He spent the time until evening in renewing old acquaintances n the city, and giving an attentive ear to ill those who desired to see him on any business pertaining to the public trust which has been reposed in him for the past twelve years. About 8 o'clock the senator, preceded by The Dalles brass band, and accompanied by nembers of the committee on reception, walked to the court house, which was well filled with ladies and gentleman, who had ome to listen to the senator. After one or nore selections had been played, Mr. John Michell introduced Senatot Dolph in a few brief remarks, enlogizing the part he had taken regarding an open river, the promient position he held in the senate and his intiring efforts in favor of the best interests f his constituents and the manly battle he had waged in favor of protection.

The senator, on taking the floor, gave a horough as d exhaustive description of the position he had taken in reference to public improvements in Oregon, and especially towards opening the Columbia river as channel of commerce for producers and shippers. Apprepriations had been received for the mouth of the river sufficient to complete the jetties now begun, and already there is thirty feet of water at low tide in the channel. The bugbear of the bar at the nouth of the Columbia no longer exists, and the shipping facilities will enhance the price of wheat and wool to the producers of all portions of Oregon. In a little while this improvement will be completed, and conress has given all the aid necessary. A matter of great interest to the people of this vicinity was the locks at the Cascades, and these had been let by contract and the amount necessary to finish them had been voted by congress.
