisins the American consumer is getting more and cheaper and better raisins than he ever did before. So, too, of the other articles. Because our imports of cotton goods have fallen off, does the Herald editor imagine Americans are wearing less of those manufactures? If he does let him consult the tables of consumption of raw material and he will find out how badly mistaken he is. The trouble with this economist and all free traders is that they don't find themselves able to think of anything as trade except foreign trade. But he might as well make up his mind to accept the inevitable and agree with protectionists that it is the height of folly to buy abroad what can be made at home. CABINET GIRLS.

Having nothing else to make remarks upon, the Washington Post, in its usual able way, indulges itself and delights the public in a dissertation upon the cabinet girls. The word "girl" is variously defined by Webster: first, it is said that "the origin of the word is not obvious," then it is stated

Harriet Lane, the niece of President Buchanan, and mistress of the White House during his time, was most notable; so, too, jumping the gulf of years, was Miss Nellie Arthur, the langhter of President Arthur; so, also, was Mrs. Cleveland, the cnly lady except the second wife of John Tyler who was ever joined in wedlock in the White House. But none of these were "cabinet gırls" in the strict sense of the word .

Cabinet girls, as the term 1s understood in the official circles in Washington, have, and have always had, their lines cast in pleasant places. They are hunted and hunted to be sure by the dudes of the foreign legations, but it is pleasant to know that as a general thing they have been able to resist their nothingless. The cabinet girl, law. upon the whole, is an American in-

This should of American statesmanship, for every be enforced by state law, and then year will have been spent in Washington there can be no reason for complaint.

Mr. Mills and his reformers are fearful that the Democratic house of representatives will ruin the country and insists upon a purchasing agent for the house. They claim that where every man in authority buys what he wants the expense is enormous. Already the committee on accounts has been called upon to audit bills amounting to $200,000 for supplies purchased, and this is just the beginning of the Democratic "reform" congress.

The Salem Journal very truthfully says: "Mr. Hermann coming to the rescue of the Willamette valley with the promise of a special bill to open the river will receive about as much attention at the hauds of the Demooratic congress as a beggar upon reaching the infernal region would get of his satanic majesty. But the introduction of such a bill at this time is a deathbed confession that he has not done his duty by this valley."

Eastern Oregon should have a memper of the next congress, and the Renan, must nominate a man east of the Cascade mountains. If from any other portion of the state, and the Democrats nominate their candidate from this region, the Republican will be defeated. It is better to be prepared for any emergency, and the party will act wisely to consider matters before election time.

Congress has convened after ioliday session, and the reople of the Inland Empire may expect Oregon's representatives to make an effort for a liberal appropriation for rivers and harbors in this state. The Columbia should be opened to the navigation of the people, and whichever party does the most in this regard will reap the
