Those who have labored long and incessantly to keep the Third Regiment. O. N. G., together and make it an effective organization, and have seen it reduced from a regiment to a pattalion; begin to feel that their labors have been in vain. They realize the fact that it is discouraging and even next to impossible to keep nilitia companies in good training unless there is something more attractive than ordinary armory drills, and it is a source of great disappointment to them that they receive the intelligence that Governor Lord has determined to conof the county down to the lowest poswart the funds that were intended to defray the expenses of an encampment the welfare of the taxpayers, the at Hood River toward paying the exvoters of Wasco county will have no penses of the campaign of the first regiment at Astoria. In 1891 the Third Regiment had an encampment, and every year since they have been promised another, but it seems that such promises were made only to be broken. This year they had every reason to believe that their encampment at Hood River would be a great seccess and would result in much good to the different companies of the batallion in perfecting the men in all discipline that is required to make the efficient soldiers, but the governor, by his decision, has deprived them of this. It begins to look as if the appropriation for maintaining the Oregon National Guard was only intended to perpetuate the organization in Western Oregon. while the militia-men of Eastern Ore-
