Pendleton Tribune. Edward Clark, a young man pushing a strong wheel and twenty-five pounds of bedding and clothing, rode through Pendleton yesterday. He is on his way to Baker City from Portland, which place he left Friday morning at which place he left Friday morning at nine o'clock. An average run of forty miles was made daily, and this Mr. Clark regarded as good time, consider-ing the condition of roads between Portland and Pendleton. They are very rough and often sandy, and with the exception of the stretch between the best piece of road he struck con-nected Echo and Pendleton. From Troutdale to Hood River the rider fol-lowed the railroad, but exclusive of this distance, the highway proved a better track. Considerable portion of each day's trip in the mountainous section had to be made on foot. Mr. Clark camps by the wayside, and is en-joying a regular outing.

The recorder and an expert have been at work for several days examin-ing the books of the treasurer and asertaining the full amount of the city's ndebtedness. As a result there are forty-two pages of type-written figures, each page comprising several columns, and the total of each column of figures carefully ascertained. Mr. Dufur has been assisted by Mr. F. R. Hill in this work. From this compilation it is ascertained that the principal of the city debt is $49,146.63, on which interest has convent to Mey 10 1895. est has accrued to May 10, 1895, to the amount of $7,484.18, making a total of amount of $1,494.18, making a total of $56,628.81. When Senator Elkins passed up the river from the Cascades he expressed his opinion very frankly and freely regarding the government improvements now in progress. The work at the Locks was being pushed very satisfac-torily, and when completed would be a great advantage to the producers of the Inland Empire. He had full information regarding the dimensions of the canal and locks now in process of construction, and appeared satisfied

In the engineers' report the cost of canal and locks was placed at about $11,000,000, and of a ship railway at $1,250,000. Aside from the difference in the price of construction the ship railway could be built much more quickly. All these considerations were in favor of the plan adopted.
