FARE HARNEY COUNTY PARSON. He Was Young, Looked Innocent Wise, But Swindled Everyone.

James Newcomen, a sheepman, is at Burns, Harney county, from Birken-head, England, where he has been vis-iting relatives since last September, and thereby hangs a tale. When our sheepman made arrangements to go abroad, he met a young preacher who had been conducting a series of revi-val meetings in the Burns church the preceding six weeks, who was called George H. Richmond, and who asked the well-to-do sheepman to pay his fare to Kent, England, saying his father, the rich Mr. Richmond, of Richmond Grove, Ramsgate, Kent, England, would repay the loan on their arrival; he was an only son; had run away from home but as his father was dying he would be forgiven; he would dying he would be forgiven; he would return to this country with his mother and try to atone for his wrong doing the rest of his life. Newcomen loves money, but the preacher found a soft spot in his heart and got his passage free. At Liverpool, Richmond gave his note for $1.0 and they separated. Three weeks after Newcomen went to Ramsgrate for his money, but found no Ramsgate for his money, but found no one of the name of Richmond. At the costoffice on inquiry he learned one Thomas Picther, son of Thomas Picther, had just returned from America and was getting mail for Rev. G. H. Richmond. He called on Thomas Picher, at a little one-room shanty, saw a photo of the preacher on the wall and learned that he had started back to America the week before. Shortly after Newcomen wrote the above ex-posure to friends in Burns, a letter reached the clerk of the caurch he had established in Burns from Rev. John B. Gough Pidge, 505 Green street, Philadelphia, November 25, 1894, ask-ing as to the character of Rev. George H. Richmond, to whom he had mar-ried a young girl the week before, and ried a young girl the week before, and they were in distress from lack of funds expected from Oregon, etc. Shortly before this letter arrived, Rev. Horn, of Haines, Baker county, had a letter of inquiry from "the real estate company," Philadelphia, stating Mr. Richmond had that day desired to open an account with them and referred them to the reverend gentleman, who is one of the best men of his cloth. Nothing more has been heard of this gifted young rascal of the pul-pit, known variously as Thomas Pic-ther, of Ramsgate, England; Rev. George H. Richmond, of Summerville; the Cowboy Preacher of North Powder; the Salvation Boy, of Baker City; the Kid of Burns. About Friday of last week the vanguard of an army of crickets appeared on the banks of the river, about five miles east of Huntington. They came from the west and were journeying east. On reaching the river the leaders plunged boldly in and the rank and file followed. Millions floated down and were drowned, and millions more reached the opposite bank and pro-eeeded on in an easterly direction. Every rock and stick in the stream below the point where the crickets took the water for hundreds of yards is literally covered with the insects. Where bridges cross they climb up the posts over the bridge and on. Every garden that happens in the way is left bare of verdure. They follow the corn stalks

City Election.

At the primary meeting held last evening it was determined to hold the nominating convention of the first ward this evening at the council chambers, of the second ward at the circuit court room in the court house, and of the third ward at the county court room. The first ward consists of that portion of the city north of Third street, the second ward that part east of Court street, and the third ward all west of that street. Next Monday there will be elected a water commiswest of that street. Next Monday there will be elected a water commis-sioner from each ward, three council-men for the third ward—the one re-ceiving the highest number of votes to men for the third ward—the one receiving the highest number of votes to serve for three years, the second on the list for two years and the third for one year; one for two years from the second ward, and one for one year from the third ward. Aside from these there will be elected a mayor and city treasurer, the former having the power to appoint city marshal and recorder, with the approval of the council.

There is not much poetry in the west wind, although, as it sings sad dirges of music in tree tops it may awaken an echo in some disconsolate heart that is crushed and bleeding from that is crushed and bleeding from man's inhumanity to man; but it cools the atmosphere and dispenses health and vigor to the system. The Dalles zephyrs, though they may not be as melodious as symposium from Mozart, or as poetic as some of the stanzas of Tennyson, dry up the malaria of stagnant pools, and make this region as healthful as any on the continent. Men and women can live without poetry or music; but they cannot live and thrive without a pure atmosphere and opportunities for inhalation and exhalation.
