Little Chance of Favorable Action on Homestead Bill

HAS SIXTEEN WIVES

A Man by the Name of Lowe Breaks the Record as a Matrimonial Adventurer.

South America is Pleased With the Arbitration Treaty—Another Railroad Incentive—A Louisiana Election Case Settled.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The supporters of the free homestead bill fear that the measure has been killed, so far as this congress is concerned, by the action of Speaker Reed in referring to the house committee on public lands for the consideration of the senate amendments. The house committee is not strongly in favor of the plan. That committee voted to report the bill to the house by a majority of only one, when it provided only for free homes for the Oklahoma settlers.

The senate amendments greatly widen the scope of the bill, extending its provisions to all public land states and it is doubtful whether the house committee will sanction the changes. The bill's supporters fear that if the committee does not make an adverse report, it will keep the bill and take no action on it before adjournment, which course would effectually dispose of it.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW. No Noticeable Change in Trade Features Recorded This Week.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Bradstreet's review says: Except at a few Southern cities, as reported last week, wholesale merchants throughout the country report no noticeable change in trade features and few, if any, indications of improvement in the near future. Mercantile collections continue slow. There has been no revival in textile circles, except increased purchases of wool at Boston by some of the larger manufacturers.

There have been 478 business failures in the United States this week, compared with 488 last week; 412 in the second week of January, 1896; 378 in the like week of 1895, and as compared with 404 in the corresponding period of 1894.

FOR AN UNSPOKEN SPEECH. The Irish Patriot Fought for Words in Dublin's Diet.

A member of the Irish Land league was sent from Dublin to a certain district to get up a meeting and make a speech, says a foreign exchange.

On reaching the town where the meeting was to be held, the speaker met a friend, and both being genial fellows, they remained in public house and had something to drink. They began talking over old-time reminiscences, and the first thing the land league knew was that the attendant had come in to light the lamp.

"Great goodness!" he said, "I was sent down from Dublin to get up a meeting, and now I am too late."

"Oh, well, it doesn't matter," said the other.

"Yes, but it does matter," said the organizer, "I have to report to my superior that the meeting was held."

"Oh, that's all right," said his friend.

"Here, you write out a speech and I will send it to the local papers, who will print it just as if the meeting was held, and you will be all right."

Oregon Legislators Continue at the Same Tricks to Prevent the Organization of the House.

A Bad Day For Banks—Three of Them Suspended Monday—Congress is Taking Its Time, and the Little.

HAVANA, Jan. 18.—The gunboats Centinela and Relampago left Manzanillo on the night of January 16, with the object of going up the river Cauto to Fort Guamo, in compliance with the order of General Bosch. At 10 o'clock on the morning of January 17, both gunboats were near Mango landing, when an explosion of a torpedo which had been well planted in the shore, but was fired from toward the banks. At this critical moment a boat was launched from the Centinela, which rescued the men from the water.

In view of the instructions and the fact that the commander of the Centinela and nearly all of the crews of both boats had been wounded, the expedition had to return to Manzanillo. Senator Martinez, of the Relampago, was seriously wounded in the explosion, as well as Gunner Francisco Martinez and three seamen, while Engineer Antonio Masquero, Engineer Pascual and the assistant pilot and four others were slightly wounded. Six of the officers and crew were killed outright, and all of the rest received wounds of more or less severity.

On the Centinela the commander, Senior Puerto, was seriously wounded, while one of the crew was killed and Corporal Manuel Cubanas, the pilot, Assistant Engineer Martinez and six of the crew were wounded.

WITHOUT A NAVY. Kingdom of Belgium Has a Water Front. No limitation has been extended to the naval authorities of one neighboring country to participate in the festivities marking the opening of the ship canal between the North sea and the Baltic, which are to attract the armed ships of various European and American governments. That country, says the New York Sun, is Belgium, and it is peculiar among European countries having a water front from the fact that it has no navy.

This is the more remarkable when it is considered that Belgium includes within its borders one of the oldest harbors in Europe—Antwerp—which at the zenith of its commercial success, had as many as 2,000 ships. The commerce of Antwerp is still considerable, and a fair share of it is done with the United States.

When the war of 1830 culminated in the independence of Belgium from the rule of the Netherlands, the two countries were so divided that Holland had the larger share of the seacoast, and Belgium had a larger measure of the inland country. Holland retained all the colonial possessions of the two countries, and in order to keep up connection with them and protect them from hostile assaults, the navy was maintained by Holland.

Belgium, having no foreign colonies to protect, was under no obligation to maintain a navy. Holland has now a considerable navy, having 100 ships and 7,500 sailors, but Belgium is able to get along without any navy at all, though the Belgium army, on a peace footing, is 2,000 men stronger than the Dutch army, and on a war footing, has 100,000 men more.
