Lebanon Express: There lives in this county, near Sodaville, a man who has reached the wonderful age of 98 years. He is Medders Vanderpool. The old gentleman is strong in mind, memory and body, and can at this late day sign his name and read ordinary hand-writing. He looks under 80. This speaks well for the mineral springs at Sodaville and the climate of the Willamette valley.

Unity Camp, No. 215, W. of W., was instituted at Dufur last night by L. L. Swan, of Salem, organizing officer for the state. There were present from Mt. Hood eamp: Neighbors W. H. Young, H. We learn that the grasshoppers are attacking the orchards near the city Our informant says he has seen then cluster on ripening peaches and al-most devour them in a few minutes. They leave the foliage of the trees and fasten on the fruit. This is much to be regretted as our fruit crop never had a etter outlook than the present season. As fruit is becoming ripe it is to be hoped that this pest will not destroy the prospects of the orchardists in this gicinity.

One morning this week the janitor at the court house saw a boy at the door and asked him what he wanted. He said he wanted his breakfast, as he He said he wanted his breakfast, as he had nothing to eat for sometime.

Mr. FitzGerald suspected that the fellow had escaped from some institution after he had him in the office, asked him what his name was. The boy was somewhat frightened at the manner he had been received and burted out Shontell. Misunderstanding the word used the ire of the janitor was aroused, and taking hold of him by his shoulder he shouted: "Shan't tell, eh! well I'll make you tell. Come right in the cell here, and I don't want any more of your impertinence." The boy explained to Mr. FitzGerald that his name was S-h-o-nt-e-l-1, that he was not impertinent, and had escaped from the reform school July 4th. This calmed Mr. FitzGerald, and he appologized for the mistake he had made in the sound of the word and hurriedly brought him as good a break fast as he could get anywhere. John and the boy have been on the best of terms ever since; but we would advise no one to twit him about Shontell.

Mr. John FitzGerald had an adven ture last night when he was walking through the cells locking up the pris-oners. He was unusually late in performing this work, and as he passed the first cell in the corridor he noticed that the door was closed. On opening it he found Lee Moorhouse, who is un der $250 bail for larceny, secreted in a corner of the room, with hat and coat on and his shoes in his hand raised in a striking attitude. He closed the door quickly before the blow descended and asked Moorhouse what he meant. The fellow told him that he had planned an escape, and intended to skip planned an escape, and intended to skip through the door of the corridor into the sheriff's office, and from there gain the street by the front door of the court house. If necessary he would have used the shoes in knocking the jailer down. By this time John's Irish blood was fully aroused, and in a little while he was hauled out of the cell and placed in one under lock and key. It is a fair presumption that Moorehouse will be content with his lot for the will be content with his lot for the next few days, and not make any

The Boyd Union school closed a very successful term a few days ago, and Mr. R. A. Gailey—a nephew of Mr. R. Snodgrass—the teacher gave general satisfaction. The young man is only 23 years of age, and has only been in Oregon a few months. A correspondent at Boyd gives a very lengthy biographical description of Mr. Gailey, which is too elaborate for our columns, and from it we learn that he has the esteen of both teachers and pupils. His methods are calculated to stimulate students in the pursuit of knowledge, and undoubtedly Mr. Gailey has a bright future before him

SHERMAN COUNTY MUSICAL. lews of a Person Who Attended From Wasco County.

BOYD, Ore., July 7, 1895. As I have seen nothing in your cerning the Sherman County Musical Association's convention, which was held at Grass Valley, commencing June 24 and closing the even-ing of June 28, I will try and give you few items concerning it. The first three days was occupied in ransacting the business connected with the association, and none but members were admitted; but Thursday and Friday, June 27 and 28, was for the benefit of the public, or you might say for the benefit of a few of the members of the association. They had given he public to understand that the enertainment would be free, and nothng to the contrary had been seen in There were a great many living in Sherman county who did know that an admission was to be charged until a few days before it comnenced, and people coming from a distance were very much put out when they arrived and found that an admison was to be charged. The admission was small, it is true; but when you take the entertainment into consideration it was small too, as nearly etings, and the reserved seats would have made the angels weep to have sat upon them. The entertainment fell far short of what it was cracked up to be, and nearly all present were disgusted with the meeting.

The next meeting will be held at Moro in June, 1896, and the Moro Observer, in speaking of it, says: "It is a long time to wait for such a treat, to be sure; but a free horse should not be ridden to death." Now, I wonder that Mr. Ireland meant when he spoke about riding a free horse to death. Of course, it is not policy for the editor of the Observer to criticise the entertainment, but he should not and not understanding the arrange ment of things made a mistake in bers of the association have fooled the public once, and I think they will find that their entertainment in next June will be one of the biggest failures they have ever attende

ONE WHO ATTENDED. THE BIG SHOW.

Exhibit in The Dalles August 1st. Mr. Geo. H. Robinson, General Con-tracting Agent of the Great Wallace shows, was in the city last week arranging for the big shows, which will exhibit here on August Ist. Mr. Rob-inson, who is one of the oldest and best known agents in the circus business, having boen identified with the large shows of the country for twenty-five years past, informs the TIMES-MOUNyears past, informs the TIMES-MOUN-TAIBEER that the expenses of the Great Wallace Shows run from $3,200.00 to $4,000.00 per day, the largest part of which sum is expended in the city where they exhibit. This is a tidy figure, and in dull times like these the show should be eargely welcomed and liberally patronized by all classes of he community.

The modern "Big Circus" is an intitution peculiar to America. The old world shows are small comparatively, and the mammoth concerns we have are thoroughly characteristic of our country and our people, and even if the lion on the fence is sometimes bigger than the lion in the cage, country or those intending to teach to no man visiting the up-to-date, Three-receive instruction in the higher branches and in the approved methods he did not get his money's worth over and over again, Long may the great American circus wave, and continue to delight and dazzle the young and old with its "multitudinous monopoly o all that is magnificient and marvelious on this mundane sphere," to borrow the language of the posters.

> What an Interior Paper Says of the Facilities of This City.

The advantages which The Dalles possesses as a base of supplies for in-land merchants, and as a shipping point for stockmen and ranchers, are obvious. That city has fine shipping facilities, by the line of boats that run to Portland, and the railroad going east. And the good results shown in these facilities, are seen in the high prices which our products command in that city. While in Heppner and Pendleton, wool has been selling for from 7½ to 85 cts, it has been selling in The Dalles for from 9 to 12½cts. This this must be our trading point for some throw away this certainty of the high-est prices for our products to try experiments with other cities. For some time the Monitor advocated Heppner as a trading point because, if the new road went through, it would save 50 miles of travel. But a saving of 50 miles in hauling will not compensate for losing two or three cents a pound on wool. Merchants in The Dalles have always been very liberal with the people from the Inland Empire, and we think al-ways will be. With good roads, and high prices for our products, there is every reason for our going there to trade. If Wasco county could buy the toll bridge and make it free, the work would be completed. Toll charges eat up what little freighters are making nowadays.

Mr. Simeon Bolton, deputy county clerk, received a letter from Mr. W. J. White this afternoon, stating nothing further had been heard from Mr. Tur-ner, except what we published yesterday. Forty or fifty men were hunting him Tuesday, and at one time they heard two loud reports of a gun, and also ascertained that a man had asked for admission to Mr. Day's house about 3 o'clock that morning. It is now a week since Mr. Turner has been miss ing, and nothing has been heard directly of his whereabouts except what we published in our last issue. The commendable fraternal spirit among the Odd Fellows of Goldendale is worth. thy of emulation everywhere. Mr. Turner is a member of the order, and the search has been continued by Odd Fellows every day. They will find him lead or alive, and the motive that actuates them is simply that of fraternity. The noble order is adorned by such embership, and the three-links never had a better exemplification than in the search for Bro. Turner by the members of Alimus lodge, I. O. O. F.

The team of horses attached to the ous which takes passengers to the Umatilla House every evening from the freight depot on the arrival of the train from Heppner at 9 o'clock, last night, while being taken from the carriage at the Cosmopolitan hotel be-came frightened and ran away. When nearly opposite the Umatilia House they ran on to the switch in the rail-road track, and this broke the shoulder strap and parted them. One horse, a dark brown, followed the board walk over the bridge, and at the end broke through the railing and fell to the ground, breaking his neck and causing death instantly. The other ran up the street and arrived at the barn unharmed. The horses belong to Mr. J. H. Ferguson; but yesterday he was sick and they were driven by his brother, Mr. A P. Ferguson. They were scared at the headlight of a passing locomotive, and the one that met Cattle Rustler, Found Walla Walla. Walla Walla had a shooting bee o Tuesday afternoon, which resulted in lisaster to one of the legs of a clerk in Schwabacher's store. The cattle rus der Symes, who killed Lou Conlec near Sprague some days ago, it has been supposed, had fled to British Columbia. Tuesday the officers re-ceived an intimation that Symes was in Walla Walla and set out to find him. The sheriff finally found Symes and attempted to arrest the outlaw. Both had guns and the bullets flew ather lively for some minutes, one of them striking the Schwabacher clerk in the leg. Symes was taken by the sheriff and lodged in jail. Conlee, who was constable, had arested Symes and was conveying him across the country. Symes got the advantage and killed Conlee. He has been searched for all over the country and the officers had given up, thinking Symes was across the line. Conlee was the man who once worked for J H. Koontz of Echo.

A Strange Story. A strange story in which Seattle has an interest has come to light in con-nection with the battle of the Wilderness, through the desire of a small boy to get hold of a bird's nest. Henry F. Lowpenny, a corporal in the Thirty-second Indiana volunteers, lost his tle by the explosion of a shell. Since then Lowpenny has died, but his widow resides in this city with a mar-ried daughter. Bradley Johnson, a cousin of Lowpenny, and also ex-state chancellor of Missouri, now resides on the scene of the battle, and a few weeks ago his little son, while bird's nesting, discovered a nest built in a skeleton hand in the fork of a large maple tree. On one of the bony fingers was found a seal ring, which was recognized by Mr. Johnson as having belonged to Lowpenny, Death of Mr. J. C. Murphy, From the Antelope Herald of a late date we learn the full particulars of the death of Mr. J. C. Murphy. On July 4th in driving to the race track in company with Mrs. Minnie Glisan and Mr. Shutt, the editor of the Herald, he was thrown from the cart, susain-ing injuries which rendered him unconscious for some time; but in two hours he was able to ride home, a distance of two miles. He was not considered seriously hurt, and his family remained at Antelope for the evening exercises; but on returning home the next morning they found him unconscious, and ascertained that he had taken morphine to ease a headache from which he suffered. Antidotes were applied, but he only responded partially to their effects, and died Sunday morning at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who has ong been interested in the Armenian juestion, writes that the number of Christian murdered in Armenia by the Mohammedans within seventy-years exceeds 93,000. Under Turkish laws Christians are forbidden to carry arms, and the cruel features of the long continued slaughter have not been exag-gerated. The Armenians have been Christians for 1500 years, and their good qualities are shown by the fact that Lamartine called them the Swiss of the East, There are several thou-sand Armenians in Massachusetts and not one of them is in prison or an almshouse. Mrs. Howe hopes that civilized nations will unite to prevent further barbarities upon a worthy and industrious Christian people.

Sad Suicide at Olex.

The Fossil Journal says: Mrs. J. E. Redmond, who lived with her husband on the old Mulkey place, about three miles this side of Olex, Fourth, about 9 o'clock, and died a few minutes later, after informing her husband that she had taken the poison. She said the day before that she ex-pected to die on the 17th anniversary of her marriage, which took place on July 4th, the day she died. She had been in consumption for several years, and few there are who will be found to suffering when she became assured that no other means could save her from a lingering death. Mrs Redmond was a highly respected lady.

"One of my children had Croup. The case was attended by our physician, and was supposed to be well under control. One night I was startled by the child's hard breathing, and on going to it found it strangling. It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had become possible in spite of the medicines given, I reasoned that such remedies would be of no avail. Having part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously waited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and, in a short time, she was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved her life."

WOOL TRADE

Boats on the River Make the Dalles The Best Trading Point,

The sack press at Moody's warehouse in this city is offering great facilities for shippers to eastern markets. Mr. Hecht, of Hecht, Liebmann & Co., wool merchants of Boston, has just purchased a large lot of fleeces from Mr. Moody, which he is packing in the process lately introduced in the city. The "sack press," as it is called, is becoming quite popular, as it makes it possible to deliver the wool in Boston in the same condition as it is received from the grower without breaking the original sack, and the same rates are charged as on the com-pressed bale. Mr. J. H. Sherar, who has hitherto sent his fleeces east in round sacks, at high rates of freight, packed this year's clip with this new machine, and believes that the advantages of eastern opening and grading will be retained, while heavy freights will be avoided. Mr. Hecht is shipping by the Regulator line and the Southern Pacific Railway. This gentlemen and Mr. Moses, the largest operators in wool on the Pacific coast, are the only buyers in this market who seem to appreciate that the boat line that forced upon the railroad companies the present low rates should be entitled to patronace. The Dalles is the great wool may follow the north-west and with the presse" and the great wool may if the north-west, and, with the k press" and the D. P. & A. N. Co.'s line, affords greater facilities to place wool in the Boston market at cheap rates of trans-portation than any point in the north-west. A considerable portion of the rise in the price of wool in this city is due to the lowering of freight rates from here to the eastern market by means of the opposition line on the river, and our people are pleased to see the boat carrying their wool.

An Unbealthful Water Supply,

The water supply problem confronts the people of Pendleton. The East Oregonian says that from 25 to 75 men men and boys and dozens of Siwash Indians bathe in the waters at the head of the Byers mill race every day; and the city takes out water for use in the system, using a six-inch pipe which taps the race some distance below the place where the bathing is done. To overcome this situation the water superintendent reccommends that the supply of water for the city be secured by sinking a well below the bed of the river instead of taking it direct from the mill race where the boys and Siwashes bathe.

Good Prospects. Hon. E. B. Dufur returned last evening from a trip to the interior of the county. He has been at Wamic, Tygh, Kingsley and Dufur, and he says the county to the analysis of the a prospects for the grain harvest are very encouraging. Grasshoppers have left that portion of the county, and the effort. damage done has not been very much. He says this county is all right since the fourth of July rain, and he expects as good a crop as has been marketed for a number of years. With a fair price, and there are prospects that it will be higher than for many years past, the farmers will enjoy good times after the Valuable Mule Drowned. About noon today a fine team of gray mules were tied to the rear end of a wagon at the mouth of Mill creek, and flies becoming bothersome the animals were restless and by their movements started the vehicle. It went down into the stream dragging the mules with it, and one of them managed to get loose and swim ashore, but the other sunk to the bottom of the creek. Newell Shontell, one of the boys who escaped from the reform school at Salem on July 4, came to the sheriff's office this morning making inquiry for something to eat. The janitor, Mr. John FitzGerald, inquired his name and where he came from and ascertained that he had escaped from the Salem school. He was locked up in the jail awaiting his transfer to the institution. Shontell is an intelligent boy, apparently, and, perhaps, considers it better to be cared for at the reform school than to be allowed to roam at large and pick up a subsistence
