There is no branch of government in which the northwest is more interested than that controlling public affairs were controlled four and eight years ago by the Democratic and Republican candidates for president-to review the acts of the two administrations in this regard. The Chicago In ter Ocean speaks truthfully when it says: "Mr. Sparks, who was appointed commissioner of public lands by Mr. Cleveland when he was president, cherished the peculiar delusion that nearly all the entries made by pre-emptors or homesteaders were fraudulent. He said in plain words of Monument, informs us that crops on the that the number of fraudulent pre- Northfork are fine this season. Over the emption claims should be estimated at ridge in Morrow and Gilliam counties the exactly 100 per cent, of the whole number of entries, and that the num- ties just over ber of fraudulent timber-culture entries was not less than 90 per cent.

"Mr. Sparks had a very poor opinion of the morality of the western lieving as he did, or as he professed to believe, it was natural that he should interpose all difficulties which the technicalities of his office would allow or that his ingenuity could invent in the path of the settler who sought to prove preliminary residence, or compliance with the timber-culture act or other act entitling him to receive a patent from the United States land office. It is true that Mr. Sparks' rigidity toward the settlers enhanced the value which was easily granted. "The result of Mr. Sparks' administration was that when Mr. Carter was appointed by President Harrison there were 350,953 persons waiting for confirmation of their titles to government lands which they had taken under the homestead, pre-emption or complied with the provisions of the law were entitled to the benefits of the law, and between the date of his accession to office in 1889 and the fiscal year that ended June 30, 1892, the 350,953 claims left in dispute by Commissioner Sparks were disposed of, and 318,016 other actual settlers allowed to make entry of public lands.

"That is to say, the greater part of 1,000,000 of agriculturists have been provided with homesteads, and the greater part of 1,000,000 of new farms have been opened in the public domain during the present Republican
