one Place to Another. ditor TIMES-MOUNTAINEER: In replying to the letter of "Sound Money Democrat," in the WEEKLY gram on pages 178, 183 and 185. And I MOUNTAINEER of August 22d, I desire to say in the first place that while I respect the frankness and apparent candor of your correspondent, and wish to meet him upon the same plain, of the local money changers, stagnant yet from my experience with gold standard advocates, I can hardly think that he would be with us if we should grand exalted ruler by the Portland be able to convince him that the free coinage of silver would be for the best interest of our common country. My experience with gold standard advocates has led me to believe that they are made up largely, if not entirely, of cial Club appointed to confer with persons whose personal interests are favored by the gold standard, and cerning the Cascade Locks, were in therefore they battle for it out of self-Portland yesterday, and will furnish a ish considerations, without regard to how it affects the great mass of citizens.

It is hoping for too much to hope that these people would be with us even if convinced; or rather, it is absolutely impossible to convince them upon the principle of human nature illustrated by the poet: "Convince a man against his will. gold out of the United States in order

He's of the same opinion still." However, it may be that "Sound Money Democrat" does not belong to this class. I hope he does not; and indeed, from the fact that he seems to be willing to give the arguments of free silver people patient consideration and to try to meet them, instead of ignoring and disregarding them, as many gold standard people do, it seems to me really possible that he is seeking in good faith to reach the truth, and that, having reached that truth, he will be willing to accept it. The chance to discuss the question in a kindly spirit with such a man is too certain. The gold in the country may rare, as well as too valuable to be lost. go to a premium over silver. But in Now, taking up the argument of the nature of things, it will not go out "Sound Money Democrat," in a kindly spirit: Will it not be obvious to one of so much general intelligence and careful reading, as is evidenced by silver. People, it is true, might take your article, that your conclusion as to their gold to the money changers, as back to a time that would entitle him effect in these two countries does not the only reason the money changers to membership in the Oregon Pio- militate against the position taken in would give them a premium would be neers, tied firmly to a post in such a my previous letter, but is a further manner as to prevent him from defend- proof of the correctness of that posi-You say: "In the year 1717 England further consideration. If you take gold out of France to buy 1874, but it is also true that if you go sweet strains of music. It is the pursilver in England, and take that silver back to France and buy more gold, and continue the process indefinitely, the result would necessarily be to make the vellow metal scarce in France, not to accumulate it there. And again, the effect would not be to enlarge the circulation of silver in England, but on the contrary, to enlarge the gold circulation there, and this as you say, is just what occurred. Then it is not clear that the disparity of the coinage ratio between England and France during this period tended to make silver scarce and gold plentiful in England and visa versa in France, and does not this page in history tend to prove the position for which I contended, that it is the disparity between the coinage ratio of different countries, and not any uniform disparity between the coinage and the commercial ratio which dismetals in different countries?

As to your proposition that the is less that 20 to 1 of gold. In considering this question, it must be remarked that these occurrences were in our earlier and weaker days, nationally, commercially and financially; and at that period in our his-United States nor the quantity of gold and silver entering into our circulation, were by any means as considerable as they now are. The drainage, therefore, of a certain amount of either gold or silver from the United States might have a very marked effect upon and yet its corresponding effect upon other countries, might be difficult to race, when dissipated among so many nore important nations.

It is not true that gold went dreulation in France in 1803, or that imetallism ceased to exist in France from 1820 to 1847, although it may be true that gold went to a premium of wo per cent at that time. It does not follow because one metal or the other goes to a premium, that therefore it ceases to circulate. On the contrary, the very fact that it is at a preminm is an absolute demonstration that it is continuing to circulate. The only difference is that incirculating at a par as before, it now circulates at a premium; and if Chevalier, or any one else, said that "gold world: and having plenty of silver, and not needing gold so badly, we might not grasp it so tightly, nor struggle to get it from other countries their gold to money changers in order to pocket their premium, and made payments exclusively in silver," that is only so in the sense that gold ceased but this can only be because our people payments exclusively in silver," that is only so in the sense that gold ceased to be the standard, and that all transactions were measured in silver. As a matter of fact, there was no considerable export of gold from France during the year you have named, and the Silver better than gold, and there able export of gold from France during the year you have named, and the Silver better than gold, and there actions were measured in silver. The object of the department at present is to establish a temporary hatchery at some point where salmon can b caught, and where the eggs can be deposited until the fish are large enough to be taken to the Clackamas hatchers for further propagation. This is only for the present season, as it is the purpose of the government to establish at least two permanent hatcheries in Eastern Oregon next year. While here Messrs. Everman and Meek will examine the different available localities for hatcheries, and will probably

The Discovery Sayed His Life. Mr. G. Cailouette, Druggist, Beavers ville, Ill., says: "To Dr.King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail. and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle dose began to get better, and after us-ing three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Blakeley & Houghtons' Drug Store.

On Friday evening of last week Jas. H. Montgomery, a photographer in Prineville, suicided by cutting his throat from ear to ear. Montgomery had been arrested on a charge of attempting to criminally assault a young lady of that city, and on the way to the justice office in charge of the constable requested to be permitted to go into a water closet. The request was granted, the constable and several others standing just outside. Presently they saw blood streaming out from under the door, and on entering the room, found Montgomery dying. He had severed both juglar veins and the wind pipe with a pocket knife. Years ago Montgomery was one of the best artists in the country, but domestic trouble drove him to drink, and for the past

Adjudged Insand

This morning Julius H. L. Ruhberg was taken before Justice J. M. Filloon and examined by Dr. Hugh Logan as to his sanity. After due examination of his mental faculties he was declared insane and committed to the asylum. Yesterday Wm. Howard found Ruhberg at the free bridge on the Deschutes devoid of clothing, and laboring under the impression that ome one was seeking to take his life. He had jumped into the river in a frantic attempt to escape his pursuers, and only by the aid of bystanders was rescued from drowning. I. O. G. T. Session
