tian Hess yesterday just before noon. It appears that Mr. Liebe was going to his home about the poon hour, when in cross ing Park street he was shot from behind by Mr. Hess and fell forward on his face, and he fired at him again while in the prostrate condition. The man then turned the weapon on himself, discharging the pistol just above the right ear, causing almost instant death. From a letter found on Mr. Hess' person he claims that Mr.

Liebe had caused him the greatest annovance by his arrest for embezziement and had even made threats to his wife who was Mr. Liebe's niece, that he would send her husband to the penitentiary

This caused the greatest mental anxiety to Mrs. Hess and so preyed upon her husband's mind that he was partially deranged, and he came to the determination to revenge himself upon his persecutor

Mr. Hess' story of the embezzlement is that he loaned $70 to Carl, a son of Mr.

Theodore Liebe, and who is under age with the promise that he would not tell his father. The young man failing to repay him, and being in need of money

Hess considered it no crime to pay him-
