FARMERS APPEAL TO FARMERS.

Some interesting passages preceded the adoption by the Indiana Wool Growers' association of a resolution denunciatory of the Wilson tariff bill, says an exchange. The resolution reads thus:

WHEREAS, A tariff bill has been introduced in congress known as the Wilson bill, which grossly discriminates against the farming interests by placing on the free list twenty-nine of the finished products of the farm, which are now protected by fair and equitable duties, and also making large reduction in the duties nov properly assessed on twenty-one other finished products of the farm; there-

Resolved, That we denounce the said Wilson bill as unjust, unwise, uncalled for, and we invite farmers everywhere, from M ine to California, to join us in denouncing the bill, and, regardless of former party affinations, to join us in pledging ourselves to vote against any man who shall vote for or favor the Wilson bill or any similar bill.

But things happened before its pas

Mr. Mount had read a paper entitled Signs of the Times: Whither is the Sheep Industry of the United State Tending?' Mr. Mount took a gloomy view of the situation, and prognos'icated serious diminution, if not utter extinction, of the sheep and wool industties of the United States unles some adequate measure of protection were afforded to them. But up to this point no hint of resolutions denunciatory of the Wilson bill as a whole had been dropped. It looked as though the association would not do more than resolve that the Indiana congressmen be requested to endeavor to secure protection to fleeces and to sheep. But a Mr. Garvin, feeling bound to defend Democratic pelicy. denied the soundness of Mr. Mount's conclusions, and propounded these queries to the association:

"What has been the effect of McKinley law on wool and sheep?' "Do you believe that the removal of the duty on wool will lower the price on wool in a degree equal to the value of the duty repealed?" Mr. Garvin probably had been supplied with the products of that falsehood factory that the New York World and the Chicago Herald distribute, and had come to believe that the McKinley law had worked adversely to the sheep-raising and woolgrowing interests.

Mr. Garvin's queries were answered instantly by a dozen well-read farmers, who assured him that the latest report of the secretary of agriculture showed FHE DALLES' - - - OREGON 3,000,000 during 1892, and of 5,000,-000 since the passage of the McKinley bill. Furthermore, they assured him that while the decrease in the price of wool in Europe had been from seven to ten cents per pound during the interval of the passage of the McKinley bill and the election of Cleveland, the decrease of American prices had been limited to two cents. But that after the election of Cleveland, and the certainty of a Democratic tariff bill with wool on the free list, the decrease in NEW YORK, American prices had been frightful. Having thus answered Mr. Garvin's first query, the intelligent farmers disposed of the second by quoting Cleveland's message to congress in 1887, in which he said that the manufacturer would be benefitted by free wool by just the difference between the rate of duty and the price, without duty. They might have reminded Mr. Garvin that a much more accomplished economist than Mr. Cleveland, none other, in fact, than Professor Taussig, who is by head and shoulders the greatest of all the American free trade teachers, very recently has confessed that the probable result of free wool is the extinction of sheep raising as specific use of American capital. The discussion thus provoked by Mr. Garvin took a wider range than that of sheep farmers; it extended over the area of miscellaneous farming, and ended in the adoption of a resolution in which the grossly unfair discrimination of the Wilson bill against all the products of northern farms was denounced, and in which all "farmers everywhere, from Maine to California," are requested to join tue Indiana wool growers' association in "pledging ourselves to vote, regardless of our past party affliations, against any man who shall vote for or in any way favor the Wilson bill or any similar bill." This is not the resolution of a Re publican convention; it is the formal utterance of a body of farmers, in the composition of which Democrats, Republicans, Greenbackers, and Populists took part.

I hereby desire to extend to all of my riends my thanks for the many kindnessextended to me during my past illness of over three months from rheumstism, and I especially desire to tell them that but for Sulphur Bitters I should have next time the matter was brought before the council.
