AMERICAN METHODS.

Certain European commissioners to the World's Columbian Exposition, who have come over in charge of exhibits, says the San Francisco Chronicle, have expressed the opinion that within the forty days intervening between the present time and the date fixed for the opening of the exposition it will not be possible to complete the work of preparation, which only shows how ignorant they are of American methods, and how little they understand what can be done under the whip and spur of necessity.

As to some of these European visitors it is not surprising that they fail to appreciate American methods in building when we remember that they must be familiar with such edifices as the Strasburg Cathedral, which, though half finished in the year 1318, is not wholly finished in the year 1893. With such a time gauge as that set by that building it is not strange that they should think that nothing or next to nothing could be accomplished in forty days.

It happens, however, that Arcaitect Burnham and Director-General Davis, who have had charge of the work of construction in Jackson Park since its inception, have said that within the forty days the preparations for the exposition will be complete, and what they have already said and done has earned for them the full confidence of the people of the United States. They were told that the exposition buildings could not be built within the specified time, and yet the buildings are there, ready for occupation, and unequaled in the character of their architecture and construction.

Chicago has at least a national reputation for "getting there" where the erection of buildings is concerned. The exterior of a twelve-story building, for example, was put up not long ago in thirty-nine days, and it is asserted by Chicago contractors that the excavation for a twelve-story building can be made and the exterior completed in not to exceed seventyfive days. There is no knowing how much may be done by putting bodies of men to work in shifts or relays so that the work shall be continuous, and this is the method adopted for the completion of the preparations for the Shot his Lady Love and Himself. CHICAGO, April, 1-Miss Effie Clark, of Spokane, Wash, a member of the fresh man class of the Northwestern university, was tonight shot and instantly killed by E. Ross Smith, aged 26. Until recently Smith was also a resident of Spokane. Smith, after shooting Miss Clark, shot bimself in the head, inflicting a tatal wound. The cause of the murder was mula. the refusal of the young lady to entertain Smith's proposal of marriage. Smith had been an ardent suitor for the hand of Miss Clark, but his attentions were repulsed by her parents and herself. He was so persistent that, in a final effort to escape his attentions, Miss Clark, who was 19 years old, was sent to the Northwertern university. Shortly after her arrival in Evanston, Smith put in an appearance, and had been tireless in his attempt to win the young woman for his This evening he called upon Miss Clark and persuaded her to take a walk with him. She was accompanied by her roommate, Miss Abernathy, who was the only witness to the tragedy. Smith urged his suit again, but without success, and tried to get the young lady away from her companion. She refused to go till Smith said he had something to tell her in confidence. They stepped off a short distance, and Smith at once drew a revolver and fired five shots at her. One bullet entered her left ear and another passed through her left side. Smith then turned the weapon against himself and sent a bullet through his head. Miss Clark was removed to a neighboring house, but expired in a few minutes Smith was taken to the police station, where, before lapsing into nuconsious-ness, he said; "I shot her. She wouldn't marry me, so I shot her." The doctors pronounced the young murderer's condition as hopeless, though he may live a few hours.

The decision turned on the arraignment for contempt of eight Lake Shore engineers and firemen, who struck in preference to bauling Ann Arbor cars turned over to the Lake Shore road. The courtroom was crowded. The decisio was not as radical as the men feared and does not assume to compel the men to work against their will. Notice of appeal was at once filed on behalf of the men. Judge Ricks began by quoting the provisions of the interstate by any common carrier against any permerce, and asserts the jurisdiction of the court though a federal question is in-volved, and quotes Chief Justice Mar-shall to show that the federal judge has jurisdiction on such cases, even though other questions not of a federal charac ter are involved. Judge Ricks then proceeds to recite the fact that when the application for an injunction was made to him in chambers in Cleveland, on March 11, the emergency existed. He had is sued a similar order in 1891 on the ap plication of the Wheeling & Lake Eric railroad, and it was entorced with beneficial results against its striking enginee foremen and trainmen: The judge held that the road connecting with the Ann Arbor road was clearly compelled, under from and deliver freight to that road, and, as corporations can only act through agents, it was evident the mandatory pro visions applied with equal force to the officers and employes of connecting roads. He said the authority of the court to issue such an order had been questioned, but it rested on well established principles, and quoted in support of the state ment from British equity proceedings After Judge Ricks' decision was rendered he proceeded to read the decision of the circuit court, consisting of himself and Judge Taft, on motion of the Ann Arbor Company, asking a temporary in-junction against Chief Arthur, restraining him from issuing any boycott order against that road.
