owners of the steamers Sarah Dixon and G. W. Shaver which ply the lower river, was in the city last night. The Mr. John Marlin left this morning for Hawaii. Mr. Marlin spent a few months on the Sandwich Islands the first of the year, and is so infatuated with the country that he has determined to make Hawaii his future home. A large search-light has been placed on the bow of the Regulator. It is of sufficient power to light the river several hundred feet in front of the boat, and will enable the vessel to proceed with greater safety during dark nights. At the time of going to-press the attraction at the bazaar was 50, more or less, of the prettiest babies in the city on exhibition as competitors for the two prizes offered by the ladies later. managing the bazaar.

Today John Darneille made final proof before the register and receiver on 160 acres of land located in sec 12, tp 1 s, r 13 e. OREGON'S CONVICTS. What it Costs to Convey Them to the

So far this year 411 men have been received at the Oregon penitentiary, and it has cost the state $21,713.88 for sheriffs' fees, guards and transportation to convey them from the different county seats to Salem. The following ummary, prepared by the secretary of state, shows the number of convicts received from each county, the number of guards accompanying the several sheriffs, and the amount paid for the same from January 14 to Dec. 1:

on an average $222 61 to get a prisoner from Lake county to the penitentiary $189.30 from Grant, $50.22 from Wasco, $16.95 from Multnomah, and $18.25 from Marion. While the expense of conveying prisoners from all of the ounties seems to be pretty high, the Marion county sheriff's bills appear to be the most unreasanable. All he has to pay is fare for himself, one guard and the prisoner from the court house in Salem to the penitentiary, and how out doubt will be one of the grandest he figures up a bill of $8.0 as actual expenses, which is all he is allowed under the law of 1895, is a mystery. full band will be something unusual, Perhaps Sheriff Knight and Secretary of State Kincaid can explain, and by upon the taxpayers of the state.

Flitting about, among and around these tastefully arranged booths was the beauty of the city-young and beautiful misses, clad in delicate raiment, that reminded one of a bevy of butterflies holding high carnival in a flower garden, sipping nature's choicest nectars. Another attractive feature was the gypsy camp. The stage had been provided with miniture fires, resembling an evergreen forest, and among the trees a tent was stretched, in which four ladies, representing gypsies, for a reasonable stipend, told the mysteries of the past, present and future connected with the lives of the visitors at their quarters.

> INDEFINITELY POSTPONED. The County Teachers' Institute Will Not be Held in The Dalles as Previously Announced.

Editor TIMES-MOUNTAINEER: Our county institute must necessarily be indefinitely postponed. Circumstances, that I could not possibly fore see and over which I have no control, have transpired to bring about this result. The date of the state association has been changed to fall on the same time we have selected. When arranging for the time of our meeting, I had no thought whatever that a state meet ing would be held at all this winter, as it is only customary to hold one each year, and one had been held last July, to make doubly sure, however, before sending out the circular letter, I wrote to the state superintendent who, in reply Nov. 30, gave me the first news of a state meeting this winter, and fixing the time for Dec. 26, 27 and 28. It was however found to be an unfortunate date as I can readily see, and changed to Jan. 1, 2 and 3. This absolutely prevents Pres. Campbell, one of our instructors, from attending the first week of our meeting which was to begin Dec. 30. Even if this could have been avoided, it was not wise to attempt holding both meetings at the same best boy under one year, Mrs. G. J. time. I suppose no one is to blame, Snow has been falling nearly all day, Ross; best girl, Mrs. J. H. Gallaghar; but in justice to myself I make the above statement.

It was a rude structure, being built out of rough logs, but it answered the purpose for which it was constructed, and many a weary immigrant, after a six months' journey, fraught with danger and privation, crossing the plains between civilization at the east and the promised realm in the sunset land, found succor at its door. It is said of Father Mesplier that no hungry man or needy immigrant family ever turned from his door empty handed. In every respect he was a true philanthropist, giving of his store to those in want, and often traveling hundreds of miles to pilot immigrants to the mission here, where supplies could be had. He lived for the benefit of his race, denied himself the luxuries and comforts afforded by metropolitan life, cast his lot with the sturdy pioneers of the frontier, continuing his labors to extend civilization among the Indians, the wild men of the west, until old age forbade further activities, and at the age of 71 passed over the dark abyss between two eternities to meet his reward in the unknown beyond. An Important Mining Decision.

The case of Simpkins vs. Savage, Josephine county, settles a very important question, viz., rights to mine its tributaries, the Applegate and Ilstreams are rich in gold, and when the sandhars therein are exposed by low water, it becomes very profitable to work them. The decision of the circuit court determines the title to these streams as Rogue river, the riparian owner takes to the thread of the river, subject to an easement in the public to use the stream for navigation. Meander lines described in the surveyor's notes or in the patent do not necessarily determine the boundary of the tract. They are run for the purpose of defining the sinuosities of the banks of the stream. The water is the real boundary. A grant from the government, without reservation, of lands on the bank of a navigable stream passes title to the unsurveyed islands lying between the main land and the center
