Mr. T. C. Clark, formerly in business in the Dalles, has returned to his home in Los Angeles, in the city.

Dr. H. M. Connelly, of Flat Rock, Ind., a brother of Mr. F. C. Connelly, of this city, is on our streets to-day.

Now that the wool season is at its height business at the East End is very active, and mechanics are doing a thriving trade.

The Hepper Gazette is quoted as an independent paper in the Albany Democrat.

It is difficult to find a stamper and all other day of high water has subsided.

John Day Sentinel: The sheriff from Baker county, this morning called on the two men they were supposed to be a part of a gang of robbers which have been working in the county.

The Century for June on sale at M. T. Nolan's bookstore, 101 N. 1st St., at the best price.

To-morrow is the monthly time when business men make their usual calls on patrons. They should be treated with a great degree of consideration.

The old Columbia showed her anger to-day in the white capped waves. A heavy wind blew, and this churned the waves into frothy whiteness.

The young man who took the purse from the Indian Monday was tried before Justice Schute yesterday afternoon and sentenced to the county jail for one month.

Mr. C. M. Fouts, the contractor, is nearly finished the job at the East End. This will be a good building for the purpose, and one very much needed.

Nels J. Parson, a subject of Sweden, declared his attitude in respect to the citizenship test before the clerk today by renouncing all allegiance to the king of Sweden.

Out of 800,000 packages carried on the railways in the United Kingdom in 1919 only five were killed in accidents and 476 were damaged. This is a wonderful showing.

The wharfboat is now tied up at the foot of Court street in this place where the river fell six inches. The highest yet reached in this place.

Mr. B. S. Huntington addressed the citizens of Hood River at the region lumbering Co's mill last evening. There was a very good attendance, and the strictest attention was paid to his remarks. The general impression was that the investigation, and when Americans begin to think they very readily endorse the principles of the new doctrine.

Governor Penoyer is at a hotel on a wagon with Chairman Patterson of the Oregon county Republican party. The governor has been taking a little trip to the Australian system, fix up his stock and have it ready to go to the market by turning it over, complete and ready for the judge, five seconds ahead of time. It was a magnificent performance, and the governor voted it straight Republican, scratching every Democrat, Independent, Progressive or People's party man whose name was printed thereon. He won't vote that on election day.

Mr. A. J. Wall, at his tavern on Eight Mile, has quite a number of birds and animals. Two coyotes have been tamed, and now are as gentle and playful as kittens; but a pair of badgers are as ferocious as when on their native heath. He has two fine specimens of the American eagle, and some common birds of prey are with him ever. A great curiosity is a three-legged pig, which seems to have a good appetite as if possessed of four limbs. He takes great delight in his pet, and Mr. Wall is always glad to let it to exhibit his animal to visitors.

W. W. Stetson: Sunday afternoon John Barton, a young man aged about 18 years, met with a serious accident at the Union Pacific depot. It appears that the young Barton and several other boys got on the Oregon passenger train from Spokane, when the engine was taking water at the tank. When the train had nearly arrived at the depot Barton was standing on the platform. The conductor stepped out of the car door, and Barton, being in a hurry, stepped on the ground with such force that he fell on his head, rendering him unconscious. He was picked up and carried to his father's residence near the depot. When Dr. Keylor was called, he found that Barton was in a coma, and that his skull had been fractured just above the right eye. He is reported to be in a precarious condition.

From Thursday's Daily.

Mr. C. P. Batch, of Dufur, is in the city.

Mr. Geo. Stink, of Wasco, is in the city.

Moro, in Sherman county, will soon have a bank with a capital stock of $40,000.

A slight shower of rain fell yesterday evening, but not enough to stop the dews.

The cool weather we are now experiencing will stop the rain in the Columbia, and be beneficial to crops.

Mr. Robert E. Moringstater, editor of the Democrat, published at Bowling Green, Ky., made us a pleasant call to-day.

The members of the Alliance will give a picnic on Eight Mile next Saturday. A large attendance may be expected.

The picnic to the Dalles on the Regulator to-day was extensively patronized, and very many ladies and gentlemen made the trip for a day's outing.

The mandolin and guitar club held a meeting at the residence of Mrs. A. M. Williams last evening. A full attendance of the members was present.

Mr. Irving Watson, president of the Rhode Island Southern Press Club, and editor of the Herald, of Narragansett Pier, was in the city, and gave us a talk to-day.

Mrs. W. J. Lawson, in company with her husband, is in the city. Mrs. Lawson is a daughter of Rev. J. G. Gordon, Congressional representative of Goodloe, Virginia, and is here to remain permanently.

Mr. George Snipes, who lives five miles below town, brought to the office a pair of simple stocks of dry rye on his place, which measure seven feet ten inches in length. The heads average eight inches in length.

We have received a copy of the Frankfort Chronicle, published at the new town in Washington, on the opposite side of the Columbia from Astoria. It presents a very creditable appearance typographically, but on looking over the advertisement in the business houses are represented in front of the real estate agency, hotel and steamer and bus from Astoria.

We received this morning a bouquet of 21 varieties of roses, with the following note accompanying it: "Mr. John Mitchell, in honor of the state of Oregon, 21 varieties roses." It is a beautiful souvenir of the floral wealth of the Dalles and vicinity.

There are two occupants of the city jail, both incarcerated for being drunk and disorderly. One is a happy and perfectly contented with his lot; but the other thinks the world has entirely wronged him, and the human race is antagonistic to his happiness.

Honey Items: A large number of people from Grand Ronde county are taking up ranches at the Narrows. Seven ranches were started off last week by families from Grand Ronde, and they state that nine other families from there are expected here in a few days, all to get homes in this fertile section of the Dalles.

Hon. W. R. Ellis was a passenger on the stage from Hepper to Arlington yesterday evening where he was advised to speak, and met with an accident by which his leg was broken in two places. The stage, about six miles from Hepper, was overturned, throwing the passengers out, and Mr. Ellis fell in such a position that his leg was fractured as was stated.

Deputy Sheriff Scott went to Sweet Home last Saturday and captured Dan Morris, who was on the loose for some time. Mr. Scott was on the way to Albany with his prisoner, when a short distance south of Wapinitia, Morris jumped out of the back and broke for the woods. Charley started in pursuit and fired several shots at him, but Morris made good his escape, says the Lebanon Advertiser.

Lewisville Teller: The rivers have been steadily rising all week and there has been some apprehension in regard to the railroad dyke washing out. At a called meeting the city council decided to protect the rip rap where it was washing out and accordingly a small force of men have been engaged in repairing the dyke there this morning. It is difficult to find a stamper and all other day of high water has subsided.

What the Faculty of the University of California Has to Say.

Your committee have made a very careful examination of the ROYAL BAKING POWDER and are satisfied that it fulfills all the requirements which the public can make of a baking powder. For purity and care in preparation it equals any in the market, and

Our test shows that it has greater leavening power than any other of which we have any knowledge.

FOR ATTORNEY-GENERAL. A Reply on Behalf of Judge Webster to Editor Kaiser.
