The grand court of the Foresters of America will be held in The Dalles on May 12th. The local court here is making arrangements for receiving the grand officers and delegates...

In spite of the fact that nothing has been sold in this section this spring to bring money into the country, collections are fair, which is good evidence that The Dalles is still doing business at the same old stand, and has money on which to operate.

Lillian Hostetter, aged 9 years, daughter of Ed. Hostetter, died at the home of her uncle, J. C. Hostetter, in this city last night. The remains will be taken to Salem tomorrow for burial by the side of her mother, who died at Salem of typhoid fever about six weeks ago.

H. S. Jones, representative from Elmore county, Idaho, to the recent legislature, and who was one of the principals in the Heitfeld bribery charges, is visiting Baker City in connection with the view of the case, and is expected to return to Portland in a few days.

The run of fish along the river continues light. At Astoria canneries are running only from one to two hours a day, and at other points on the river none of them have received enough fish to justify their steaming up.

A car load of Cream of North Carolina smoking tobacco, that was shipped from Mr. A. N. C., a few days since, consigned to Rosenfeld, Smith & Co. of Portland, passed over the O. R. & N. this morning on train No. 21.

Yesterday in mentioning the program rendered at the reception tendered Mr. and Mrs. Estlin, a mistake was made. Instead of a solo rendered by Dr. Lannenberg it should have read a duet by Mr. Young and Dr. Lannenberg.

The graduating class of the high school, eleven in all, had their annual picnic today, going down on the boat to meet the excursionists, and to show the pupils of the school who went to Cascade Locks.

The Red Men of this city are making preparations for entertaining the past sachs from Portland, who give an excursion to The Dalles on May 15. It is expected to have a brass band and to meet the excursionists, and to show them every possible courtesy.

Already the sportive trout has begun coming to the surface and the festive angler is plying his rod and fly with good results. Yesterday Ed. Burchforth and Ed. Spencer tried their luck in Five-Mile and returned with 250 speckled beauties, the former having caught 196 and the latter 54.

Billy Wiseman's many friends wondered this morning what was the cause of his change of appearance, but their curiosity was relieved by the explanation offered by Harry Wiseman, who explained that he had been out on a fishing trip, and was seriously contemplating something dreadful, taking into himself a wife, for instance.

The parties interested in the project of building an electric line from The Dalles to the bridge on Deschutes have been in correspondence with prominent electricians with reference to the matter, and have learned that a line can be successfully operated over the proposed route. Now all that is necessary is to get the capital together and begin work.

There is nothing more life-giving, invigorating, healthful or palatable than the celebrated Columbia beer, which will be placed on the market tomorrow. This beer is perfectly pure, and is a wholesome beverage for old and young, the adult and infant, and besides is a home product, manufactured in the oldest and best-known brewing establishment in Eastern Oregon, which has a sufficient quantity on hand to supply the trade until July 1.

There has been a slight change in the river the past few days, it having stood in the neighborhood of 25 feet above low water mark since last Friday. In the grazing country everything is lush and bustle just now. The sheep raisers are busy shearing, and from all accounts are getting an exceptionally fine clip of wool.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Powell, of Moro, were in the city this morning. Mrs. Powell took the boat for Portland, where she goes to have her little daughter's eyes treated.

Yesterday William Yates, the newly appointed postmaster for Hood River, took charge of the office with Miss Moore, who has been deputy postmaster for some time, as his assistant.

Antonio Bettengen, of Minnesota, is here visiting his brother, A. Bettengen, and family. Mr. Bettengen spent the winter at Los Angeles, and expects to summer on the coast in this state and Washington. He is connected with a number of banking establishments in Minnesota and Idaho, but has no business in this state.

Last week seven head of cattle, belonging to James Montgomery, who lives on Crooked river, a few miles west of Prineville, were drowned in the peculiar way. The cattle were on a high piece of ground and the waters of the river came up and surrounded the territory on which they were, thus placing them on an island. Mr. Montgomery, discovering their situation, attempted to remove them, whereupon they became frightened, and when they reached swimming water they continued to swim around until they were finally drowned, it being impossible to do anything with them.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Magee was conducted from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Smith French, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and was largely attended. Rev. J. H. Wood delivered a most impressive funeral address, dwelling at length upon the joys of a well-spent Christian life and the hope of a future reward that brightens days of the believer. He was assisted by Rev. Mr. Warner in conducting the services both at the house and at the grave. The floral offerings were most beautiful, and the last resting place of the aged lady in Sunset cemetery was given the appearance of a bed of flowers, a place inviting to the angels to come and claim the one whose soul had fled to the beyond.

The regular monthly meeting of the water commission of Dalles City was held Friday at the office of the city engineer, attended by Commissioner Cronan, Messrs. Seufert, Neilson and Peters.

The matter of loaning the water fund to individuals on real estate or personal security was brought up, and consideration was postponed until a special meeting called for Tuesday, May 4.
