Heppner Gazette: A telegram was received last Monday morning by Conductor French, Dalles relieving G A. The Heppner branch is one of the best paying pieces of road of all the Union Pacific's possessions, and from a business standpoint, as well as for the safety of the traveling public, requires the assistance of a full corps of trainmen. Mr Simmons returned to his ranch, opposite Hood River, on the Washington side Mon-

Being unable to make out the contents of the parchment, they carried it to Mr. Rizeff, the nearest magis-trate, who found that it was written by Father Suger, one time minister to Louis the Seventh of France. It was an elaborately written treatise upon the use of steam as a motive power, and further examination revealed that the bits of iron were num bered parts of a rudimental but complete steam engine. It is proposed to fit the parts together and to exhibit this pioneer engine at the exposition.

LAKE PARK ROAD. To Be Transferred to a New Com pany. Tacoma News, April 7th. There are good grounds for believing that the Tacoma, Lake Park & Columbia River Railway company, which was incorporated Monday, with capital stock of $3.000,000, will become an important factor in north-vestern railway circles. To-day the deeds are being made ou which will transfer to the company the Tacoms & Lake Park railway, 12 miles in length and it is said that work will begin early in May on the first division of the road to the Tilton river, about 50 miles distant from Tacoma. The plan is to finish the road to The Dalles, on the Columbia, this summer and there connect with the Union Pacific's transcontinental line. Such will traverse Pierce, Lewis, Skamania and Klickitat counties. This distance is but a few miles longer than the Northern Pacific's line to Portland.

A gentleman who is connected with the project said to-day that the building of the line will give Tacoma and the Sound country a better lumber market to the territor reached by the Union Pacific, and that it would also be the means of bringing the Eastern Oregon wheat yield to the tidewater at Tacoma, besides developing a fertile country between the Sound and The

William Bailey, the president of the company, is a New York capitalist who is reported to have influential connections and strong financial backing. He is president of a railroad in Florida and an experienced engineer and railroad man. He is reported to have written to a local capitalist, who is interested, that the company's road will have such backing that Tacoma will be glad to furnish it with proper city terminal facil-

ties when the time comes to use them. The News' informant said that engineers will be put in the field at once, and that if possible the entire line to The Dalles will be built this year. The proposed route is southeast from Spanaway, via the configence of the Sic and Little Mashell rivers and the Cowlitz pass. One report is to the effect that the ros neans more than is generally supposed, it being alleged that Mr. Bailey and his associates intend, and have sufficient financial backing, to eventually extend the line to Denver, Colorado.

D. L. Curtis, J. D. Miller, William Burroughs and C. S. Bridges are among the Tacoma men interested in the new company.

A Curious Case. East Oregonian. A prisoner who has had a peculiar history for the past few days was conveyed in a carriage to the court house from Monday evening's west-bound train. His name is George D A. Maire, and he was found Monday wandering aimlessly around in the sand near Umacilla, with no cothing save a shirt and pantaloons, and his bare feet scratched and bleeding. He was immediately taken in charge and sent to Pendleton for examination. He was supposed to be insane, but his trouble was found to have resulted from acute alcoholism, and having partially recovered he was quite rational when he told his story to the county physician. It was gathered that he had been on a prolonged spree, the result of marital troubles, and that he came from Portland. "The last I that he came from Portland. "The last I remember," he said, "is that my wife, brother and sister started out to attend a bail at the Turner's hall in Portland. I wanted to go but couldn't put my shoes on, and went barefooted. I had no shoes on and my feet were burting me. Maire does not have the slightest idea how he reached Umatilla, his memory from the night of the ball being a perfect blank. It's Mrs. Haggin's Baby

MYERS, and the shedding of crocodile tears by the and the shedding of crocodile tears by the attorneys and hard swearing by some of the witnesses. When the judge cleared his throat he looked wiser than King Solomon of old did when he was called upon to render a decision similar to this one. There was a silence in the court room that was akin to painfulness; not a whisper was heard, only the occasional cooing of the little bunch of humanity that was causing the trouble as it playfully sat in Mrs. Willis' arms. When the decision was rendered giving the child to Mrs. Haggin there was scene that is almost indescribable. The women screamed, one for joy, the other in gony. The attorneys shed copious drops of tears, friends of the mothers flocked round them and Mrs. Willis refused to eacefully surrender the babe to its legal arent, and it was taken from her by force and delivered to its mother. The judge rapped for silence in the court room, and said, "Now bring up John Smith for trial, and the crowd quietly filed its way out of the court room. Thus ends one of the most IMPORTED ENGLISH SHIRE HORSE eculiar cases ever on the docket of an Oregon court, that of two respectable and saue romen claiming to be the natural mother of the same little babe, and their case backed up on each side by a score of witnesses friends, doctors and nurses. It will always be a doubt in the minds of some whether or not the rightful mother now has possession of her own offspring.

Key City Graphic, Port Townsens Wash., Feb. 27, 1892. Ten years ago, in a little town un South ern Illinois, we attended a concert of the Fisk University Jubilee Singers, and the memory of that sweet singing has always given us a moment of pleasure whenever we recalled it. They are indeed wonderful singers, with just enough of the wild flavor in their voices to make them singularly fascinating. One can listen to these people for hours without a thought of the flight of time or touch of weariness Their singing is so easy, the sound of their voices seems to float through the air with such commingled barmony and melody that it is really soothing to listen to them. To read the songs these people ing one would think they were devoid of beauty or poetical sentiment, but when rendered by the singers they convey suggestions of religious grandeur. Ever since we heard them occasional snatches of "Swing Low Sweet Charlot" and "Oh, Brothers Are You Getting Ready?' have been running through our mind.
