If there is any one thing in which The Dalles takes greater pride than another, it is the efficiency of its public schools, which are recognized to be inferior to those of no other city in the state except it be Portland. And that this efficiency shall prevail, it is evident from the increase in daily attendance, that additional school oom must be supplied in the near uture. A comparison of the average daily attendance for the four weeks ending April 17, during the past four years, which is as follows, is self-evilent proof of this condition : 896, average daily attendance.....571 1895, average daily attendance....410 1894, average daily attendance.....418

The decrease from the highest average daily attendance for the present year was 47, as compared with a decrease of 78 for the same period last year. The present buildings furnish rooms for only fifteen teachers, and the 571 in attendance give an average of 38 to each teacher, which is all they can well control, hence if the attendance increases the coming year as it has in the past, additional school buildings are an absolute necessity.
