Bureau, of the Department of Agriculture. Central Office Portland, Oregon, Crop-Weather Bulletin, No. 5, for week ending

Saturday, April 30, 1892:

Throughout Oregon, the rains during April have been in excess of the normal mount. The total amount has varied from over four inches in the Willamette valley to two inches and over in Southern and Eastern Oregon. Snow has fallen on the mountains and higher elevations at frequent intervals. The rains have penetrated the soil, and it is now more thoroughly moistened than it has been for years. Water stands for benevolence and charity for many on the low lands of the Willamette valley. Temperature has been from two to four degrees below the normal for the month. This deficiency is apparent in every section of the state from the retarded condition of vegetation. The season is fully four weeks late. Frosts occurred with unusual froquency and they did slight damage to the fruit interests. A severe wind and rain storm, one of the most severe on record, occurred on the 24th. There has been a marked deficiency in sunshine, and an ex* cess in the number of cloudy and rainy days. The weather has delayed spring seeding and farming operations in general. It has been unfavorable to shearing and lambing; the latter has been very successful. however, fully 85 per cent, of the lambs being saved. The wool clip is unusually good, the staple being long and remarkably clean. The acreage of grain is as large as ever before and considerable is yet to be cut on the hand, but nothing serious. The Chinaman returned to work Wednesday, condition except to a few in first-class condition, except in a few places on the low lands of the Willamette valley. The wheat has a good stand and has stooled well.

Though the season is late, yet vegetation is healthy and offers bright prospects. WESTERN OREGON. Weather-Continued cloudy and rainy eather, with cool temperature, have prevailed. On the 24th a severe wind and rain storm was experienced, especially along the coast and in the Willamette valley. The storm was almost as severe as the great storm of January 9, 1880. The total rainfall varied from 2 inches at Portland to .50 of an inch in Southern Oregon. Snow fell on the mountains. Frosts were experienced on the 25th, 26th, 27th and 28th in various sections. Thunder storms and hail prevailed on the 25th and 28th in the valley.

Crops-But little farm work was done turing the week. Seeding was practically at a standstill. Winter wheat on lowlands is turning yellow; on uplands it is growing nicely. Hops are a foot or more high. The wind storm on the 24th blew most of the spiured at Williams. Weather-Rains, snow in mountains.

Cloudyand cool weather have prevailed during the week, with frosts of ffrequent occurdiamond field last Saturday. The score wind storm of the 24th was experienced varied from .30 to .90 of an inch. Crops-The spring seeding has progressed siderably, yet in localities it has delayed. Winter wheat is from 20 to 30 inches high and spring wheat is in many localities from 6 to 15 inches high. The
