Orators of the Populist and Demo cratic parties never tire of telling the people of the accumulation of wealth by the few in this era of the republic and in their sophistical manner they lay the blame to the Republican party and the policy it has pursued. Then appealing to the prejudices of the people, they picture in golden colors the happy days of our grandfathers when money was more equally distributed, and he who possessed a few hundred dollars was considered rich. Such speeches feed the jealousies of the toiling masses, create a spirit of unrest, and plant the seeds of anarchy in the minds of the unfortunate classes. They give license to Herr Most and his fellowers to preach the gospel of hate, which finds expression in murder and arson. While the leaders of two prominent political organizations, in their speeches, tacitly endorse communism and nibilism, it is not strange that such disgraceful riots as those a Homestead and in the Cour d'Alene mountains occur in the freest covernment upon which the sun eyer shone With the refuse of Europe thrown upon our shores, and an ignorant vicious native element in our cities we cannot place too strict a guard upon everything that may arouse them into action. Politicians, however much they may seek office, should have sufficient respect for themselves and the permanency of free institutions, not to pander to the lowest element to get

But these inflammatory harangues are wrong, because they are untrue, and the object to be attained is very despicable. It is much easier to control a man through his prejudice and jealousy than by means of his judgment, because this requires an exercise of the intellectual faculties, and the former appeals to the brutal instincts in every man, which are naturally actthat they can move the masses quicker by inflaming their hatred than by stating facts, and therefore choose the easier and more available method.

The greater accumulations by the individual, the greater deposits at the centers of trade, and the greater the deposits at the trade centers the larger the sums of money under the control and for the benefit of the few. By such means the banks of London, through the ramifications of business hold the purse strings of the empire. The same is true of New York, Chicago. San Francisco and Portland. If the farmer receives a higher price for his produce, the merchant for his goods or the laborer for his work, the greater the influx into the receiving reservoirs of money and the larger the capital subject to the manipulation of the few. These statements are as true as that rills feed creeks, creeks rivers, and rivers flow to the ocean; and to contradict them is either to display our ignorance or falsity. There was less money at the time of the revolution and after the recent rebellion, because there was less productiveness in the country: there was less banks because there was less money, and because there was less money and less banks

A pertinent illustration of this spirit that is now animating our school and college boys is at hand in a letter from a student in one of New England's largest and oldest schools to a relative in Chicago. Our processions are a great nocess, and the club has been mavited to good many towns. We have accepted three, but will not be able to go to more than that. Our uniforms look well, the fellows march and drill well, and the drum corps is large and well trained. There was a large rally here the other night, and 1 sat on the platform with numerous state celebrities, but they neglected to ask me to address the crowd. There were 3,000 people assembled, and I would more than have spoken if I'd been asked. stration would not have the least stability. This same feeling of unrest pervades every phase of human society, and prevails in churches as well as in politics. That these disciples of unrest do not constitute a majority of any people is an evidence that the world is not going backward but progressing forward, and that they exist in the United States is no evidence that free institutions are a failure. In s place where shiftless men will gravitate to the gutter, and thrifty, industrious people better their condition, there will be discontant, and these distinctions will always exist, for gravitation is a natural result of shiftlessness and elevation of industry and economy. The world has existed for nearly four thousand years and these conditions have remained the same, and it is reasonable to suppose they During the past four years the but still the spirit of unrest is abroad in the land, and the fact is made apparent by Democrat and Populist atempting to make political capital of the prejudice of this class. They do not attempt to produce any argument to prove that the country is retrograding; but at every opportunity they take up the senseless howl of the discontents, and preach plutocracy and combination of capitalists. And they do this in the very face of facts and figures, which are the results of careful investigations of men who have examined the amount of wages paid and the condition of laborers generally. These figures prove that the price of commodities are less than they were, and wages higher. But the Democrats have no affiliation with such cold. mpassioned truths as are based upon mathematical calculation. It is enough for them to know that there are citizens of this country poorer than others, and if they can arouse their jealousy by exaggerating their condition they may secure their votes. This is the alpha and omega of the campaign, according to their view, and they will not miss an opportunity to accomplish this object. It is the same plan that the anarchist and communist follow. and the only difference between these and those who adopted the Chicago platform is that the dynamiters and bomb-throwers are honest and believe in a practical solution, while Demo-

The Republican meeting in Portland last night was the largest gathering ever witnessed in that city. There were fully 8,000 in the procession and the many transparencies displayed were illustrative of the principles of the party of progress and protection. It is very encouraging that, as the campaign nears its end, Republicans are more confident of success than at the beginning.

It now lies with three men in Oregon to determine whether there shall be a Democratic ticket in this state in 1892 or not. This may appear all right to young Democrats, who have only cast a few votes; but to those who voted with the party when the "left wing of Price's army" dominated the politics of Oregon, it will be the "desolation of desolations spoken of by the prophets:"

Governor Pennoyer was simply anticipating future emergencies when he made his Populist speech early in the campaign, and he is now in harmony with the party managers at Tammany headquarters. This prescience on his genius, and Democrats, instead of roundly abusing him, should elevate him to the highest pinnacle and consider him the oracle of the party in

It must be noted by all those who have paid the least attention to politics during this campaign that aspersions on the character of either candidate have been very wisely ignored, and this is in marked contrast to the canvass of four years ago. This has truly beena campaign devoted to educating the people in the diverse policies of government advocated by the different parties, and the ballot cast next Tuesday should be the result of ntellectual discrimination

If no other argument had been produced than the order to withdraw the Democratic electors in this state to give the Populist candidate four votes, it would be conclusive evidence that the party guilty of such duplicity is devoid of principle. The patriotism of the people is sufficiently strong not to support an organization that has no other object to be attained than the spoils of office, and on the 8th of November President Harrison will receive the largest majority of any president cratic speakers about the despotic (?) force bill, they have never, in a single instance, read any of its provisions to substantiate their charges. The reason is that there is not a single sentence in the entire measure that would not be endorsed by every honest, patriotic American. Its only aim is to insure free and fair ballot in every state of the union, and the Democratic party does not desire this. If it was a law the solid south would be broken, and this would be disastrous to Democracy.

CITY OF MEXICO. Nov. 3-President Diaz says the trouble at Tomaschie was not of taxes. The Indians a year ago refused to recognize any authority except that of the so called St. Colera. General Rancel two months ago was sent with a small force to compel obedience, but the fanatical Indians, relying on the aid of their saint, fought desperately and defeated Rancel. Then the government sent 600 soldiers against the Tomaschians In the fight that ensued the Indians loss affair was merely local and purely religious, and is now comp'etely ended. The Indians had modern arms from the United States.

A Peculiar Mode of Death. SEATTLE, Nov. 3-Hugh A. Kobler, elerk in Z. C. Miles' hardware store and ormerly of the United States railway mail service, committed suicide in the Diller hotel this morning by sufficiating himself with gas. The cause was despondency, brought on by financial and family troubles. The method adopted was novel, and was the result of reading an account of suicides in the San Francisco Chronicle a week ago. He attached a rubber pipe to a gas jet, propped him-self up in bed, and putting the end of the pipe in his mouth, turned on the gas. The first attempt made him sick and he tried again. This time he was successful.

Were the denizens of The Dalles being summoned into the ark to prepare for a second deluge, or had angel Gabriel decided to blow his last trump, and was he magnanimously giving the good people a days' warning to prepare their white robes! definite, and we were all solemnly impressed with the premonition that if we had any thought at all of being considered "in it" we must make a move before Nov. 30th. Inquiry, however, gave assurance that all forebodings of ill were out of place, for the flood that was coming was not one to be avoided, but was one to be sought. The Oregonian Edcyclopedia Britannica force had struck the town and took this metho

We understand that the great demand for these books throughout the state has compelled the publishers to fix this limit for the receipt of subscriptions in order to serve all portions of the state without partialty.
