THE BOND RESOLUTION

WASHINGTON, May 22 .- The senate has taken up the Butler anti-bond resolution by a vote of 34 to 30.

The debate took place on a decided political aspect. The most interesting feature was | M. Z. Donnell. the declaration by George, republican of Mississippi, that if the republicans would agree on a fair nonpartisan neasure, he would vote for it even inthat silver would have to be recognized in any tariff bill. Hill said if the bill became a law the alleged crime of '73 will be as nothing in camparison. It is a startling proposition and it will simply put in peril the finances of the country.

The senator spoke derisively of this elf.confessed populist measure. The present tariff law, confessedly did not yield sufficient revenue to meet the expenses of the government. In the face of this fact, vast appropriation were being made. "How then" asked Hill, "can you expect to maintain the fund for the redemption of the outstanding paper money of the
