The People's theatre was closed for all time in Portland vesterday. This is the direct result of the prize-fighting cases that have attracted so much attention in the criminal courts of late. Prineville has just had a baseoul tour-nament lasting four days, in which differ-ent amateur teams from the various Eastern Oregon counties contested, with changing results. The series of games was well played, and from all reports the various participating clubs did themselves credit. The Dalles club was not represented at the tournament. Salem Statesman: Sunday evening about 7 o'clock Mrs. Caleb (hapman, who is living with her daughter, Mrs. Thomas-Jackson, on Center street, had the misfortune to fall and sustain a serious contusion. She was about to go down the back steps into the yard, when in taking her first step she fell. In falling she twisted around in such a manner as to strike with her whole weight against her preast on one of the railings. She was immediately brought into the house and medical aid summoned. All that was possible was done to relieve her sufferings. As she is 74 years of age her feeb-leness will tend to hinder her speedy re-covery. Some alarm is felt as to her ever recovering again, but with careful nursing she may be able to stand the shock.

There is some talk at La Grande to the effect that Chinese incendiaries set fire to the elevator building, recently destroyed. It was used as headquarters by the sgitators and the supposition is that the celestials took this method of getting even. Another theory is that the agitators may themselves have accidentally caused the fire by leaving cigar stumps or matches around the building after one of their meetings.

Within a short distance of the elevator stood the Standard Oil Company's tank containing 6000 gallons of petroleum. Had it caught fire the entire city would have suffered. It was kept covered with we blankets, and the wind fortunately happened to be in the opposite direction. The elevator contained some 26,000 bush els of fine wheat belonging to Conley and Cavmess. About 15,000 bushels will be suitable for hog feed.

The new rule permits a detail of a single officer. Another important feature was the authorization of the formation of hostipal corps in each regiment. This will be composed of men specially enlisted for the purpose.

Collins-Brooks Nuptials.

From Thusrday's Daily. Last evening in response to the numerous witations a large concourse of people, that filled the First Methodist church to its utost capacity, gathered to witness the mariage of Miss Iva C. Brooks to Mr. E. J. Collins. The church was very handsomely decorated; a protusion of cut flowers and potted plants banked up the choir rail, and magnificent arch of Virginia creeper hung with floral wedding bells and with a white dove suspended in the center was erected over the altar.

Precisely at 9 o'clock the organ pealed out the strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March and the bridal party entered, headed by the groomsman, H. H. Riddell, followed by the ushers, Messrs, N. J. Sinnott and J. 6. Winzler; then came the two bridesmaids Miss Henrichsen, of Portland, and Miss Auburn Story. These were followed by the little maids of honor, Anna Pentland and Zipporah Harris, and at the last came the bride leaning on the arm of her father, Mr. E. S. Brooks. The party were met at the altar by the groom and his best man. Mr. Fritz W. Wilson, and at the same time the pastor, Rev. J. Whisler, appeared. The party grouped themselves about the altar. while the minister pronounced the beautiful and impressive marriage service of the Methodist ritual. At the close of the ceremony the newly wedded couple proceeded down the left aisle to the strains of the beautiful Mendelssohn wedding march, foilowed by the maids of honor, then the bridesmaids and groomsmen with the ushers bringing up the rear. The music furnished by Mrs. J. W. Condon on the vocalion or-

The orsage was ornamented with white lace, silk moliene and held in place by a bunch of bride roscs. It fell in graceful folds to and Lieut. W. H. Ellis of F Co. passed her feet. The Grand Lodge K. of P. at Heppner.

Every member of the grand lodge, who has attended the session at Heppner, speaks in the most complimentary terms of the a is a display from the corset factory of manner of their entertainment. It was exnected that the little city in the bunchgrass hills of Eastern Oregon, would display comnendable qualities in making the visit of the Knights pleasant and profitable; but expectations were completely eclipsed and overshadowed in the treatment received. and every lady and gentleman, apparently, constituted himself and herself a committee of one to extend a generous, chivalric welcome to the visitors. Not only the freedon of the city was extended to the grand body, but everything possible for the enjoyment of the quests was done in a liberal and princely manner, and as entertainers, in the knightly meaning of the word, the citizens of Heppner are, in the highest sense, of blood royal and "to the manner born." Parties and banquets were of daily occurspeak volumes for the ability to grow surence, and these would have done honor to any metropolitan community. Where each exerted his and her best endeavors to make the enjoyen agreeable any discrimination would almost appear invidious, but among nose prominent in the list should be mentioned the Pythian Sisters of Doric temple, members of Doric lodge, K, of P., the excellent brass band, Senator Blackman, Mr and Mrs. Otis Patterson, Mr. A. W. Patter son, Mr. and Mrs. H. McFarland and others whose names we could not learn. In Eastern Oregon, there is a generosity in the landscape, in the sunshine, in the broad stretch of plains and mountains, and the hearts and impulses of the inhabitants are patterned after the same liberal plan. Heppner may traction; but up until la late hour to-day, be a little bunchgrass town, but the residents, in those qualities which cause sunshine to dispel gloom in human feelings and unite in bonds of indussoluble fellowship in universally understood to designate clothing of wool alone, he is not only committing a fraud on the customer, but he is committing a double fraud on the inventor or man turer of the article called for.

It Counts. Tasty, judicious advertising certainly OUR pays, says an exchange. The merchant who will show care in the preparation of his announcements will be sure to receive SALE satisfactory results. When a merchant does not advertise it is a sure sign that he is indolent and does not care to reach out for trade. When one stops advertising there is evidence that he has done it so poorly that he is no longer in the race for public patronage. Judicious advertising is to business what oil is to machinery. Without it, success is impossible. Two per cent of gross receipts can be safely spent in advertising and it will prove a be wasted in advertising; so can fools drown themselves, but the man who can not successfully advertise cannot hope for success in business in this day of close margins, quick sales, scarce moneys and nineteenth century methods. The business man of to-day must be alert, quickwitted and thoroughly alive, and "printer's ink" judiciously applied is as necessary to this as pure air is to health, to b successful in modern business life.

A. S. MACALLISTER,

Baker Democrat. The success attending the operation of the Red Jacket mine and mill at Cornu copia, under the management of Mr. 1. R Farrell in the employ of the Oregon Gold Mining Company, of Louisville, Ky., is certainly a matter of pride and satisfaction to the people of Baker and Union counties, and demonstrates what can be accomplished in mining in this section of country when the right men are put in the right place and common sense is displayed. The Red Jacket mine is only ne of many properties that can be made o pay handsome dividends if properly

On Sunday last Mr. Farrell arrived in Baker City with another cleanup of $6000 or more which he deposited at the First National Bank for shipment east. Mr. Farrell was met by a reporter to whom the gentleman stated that he thought he would be able to keep the mine and mill in operation until January, at which time he was of the opinion he would be compelled to close down until March owing to the deep snow, necessitating the taking down of the tramway between the min and mill as a measure of economy to prevent its destruction by snow slides. Mr. Farrell is very hopeful of results the coming year and predicts a large monthly out-
