TILLMAN TO THE FRONT.

Fillman introduced in the senate a resoution for the appointment of a special committee of five senators to inquire into reports of speculation in sugar stocks by senators, and as to advance information by New York speculators as to the sugar schedule of the tariff bill, and also to continue the investigation made in 1894. The resolution recites that one man is serving a sentence in jail and another was yesterday acquitted on a echnicality and provides for conducting the investigation so all questions shall bo pertinent.

Senator Frye in the chair, promptly referred the resolution to the committee on contingent expenses. Tillman was allowed to speak on the subject by unanimous consent. Tillman said the democratic members of the finance committee were under a cloud sioner Calboun considered, and a foron account of the sugar schedule of mal note to Spain drafted and placed the tariff bill of 1894. But not once did the interested observer see the ram caught unawares. The heavy horns were swung quickly on the pivot of his sinewy neck, and received the clawing of the cat with no effect whatever.

Col. Denton watched the sport with all the zest of a sportsman, and, on indications that the belligerents were secoming mutually disgusted and about to separate and disappear, he embraced a moment when the ram stood stamping his fore feet preparing to dart forward, and gave him a bulle behind the shoulder. Skies Are Produced. Observers of the gorgeous sunsets and afterglows have been most particularly struck with the immense wealth of the various shades and tints of red. Now, if the glowing colors are due to the presence of dust in the air, there must be somewhere a display of the colors complementary to the reds, because the lust acts by a selective dispersion of the

The small dust particles arrest the direct course of the rays of light and reflect them in all directions, but they principally reflect the rays of the violet end of the spectrum, while the red rays pass on almost unchecked. Overhead deep blue reigns in awe-inspiring glory. As the sun passes below the horizon and the lower stratum of air, with its larger particles of dust which reflect light, ceases to be illuminated, the depth and fullness of the blue most inensely increase. This effect is produced by the very fine particles of dust in the sky overhead being unable to scatter any colors unless those of short wave-lengths at the violet end of the spectrum. Thus we see, above, blue in its intensity without any of the red colors, says the Popular Science

The effect of an inensely-heated atmosphere in causing leath has been but little studied. Some years since," says Dr. Taylor, the eminent jurisprudent, "I was consulted in one case in which the captain of a steam vessel was charged with manslaughter for eausing a man to be lashed within a short distance of the stokehole of the furnace. The man died in a few hours, apparently from the effects of his exposure. Yet the engine rooms of steamers in the tropics have been observed to have a temperature as high as 140, and engineers after a time be come habituated to this excessive heat without appearing to suffer materially in health. In certain manufactories the body appears to acquire a power, by habit, of resisting these high temperatures; still, it has been proved that many suffer severely. In a report on the employment of children (London) it is stated that in a glass manufactory a thermometer held close to a boy's head stood at 130 degrees, and as the inspector stood near to observe the intrument his hat actually melted out of shape. Another boy had his hair singed by the heat, and said that his clothes ere sometimes singed, too, while a third worked in a temperature no less than 150 degrees. Amid this tremendous heat they carry on work which reare incessantly in motion." In the Turkish baths higher tempera
