added the old black government horse at the Cascade Locks. It was old Black's duty to pull away the loaded boxes of earth from the derricks, and after being hitched up in the morning at his post of duty, he needed no further attention until noon. As soon as the load was ready he would start at first slowly, then as an impetus was needed to run the cars along beyond his post, he would start on the trot, slack up at the proper time, turn around with an eye on the dump, then start back at the right moment for the return trip. Keeping this up with the regularity of clock work until the noon hour, he would be ready to start on his well worn path, or else risk being run over. If the "lords of creation" had done as good work on the locks as this faithful old horse the Portland boat would whistle at our wharves tonight.

entertainment stand out prominently from ordinary theatricals. The studied purity of the whole exhibition eliminating every objection that the most exacting could raise, has made this the only theatrical attraction that the laity and clergy of all denominations attend. It is especially interesting and instructive to children, and great crowds of little ones through the matinees. They will appear at the opera house Monday and Tuesday evenings, including a matinee Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. We clip the following from an exchange: "No lover of horses can afford to miss the Equuscurriculum at the Globe Theatre this week. They will find a most wonderful exhibition of animal intelligence. There is not a dull moment from the time the horses come upon the stage until the curtain falls. Their intelligence and skill cannot be excelled."—Boston Daily Globe.
