There is a sickly sentimentality, coupled with a morbid curiosity, says the Salem Statesman, abroad in this flowers to the cell of the red-handed of the man expiating in prison a re volting crime against the rules of organized society; that has a false and veneered sympathy for the waifs and outcasts of strangers while allowing their own to grow up in idleness, negare the crops of law-breakers and outcasts of society transplanted. They do we find. We find the released prisoner spurned, cast out and abhorred by this class of people. Their sympathy is bestowed at the wrong time and place-where it does barm and not good. This is the great curse and shame of our prison system—the great disgrace of it to this enlightened nineteenth century. The time is here now when there must begin to be a change. Sensible people are begining to see that some way must be provided for caring for and looking after discharged convicts. Some way must be provided for washing away the feafrul convict stain-the awful, relentless, prison taint. Society owes this to its unfortunate outcasts, often the victims of untoward circumstances, and it owes it to itself. The prison system itself is wrong. It must be reformed. Oregon should fall in line with the progressive ideas, experiences and experiments of the older states.

The California supreme court has decided that a politician can not run a celd bluff on a confiding public without paying for it. The story is this: During the campaign of 1890 Col. Markham, the Republican candidate for governor, posed as the special advocate of white labor. The Democratic State Central committee then stole a march on him by publishing a letter from Markham to the manager of a mine of which he was part owner, in which he (Markham) advecated throwing out the white labor and the employment of Chinese. "I am glad that the Irish crowd are out and hope the Chinamen will be all right." Republicans charged that the letter was a forgery, and Irwin C. Stump, chair- city. man of the Republican State Central Mr. and Mrs. F. Faulkner returned from the production of a genuine letter in night. Markham's handwriting containing the statement. The Democrats produced the letter and demanded the $1,000. The genuineness of the letter could not be disputed, but Stump did not pay the money and was sued with the strike, which is more general than any that has been experienced in the history of the world. Nearly every railroad is tied up by the strikers, and the Railway Union, it. their contest against the railroad corpora tions, has been joined by nearly every labo organization in the United States. The situation in Chicago is desperate, and the railroad strikers have attracted the lawless elements and property has been destroyed. The military has come in collision with the rio ers, and several of the latter have been killed. Gov. Altgeld has written to the president to withdraw the regular troops and this has not been heeded. As a conse mento the situation is unchanged, and Southern Pacific trains that are determined There have been several cabinet meetings to consider the situation, and the attorney general has advised the use of the U. S. army in the protection and transportation of the maile. There is a general strike in Oregon on all lines of railroads, and freight and passenger traffic is greatly impeded. When the end will be cannot be conjectured, as organized labor is determined to continue the fight to the bitter end, and combined capital, with apparently the wealth of the country at its back, is making a bold 9zht for supremacy. President servative, and advises all members of the organization, to pursue only lawful methods is anxious to know which is supreme, cap- Every day brings news of further tie-ups, and without some compromise is effected soon the business of the country will be completely paralyzed. A Fish Story.

Trout fishing still commands the atter tion of sportsmen, and the fluny inhabitants of the neighboring streams furnish many meals to our citizens. It is contrary to law to make sale of them, but if any angler is burdened with the number of his day's "catch" there are always friends and neighbors who will gladly relieve him. Mr. C. L. Phillips is the prince among fishermen in this vicinity, and he never makes a missionary tour of the neighboring hills without he comes home with a well-filled basket, Yesterday was not a very good day for trout, and our friend only removed about seventy of the inhabitants of Mill creek. The phosphorescent elements of the piscatorial species have always been renowned for stimulating effects on the gray matter of the brain, but whether this stimulation is caused by excitement of the blood, exlutions of the organ or by the creation of new cellular tissues therein has not been fully determined by scientists. At any rate, from the premuses stated the syllogism may be formed something after this manner Fish food creates or stimulates the mental aculties; all men, editors especially, need stimulation or creation of the mental faculties; therefore, all men, editors especially, should eat fish.

Mr. A. Schuster, a pioneer resident of this region, died at Goldendale early this norning, after a lingering illness of several months, and was aged 75 years. He came to The Dalles in 1862, and worked in this city for Mr. Teal in the Washington market, corner of Court and Second streets. Removing to Klickitat he lived for several years on the Washington banks of the river a few miles west of the city, and was for long timesheriff of the county, fultilling the arduous duties of that office to th atisfaction of all. Of late years he has reaided at Goldendale, Wash., where he was iniversally esteemed as an honest upright atizen.
