CANNOT IMPRISON THEM. An Important Decision Affecting Nationa

National guardsmen will be interested in the following, relating to arrest of members of companies who refuse to pay fines imposed for non-attendance at drills. Last week in Oregon City Judge Hayes heard argument on the petition of Richard N. Bradley for a writ of habeas corpus to release him from serving three days in jail for failing to pay fines to the militia for non-attendance at drills. The petition was based on the grounds of technical error as to the execution issued by the justice and unconstitutionality of the statute under which the proceedings were taken. It was argued that the law violated the provisions of the constitution against imprisonment for civil debt, and against depriving a person of liberty except on a trial before a jury. The state took the ground that the legislature had a right to give to the military court of discipline the power to impose fines for infraction of discipline, and to make it the duty of the civil court to collect the fines thus imposed or punish the offenders in case of failure to collect. The court rendered a des cision granting the writ, on the ground
