Crushed in an Efevator. SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 23 - The 13year old son of E. Bertrand, a well-known grocer of this city, died early this morning of injuries received in the Auditorium elevator Wednesday eyening. At the time of the accident the injuries were not nought to be serious, but at noon yesterday the boy began vomiting and bleeding internally, and rapidly grew worse, until he died. Charles Bise, the elevator boy on duty when the accident happened, tells a straight-forward story about the courrence, and no one is disposed to plane him for the misfortune. He says young Bertrand followed his father's elivery man up to the fourth floor of building, where he went to deliver the reins of five splendid horses, and as ome groceries. After they got on at the fourth floor he attempted to run the elevalor up to the fifth floor. Just as he pulled the lever to start, young Bertrand, who was standing on the outside holding to the elevator-cage, started to get in The sheriff was notified and a large to the elevator-cage, started to get in and knocked against the door, throwing it open. As soon as Bise saw that the elevator runs four or five feet after the ever is reversed, he would have avoided floor and the top part of the cage door, inflicting internal injuries which caused A Salem Mystery.

Five masked men rode up to the door at 2 o'clock and when they left they carried with them a sack of money said to be $10,000 Today was pay-day at the Roslyn mines and $40,000 arrived from Tacoma this morning. The robbers supposed the money was placed in the bank, though it was taken to the company's office. They ex ecuted their plan in a manner which would have done credit to the James boys. Cashier Abernethy was writing when the first rouber entered, and turned to wait on the supposed customer, but found who had entered just after the first highwayman, turned to go out, but instead dashed against a pair of revolvers in the hands of a second robber. The third confederate entered, picked up Cashier Abernethy's revolver and knocked him down with it. He rose, his head stream ing with blood, and was told to keep quiet if he wanted to live. The third man then walked to the safe which was open, took out the coin and bills, shoved the money in a canvas bag and threw it over his shoulder. The official figures lett should go east and attempt to interest wealthy friends in their prospects. Sept ember 10 the entire party of gold seekers went out for a big hunt. About 10 miles from camp, as Martin, Gestord and Corlett were walking through a narrow de file, a large mountain hon sprang from the top of an overhanging rock, aughted upon Gesford and bore him to the earth. Corlett hit the savage animal a blow with the butt of his riffe, whereat it left Gesford and attacked Corlett. Before the latter could fire, the lion terribly crushed his right arm and his left hip, after which it disappeared in the undergrowth When Martin, who was some distance behind his fellows, came up, he found both Gesford and Corlett in an insensible

Making a litter of green boughs, upon which to carry the mangled Corlett, a start was made for camp, Just before sunset, the wounded man recovered from his long swoon and begged piteously that his condctors would stop for a time, as the motion of their rapid progress caused him great agony. Martin, how ever, was afraid that Corlett would die unless his terrible wounds were attended to, so he and Gesford continued on their way. As soon as night fell, they were literally besieged with ravenous animals, which attracted by the odor of blood, had silently followed the three men for miles. only thing to be done was to stop and light a fire in order that they might not be assailed by the hungry prowlers whose snapping eyes could be seen in the darkness. Building a circle of fire around their wounded comrade, Martin and Gestord prepared to repulse any attack by their four-footed foes. Presently, however, something seemed to stamped the canyon with affrighted cries, After waiting about two hours, Martin set out for camp to bring aid to Corlett.

Mr. Fred. W. Wilson, a brother of Mrs. B. S. Huntington, arrived in the city from Ellensburgh, Wash., on the I o'clock train this morning that he harvested nearly 3000 Ellensburgh, Wash., on the I o'clock train this afternoon. From him we learn that the money taken from Abrams, Snipes & Co's bank by the robbers is less than reported in the dispatch, and will only foot up about $6000. The sheriff's posse overtook the bank robbers in a canyon Saturday evening, and a pitched battle ensued with Winchester rifles at a range of thirty or forty steps. Strange to say, although several rounds were fired no one was hit, and in the darkness the robbers escaped. Mr. Wilson says that S. A. Frazier is not seriously injured, and will be all right in a few ously injured, and will be all right in a few days.
