SILVER MEN COMBINE. Fusion Electoral Ticket Placed

Representatives of the democratic and populist executive committees met with a number of prominent silver republicans in Portland during the week, and effected an arrangement successful, because only one that acts | whereby the advocates of silver can combine on an electoral ticket in this state, and all their votes can be cast for Bryan for president. The populists were allowed to name two electors, the democrats and the silver republicans one each. The choice of the populists fell upon Judge M. L. Olmstead, of Baker City, and Harry Watkins, of McMinnville. The democrats selected Hon. L. N. Butler, of Dallas, and the silver republicans E. Hofer, editor of the Salem Journal.

After long consultation among ren esentatives of the different parties, the compromise was amicably effected the gentlemen who had been pre viously nominated willingly filing their withdrawels. By this arrangement it is assured that the silver forces of the state will consolidate, and now the issues can be equarely drawn between Bryan and McKinley.

A REMARKABLE INCIDENT.

Child Falls From a Fast Moving Train The East Oregonian says that a assenger on Sunday's train tells of a emarkable incident that occurred Saturday out on the plains east of Oregon on the line of the Union Pacific. A lady was traveling on the train with a three-year-old baby. She left the child in the seat at an open window and went to the end of the car to get a drink of water. During the momentary absence of the mother, the baby climbed into the window and before it could be reached, fell out of the car, the train running at full speed. There By mail, $2 a year. 5c a copy was great excitement and the mother was frantic. The merchants and farmers of Missouri and other Middle Western states he visited are strong advocates of "sound money" but they put a different interpretation on the term than do some of the news paper writers of the day. They hold that silver is the soundest of "sound moneys" while gold is the money of appreciation. Mr. Norman says the universal opinion in sections he has visited is that Bryan will carry every state west of the Mississippi and al those south of Pennsylvania, while Indiana, Illinois' and New York are believed to be going his way, and possibly Ohio may give her vote to the supposed "business men" in this Heretofore the so-called "business men" have contented themselves with different systems of moral coercion addressed to their employes, for the purpose either of persuading or compell-

Now it seems it is proposed to adopt similar methods towards their customers, and there is to be seen in the windows and on the counters of some of the so-called "business men" flaming posters advertising the merits of Mc-Kinley and his cause, and detracting from that of Mr. Bryan.

What would we think of the merchant who would assail every man, woman and child who came into his store with a political argument in favor of his particular candidate? and what better is it to flaunt a poster of that kind in the face of every customer who comes into his store? I have alvation and actual owners of lands with ways believed in separating business in the reserve, may pass to and from from politics, and I have always their claims or property but will not patronized a gold standard or rebe allowed ito occupy or use lands publican merchant as readily as a free silver or democratic one; but it seems that these gold standard "business' men are more anxious to elect Mc-Kinley than they are to do business, or at least it is supposed that they do not want the custom of men and women who believe in free silver and who intend to vote for Mr. Bryan.

result on warfare will be a very rearkable one. Since the object of war is to kill-"to place hors de combat" is only a less crude way of putting the fact-new ways of killing infantry and cavalry will have to be devised. The chances of hitting men in the face at long distances with rifle fire, says the London Spectator, will not be good enough. But the only ways of killing effectively that will remain open will be artillery fire, close combat with boyonet and clubbed rifle-preferably the latter, as the cuirass will make th bayonet difficult to use with effectand riding men down by cavalry charges. The first of these, artillery fire, has hitherto been regarded as o comparatively little importance in the matter of killing. It is often declared indeed, that the chief effect produced by the guns is the moral effect. Though not many are killed, men do not like to be within range of artillery. Possibly, however, the effect of artillery fire could be increased. In any case, and since everything is relative, the fact of the falling off of efficiency in rifle fire must increase the importance of artillery fire.

It is obvious, however, that the chief effect of bullet-proof soldiers on th circumstances of a battle would be to increase enormously the amount of hand-to-hand fighting. But hand-tohand fighting means an advantage to the strongest and most athletic force. Now it will be seen from the bare enumeration of the changes which seem likely to follow bullet-proof soldiers that a great advantage will be given to England. Bullet-proof cuirasses will give an advantage to the nation which can only bring a small number of troops into the field. But that nation is Eng land. It will increase the importance of artillery. But this should be favor of England, for though we have not the conscription, and so cannot get nen in large quantities, we can manufacture as many guns as we choose Next, the revival of close combat ought to be in our favor, for Englishnen are certainly better at the roughand-tumble of close fighting than their neighbors. The infantry are naturally nore handy and more athletic, and the cavalry are, if not theoretically better riders, more capable horsemen. An Englishman is more likely to get his horse to do the impossible than a Herr Dowe's invention enters the region of practical warfare, the change will be in England's favor. It will give us a chance to escape being pressed to the ground by hostile mil-

In the navy, no less than in the army; the cuirass should be of enormous importance. During a sea fight a great many things will want doing under a storm of rifle fire, but will hardly be done except in one of Herr Dowe's jackets. A few bullet-proof sailors would be a godsend to a captain when he was fighting his ship against heavy right to do this thing if they wish to, odds. In the field, too, the cuirass just as they would have a right to would be of great use to artillerymen.

Since they do not have to march, but sharpshooters. In truth, there are a hundred points on which the bulletproof clothing alters all the conditions of war. It will alter, too, some of the onditions of civil life. Insurrection even more impossible than it is now.
Again, the result on small bodies of men traveling in savage counties will be very marked. When the savage cannot wound his white foe, even men so brave as the Matabeles will find re-

Possibly, however, all we have writ ten is destined to be quite beside the mark, not because of any flaw in Herr Dowe's system, but for a totally different reason. Suppose that the gun-smiths retaliate on Herr Dowe by making a gun that will send a bullet through his cuirass? In that case, the present conditions will remain. We do not say that they will, but undoubtedly they will try. Meanwhile, all we can say is that, in the great duel between attack and defense, the latter, after lying hopelessly beaten for two centuries, has revived, and appears to have given her antagonist a heavy blow. Time will show whether we have to wait fifty years or only six months for counter-stroke. GOOD-BYE TO THE SWALLOWTAILS.
