SATURDAY APRIL 16, 1892 PROTECTION AND PROGRESSION

The price question has been settled thoroughly, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, and in favor of protection to American industries. It will be the A ticket, very acceptable to Republiturn of the protectionist speakers and can voters, was placed in the field, and writers to quote prices during the coming campaign. The free traders never have been able to use them effectively, inations as will receive the ful for, almost universally, protection has lowered prices when it has had time June election. The TIMES-MOUNTto operate. Where it has failed, as in AINEER has always opposed bossism in the case of sugar, it has been because the manufacturers benefited by it have been too apathetic to avail themselves of its advantages, and their apathy properly has led to removal of protection from articles whose production journalism. It has applied heroic was not stimulated by it. The Demo- treatment to a selfish faction in this cratic gains in 1890 were not made by community, because it has witnessed quotation of what prices really were the butchery of several enterprises "on account of the tariff," but by at the hands of its members false prophesies of what they would that would have tended to impel the be "on account of" a new tariff. These prophesies now are matter of ridicule. They cannot be used again.

But there is a fine field of education now to the advocates of protection, in It has fought classes and not individu which may be displayed the philosophy of tariff operations. The voters may which the purity of the ballot was imbe educated into a knowledge of how protection lowers prices by increasing city impeded. production, and the American Economist has been the first to enter this field. The figures that we are about to produce are gathered from it.

The McKinley bill gave incressed protection to many grades of silk and lace manufactures, and it largely added to the tariffs on velvet and plushes, and increased the duties on many qualities of hostery. Everybody remembers the malignant joy with which the Democratic press predict-d the inability of any, save the very rich, to buy silks or plushes or laces under the provisions of the McKinley bill, and the rapture with which it insisted on the need of the people to wear patched socks and stockings, "on account of the tariff." Equally well does everybody know that silks and plushes and hosiery and laces are cheaper to-day than when the Democratic press was making its alarming predictions as to an immediate and permanent rise in the price of them. But as to the reason why everybody may not be so well informed.

It is this: Since the passage of the McKinley bill sixteen new factories for the production of these articles have been established in the United States. Sixteen new American competitors for possession of the Ameri-clique. This was the reason that this paper rejoiced in the result of the primary election, and the county and state conventions. When we ascertained the fact that a faction in this city was attempting to inaugurate Cæsarism in natural rights of farmers, to buy where they can buy the cheapest, and to get the most they hopestly can for what they sell, are as clear and should be as sacred as the rights of the protected manufactur ers to do so. Farmers produce wheat in excess of home demands, and that excess is exported to countries where the demand is greater than the supply. The doctrine of protection is broad enough to guard all industries against unfair foreign competition, and this it

From the splenetic effusion in Saturday's organ it is plain to see that our disappointed contemporary feels very bad indeed, and probably because the people of Wasco county refused to ornament the ticket with the illustrious name of Hugh Gourlay, preacher, spouter and mud slinger. This same individual, in an eloquent speech before the McKinley club some weeks ago, in the full confidence that the

Farley slate would go, and that Gourlay would be nominated for clerk on first ballot, mentioned the necessity of working on party lines and declared that for his part this seemed so important that if a "yellow dog" were placed in nomination he would feel bound to support him. The sudden change of heart which he now evinces is no doubt due to the fact that to his sorrow and surprise the "yellow dog" didn't get there, and is snarling through the columns of the organ.

As stated in a previous issue the TIMES-MOUNTAINEER does not make war on individuals, but on factions and classes, where these interfere with the freedom of the ballot or act detrimental to the best interests of The Dalles. The editor alone is responsible for articles in the columns, and never publishes anything editorially that he does not conscientiously endorse. To cover the whole ground, we will state that the TIMES MOUNTAIN-

EER is a journal and newspaper, and has an unquallified detestation of personal organs and blackmailing sheets.

To Bro. Patterson, of the Heppner Gazette, we say in all friendliness that the TIMES-MOUTAINEER favorably mentioned the name of Hon. W. R. Ellis for congress in 1870 before Hon. There were Democratic complaints of duties on cotton ties, tools and machinery, but seven new factories for the production of these things have been put in operation since the passage of the McKinley bill.

As to tin-plate, the American people have heard much from the Democratic press, and even now an unusual ly audacious free trader will venture to say that no tip plate is made in the United States. The American Economist however, notes that the Wallace Banfield & Co. works at Irondale, Ohio, are giving steady employment to 700 men, and paying from $7 to $9 per day for tin workers, and from $1.20 to $9 fer iron workers, for this firm rolls its own steel and plates before coating them; it is producing 108,000 sheets of tin-plate daily. Besides these, three tin works have enlarged the sphere of their operations since the passage of the bill, and this is true of thirteen lace, silk, plush and bosiery firms, in addition to the sixteen new ones already mentioned These are but a few instances of the development of American industries since the enactment of that law which the free traders vilified as a measure of oppression

The Eugene Register gives forth no uncertain sound regarding its political faith, and this is the way it voices its sentiments in favor of the grand old party of progress, protection and patriotism: "The Republican party is now, as it ever has been, pre eminently the party of the people. It is opposed to class legislation of any nature that will burden one class for the benefit of the other. It is opposed to trusts and monopolies of every description. It is a party that believes in maintaining the rights of the laboring classes, and battles against every movement tending to reduce the American laborer to the level of European paupers. It is a party that he lieves that it is right to protect the farmer, or producer of raw material, as well as the manufacturer. In short it is the party of the people, demanding equal rights for all and oppression for none and on this ground it will make the fight of 1892 and come out victorious Let every Republican stand up for these principles and elect a ticket that
