ITEMS IN BRIEF.

(From Saturday's Daily.) Lou Morse returned on the boat this morning to Hood River.

Joe Stewart, a prominent stock raiser of Cross Keys, is in the city. Complete returns from Baker county show the majority for Bryan to be Yesterday five car loads of beef cattle were shipped from the stock yards to Troutdale.

The locks opperated perfectly yesterday, passing the boats through in 15 minutes.

Congressman Ellis is in the city, having arrived from Heppner on this morning's train. Mrs. McNulty and daughters left on the Dalles City this morning for their home near Mosier.

Mrs. E. Jensen took the boat for Hood River this morning to spend Sunday with her parents.

Snow on the hills across the river this morning reminded us of the fact that winter is close at hand.

Wheat and wool are both on the upward tendency, and we sincerely hope they will continue to rise in price.

Today Grant Mays received a band of young cattle from across the river. He will take them to his farm near Antelope.

Mrs. H. Haven left this morning for her home at Glenwood. She has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Filloon in Mrs. Dr. Stowell, who has been very successful term of school on Mill creek, and returned today to her home at Hood River. C. L. Ireland, who came in from Moro today, reports the ground having been covered with snow when he left Moro this morning. Bryan's majority in Washington, as calculated from incomplete returns from all the counties except Okanogan and Skamanie, is 10,000. W. H. Butts prides himself upon the excellent quality of the poultry he puts on the market. His chickens, geese and ducks are always the best. Colds are more prevalent among the residents of The Dalles at present than ever before. No body now-a-days is in fashion unless he can support a cold. We hear already of Baker City aspirants for the office of United States attorney, marshal, collector of customs at Portland, and for almost every other office on the list .- Democrat. Incomplete returns from the different counties of the state indicate that Me-Kinley has carried Oregon by 2000 plurality. Complete returns have been received from 22 of the 32 counties. Nature is pouring out her bounties moisture on Wasco county today. Plenty of rain has fallen to wet the ground so that farmers can begin lowing in all sections of the county. Women have taken more part in the campaign than ever before. It interesting fact that when she dictment, charged with the largeny of Kinley.

had promised to open their mills were not joking. There is no agreement however, as to how long they will keep Hereafter the D. P. & A. N. boats will leave for Portland at 8 A. M. instead of 7:30. This is made possible by the rapid transit through the locks. They pass through in 15 minutes, to three hours to transfer. The official canvass of the vote of Wasco county will not be made before sometime next Monday. The returns from all the precincts except Antalope baye been received, and when they come in County Clerk Kelsey will proceed to make the official count. The contractors at Cascade Locks deserve credit for the elegant banquet Saturday night, October 31, William Spitzer committed suicide in his room at the Central hotel, Mitchell, says the Prineville Review. Spitzer was a aboring man, and had been employed during the past summer by William Nelson as a sheep herder. About four weeks ago he quit Mr. Nelson's employ, received his pay and went to Mitchell where he entered upon a protracted 'spree" which was brought to an end the day before his death by the liquor dealers refusing to sell or give him more drink. Sunday morning, after a failure to arouse him, the hotel people went into his room and found him dead. The proper authorities were summoned, and upon investigation a phial of strichnine was found in his pocket, from which several grains had been spilled upon the floor. Strychnine was also found in a glass, partly filled with water, that stood upon the table.
