

Times-Mountaineer.

SATURDAY, JULY 31, 1897

ITEMS IN BRIEF.

From Wednesday's Daily. Frank Matheny, of the Astoria Herald, is in the city.

Mrs. Capt. Wand went to Portland today for a short visit in that city.

Rev. L. Grey goes to Hood River tomorrow to visit the Lutherans of that place.

Superintendent O'Brien and Roadmaster Bellows, of the O. R. & N. are in the city.

A car load of Wasco county's choicest beef was shipped to Troutdale this morning.

A. Michael went to Portland this morning to arrange for bringing up an additional stock of furniture.

Mrs. J. W. Coston and son left today for Ilwaco to spend the remainder of the summer with her parents.

Hon. T. J. Stephenson, of Mitchell, was in the city yesterday and sold his entire clip of wool for 101 cents a pound.

Mrs. Fairfield, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. J. S. Schneek in this city, returned today to her home at Portland.

Frank Christmas and bride returned home from Portland last evening, and are at home to all their friends at the European House.

The foundation for B. Wolf's new building on Second street is laid, and carpenters will push the construction with all possible haste.

Prof. A. Adams, of Portland, and Dr. Wm. Pohl, of Astoria, delegates to the great council of Red Men, arrived in the city last night.

Mrs. Dr. Hollister and daughter, Miss Hollister, from Chicago, and Miss Wyckoff have gone to Moffet Springs for a week's camping.

Judge O. N. Denny arrived here today from Arlington where he has been since the first of the week looking after his interests in and about Arlington.

In a short time the branch store of the Great Northern Furniture store of Portland will move into a new building to be erected by B. Wolf, in the East End.

There was a larger attendance at the session of the great council of Red Men today than yesterday, a number of delegates having arrived on last night's train.

A five-year-old son of Dick Brookhouse, was kicked by a horse yesterday afternoon, and had his nose broken. The sufferer survived and was brought into town last night and placed under the care of Dr. Hollister.

Mrs. L. B. Thomas, of Coquille, Idaho, who has been visiting Mayor and Mrs. M. T. Nolan, left on the boat this morning to visit her mother in Portland. She was accompanied to the docks by Mr. and Mrs. Nolan and family.

Collins Elkins, who has just opened a general merchandise store at Lytle, in the city today, Mr. Elkins reports the farmers about Lytle in a prosperous condition, and says everything points towards good times in that section this fall.

Hugh Gourley will leave next Monday for Prineville to take charge of the Crook County Journal. Mr. Gourley is well known as a bright and able newspaper writer, that it is unnecessary to say that he will add new life to the Journal.

This morning track laying was begun on the Columbia Southern, connection being made with the O. R. & N. at Biggs. The work of grading on the new route is well under way, and everything points to the early completion of the road.

Last night the members of Wasco Tribe, No. 16, I. O. R. M., acted as hosts to the visiting Red Men from different parts of the country, and entertained them with cord and yeoman in a manner befitting the hospitality of genuine Indian braves.

Contrary to expectation, Judd Fish instead of remaining quietly at Cloud Camp, took a venturesome notion in his head last night to climb the Cascade Locks, and arrived there at 11 o'clock and remaining on the summit until midnight.

Word comes from Lewiston, Idaho, that wheat buyers were offering 65 cents a bushel for this year's crop there yesterday. The freight rates from Lewiston to Portland are about six cents bigger than from the Dalles, it seems likely the market will open at 70 or 71 cents here.

Fish and Game Protector H. D. McGuire was in the city today expecting to take part in the prosecution of many from Cascade Locks accused of violating the fish law by fishing on Sunday, but as the defendant neglected to put in an appearance as per agreement, the case was postponed.

The tin shop of Dennis Bunnell has been moved from the corner of Jefferson and Second streets to a lot next to the labor exchange building, and F. H. Rowe will begin erecting a building facing on Second street where the shop formerly stood. Mr. Rowe's new building will be a two-story structure, high and will be fitted up for a restaurant.

A. E. Negus met with a painful accident while watching some men drilling on the grade above the brewery this forenoon. A piece of steel from the head of a drill struck Mr. Negus in the right eye totally destroying the sight. The loss of the eye is a very serious one to Mr. Negus as the sight of his left eye is somewhat obscured by a film growing over it.

Rev. E. Lind, of Astoria, and Rev. Lind, of Vancouver, were in the city last evening, the guests of Rev. and Mrs. L. Grey, and left this morning for Cascade Locks where they will do missionary work for the Lutherans there. Mr. Lind has recently organized a Lutheran congregation at Goshaw, near Heppner, where a church edifice is being built that will be dedicated the fourth week in October.

From Thursday's Daily. Hon. A. A. Jayne and family went to Portland by boat today.

Frank Woodcock, proprietor of the Wamie store, was in the city today.

Mrs. G. G. Gilmore and children are visiting relatives in Multnomah county.

Mrs. Stabing went to Stevenson today to visit her daughter who is camping at that place.

Mrs. J. H. Wood and children leave for Biggs this evening to visit her sister at that place.

Billy Marders and Frank Summers returned last night from a two weeks' outing at Trout Lake.

Mrs. Joe Perry and children left last night for Umatilla county to spend a month visiting friends and relatives.

English and Belgian comets, very best imported brands, for sale by the Wasco Warehouse Co.

The O. R. & N. depot presents a handsome appearance since having received a new coat of dark red paint.

Dr. Hollister and Rev. W. C. Curtis were passengers on the boat this morning going to Moffet Springs for a day's outing.

In Justice Filloon's court this afternoon Rudolph Smith, of Cascade Locks, is on trial for violating the fish law by fishing on Sunday.

Miss Christine Nickelsen and Nettie Follen returned home yesterday from Kingsley where they have been visiting the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Norman went to Wind River today after their daughter, who has been camping there and was taken first train yesterday.

The first train load of wool this season was put out last night by the O. R. & N. line. It was a special of 24 cars and was billed over the Great Northern.

Wm. Michell and family are home from Mt. Hood. Owing to there being no guide at Cloud Camp Inn, they were unable to ascend to the summit of the mountain.

The Regulator came up last evening after having been on the lower river for a week. The Dalles City is now repaired, and will take its former place on the river making its first trip today.

GREAT COUNCIL OF RED MEN.

Matters of Importance Considered by the Legislative Body of the Order. AFTERNOON SESSION JULY 27.

The committee on distribution reported recommending that the matter of the proposed endowment feature be referred to a committee consisting of one representative from each tribe in the great reservation, and by a vote of the council action upon the report was deferred until 9 A. M. Wednesday.

The matter of representation in the next great council was taken up, and after a thorough discussion it was determined that the great council shall consist of one representative for the charter of each tribe, and one representative for each 30 members or fraction thereof over 20.

The next order of business was the selection of the place of meeting of the next great council, and by a majority vote Portland was selected.

The proposition to reduce the age limit at which a candidate may become a member from 21 to 18 years, brought forth a lengthy discussion, and consumed the greater portion of the afternoon session. It was urged by those favoring the measure that the guardian care thrown around a young man by the order would be beneficial to him, and that the initiation of a young man at that age would result in benefit to the order. Upon the vote being taken, the proposition was adopted by a handsome majority.

MORNING SESSION, JULY 28. When the great council convened at 9 o'clock it went into a committee of five to consider the plan for an endowment feature.

After due consideration of the several plans proposed, the committee agreed and recommended to the great council that the matter be referred to a special committee consisting of the following representatives: J. J. F. Kelly, Mitchell; J. B. F. Kelly, W. J. F. Kelly, Winona, No. 4; A. M. Deo, Wapato, No. 17; J. J. Englehardt, Chinook; No. 5; J. V. Lanika, Willamette, No. 6; J. J. Cole, Wacoma, No. 13; W. C. Pohl, Concomly, No. 7; G. W. Ham, Mopos, No. 1; L. M. Wason, No. 15. This committee reported recommending that the matter be left to the several tribes to prepare some plan subject to the approval of the great council of the United States. Further action was postponed until the meeting of the great council to be held in Portland next year, when final action will be taken.

AFTERNOON SESSION. Upon report of the finance committee, the per capita tax was fixed at 30 cents for the ensuing year.

Resolution of thanks was unanimously adopted and tendered to Wasco Tribe, No. 16, for the fraternal recognition accorded the great council and for the use of the wigwam.

The Astoria Frater was made the official organ of the order in this great reservation.

The following Great Chiefs were elected: Otto Schumann, of Portland; Great chief sagamore, John Michell of the Dalles; Great junior sagamore, John Anderson, of Portland; Great prophet, J. K. Carr, of Portland; Great chief of records, W. C. A. Pohl, of Astoria; Great keeper of wampum, C. J. Hyland, of Portland.

A RAILROAD ROMANCE.

The Postmaster Mitchell Won a Wife by Being Courteous to a Lady Passenger. From the Freeport, Ill., Democrat, of July 19th, is gleaned the following account of a little Western romance that has no doubt ever resulted in a happy marriage.

In the summer of 1891, A. D. Looney, on his way to the Pacific coast from Chicago, passed through Freeport on an Illinois Central train, which was boarded at the station by a number of school teachers who had been attending a summer normal school. Among the number was Miss Lena Schlarfer, the car was crowded, and Miss Schlarfer remained standing when the train pulled out; Looney offered to take her seat with her, and she accepted the courtesy with a kindly "thank you."

A conversation followed, during which the young people discovered that they had congenial tastes, and which was made easier by the fact that Mr. Looney had also been a teacher in his native state of Tennessee, and at the time the young lady's home was reached they were well acquainted.

Mr. Looney kept the picture of the pretty, brown-eyed girl in his mind all during his long ride across the continent, and when he reached his destination he wrote her, telling of his safe arrival, and other things. The girl replied, and the correspondence began in that way. He has since been corresponding with her, and the first intimation Mrs. Lieblen had of anything being wrong she noticed sparks falling in the air. Rushing out of the house she discovered the entire upper portion of the building missing within a few moments the building collapsed. The house was a heap of ruins before Mr. Lieblen reached it, and all the contents a total loss. Their provisions, bedding and clothing were all destroyed, and no money was saved.

There was no insurance on the building or contents, and the total loss is estimated to be $2,000.

Thursday morning's train carried Dr. Siddall and John Parrott to Portland, on their way to the Clondyke mines. At Portland they take passage on the Steamer Eldon for the northern regions, and will remain an immense wealth hunting about in their midst until they reach Chicago, when their first real hardship will begin. They expect to make the trip across the Chitlat pass on foot and hope to get there comfortably housed in winter quarters before severe weather sets in. Dr. Siddall took with him a full set of dental tools, and expects to practice his profession, while Mr. Parrott will devote his time to prospecting for gold.

Land Transfers. I. N. Sargent and wife to F. A. Sargent, $4,500; I. N. Sargent, $1,000; F. A. Sargent, $1,000; L. E. Morse to A. P. Morse, $1,000; L. E. Morse, $1,000; A. B. Jones and wife to J. M. Denton, $1,000; J. M. Denton, $1,000; John H. Gerdes and wife to Geo. A. Liebe, $1,000; Geo. A. Liebe, $1,000; Geo. A. Liebe, $1,000; Geo. A. Liebe, $1,000.

No-To Be For Fifty Cents. Guaranteed tobacco habit cure, makes weak men strong. Blood pure. 50c. All druggists.

ALASKAN BEVERAGES.

Red Hot Stuff is Dispensed in the Northern Camps. The sale of liquor in Alaska is allowed only under the executive order, for medicinal, mechanical or scientific purposes by persons who obtain a special permit from the governor, and the giving of a bond that he will not sell intoxicants to people unknown to him or in the habit of becoming intoxicated. The laws are very restrictive, but have not been enforced, and this is one of the objects the new administration has in view. The collector of customs—the enforcement of the regulations. The whisky they make up on the Yukon is both fearful and wonderful. Young sports who want to be real devils and to call sounders and all that sort of thing, have no conception of what a concoction of brown sugar and watery, weak alcohol is. In a Dawson dance hall—a Portland boy is authorized by this statement—you can get a dance from four bits to $3, and the accompanying drink of poison costs 75 cents, so that the pace is a warm one. Collector of Customs Ivey will find this Alaska whisky interesting to deal with. It is the only one of its kind. One story goes that the Louisa Ten whisky is the world beater for strength. When you call for a drink, it is poured out for you and beside the glass there is a whisky broom.

After you open your stuff you take your broom and retire to a corner of the barroom where there is a sawdust bed. There you lie down and roll around in a contented state for five minutes, after which you arise, brush your face with the whisky broom, and go away for some fresh air, and your thirst overcomes your temperance scruples again.—Telegram.

In a Dilemma. While other papers bob up and bob down in Pendleton, the East Oregonian pursues the even tenor of its way, takes all the abuse heaped upon it good naturedly, and accepts the credit of everything charged against it. Here is the way it views the present situation of the Republic with the view of doing up the Tribune. Between those friends and their accusations we are at a loss to know "where we are at."

The Yukon River. As to access to the Clondyke region, the ultimate expectation must be that this will be by way of the Yukon, a wonderful river of which little is known except that it is undoubtedly second on the continent only to the Mississippi. The head of its delta is more than 100 miles from the sea, and its total width at the sea over 70 miles. Efforts for surveys of the delta of the river have never come to anything, but it appears that only one of the mouths is navigable, and is called the Kuskawm. Its shallowest part admits of vessels drawing 15 feet. Above this shallow place there is a depth of four or five fathoms to the mouth of Anvik river, 300 miles, and in general way we know that the river is navigable for about three-fourths of the 2000 miles of length. Several of its tributaries are also navigable.

Both Gold and Fish. Gold may not be, after all, the chief wealth of the Yukon country. The salmon has the curious faculty of adapting itself to the size of the stream, it frequents. In the Sacramento river its average is 16 pounds. In the Columbia it is 20 to 22 pounds in weight, about 25 pounds. In the Yukon the salmon averages 40 pounds. Fish have been taken weighing 120 pounds, while the largest Columbia catch was a little over 80 pounds. If salmon-catching could prove profitable as a profitable industry on the great river of the north, the wealth taken from its water might easily exceed that washed out of its sands. The Columbia river has yielded some $70,000,000 in fish products, and its doubtful waters yield $100,000,000 and its tributaries will ever produce that amount in gold.—Oregonian.

Another Crook County Tragedy. A letter dated at Prineville, July 23, states that news had just reached that place of the fatal stabbing of Horace Cadle, youngest son of Jack Cadle, of Prineville, at a dance on Beaver creek on the night of the 24th. It appears that Cadle was attending a dance at the Beaver creek school house, and got into a fight with a stranger outside the building. Cadle knocked his antagonist down, when the latter sprang to his feet, drew a knife and plunged it into Cadle's head. When Cadle fell he struck against a building so that the knife was driven into his head. Cadle was about 22 years of age, and had resided at Prineville some eight or ten years.

Carlisle Measles is Dead. After a lingering illness of nearly five years with consumption, Carlisle M. Measles died at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Victoria Measles, on 24th street, Tuesday. Deceased was born at the old Catholic mission in this city 38 years ago, and has resided here all his life. He was an unassuming, pleasant gentleman, highly respected by all his acquaintances. Besides his aged father, Theodore Measles, he leaves four brothers and four sisters. The funeral took place from the Catholic church Friday forenoon.

An Unfortunate Accident. Thursday morning George Keller, proprietor of the Oregon Market, was preparing to send his team to the slaughter house to get meat, and climbed on a barrel to get a meat cover off a high chest. The barrel slipped from under him in some manner throwing him to the floor, and he lay with all his weight upon his right foot, wrenching his leg in a way that both bones were broken above the ankle. Mr. Keller was taken at once to his residence, where Dr. Doane reduced the fracture, and the suffering was made as comfortable as circumstances would permit.

MARRIED. CHIRSMAN-BARZEE—At the residence of the contracting minister, Rev. Edward Locke, in Portland, on Monday July 28th, Mr. Frank Curdman, of this city, and Miss Victoria Barzee, of Astoria, were united in marriage.

Only a few invited guests were present, and after the ceremony was solemnized Mr. and Mrs. Curdman departed for their home in The Dalles.

ALASKAN BEVERAGES.

Red Hot Stuff is Dispensed in the Northern Camps. The sale of liquor in Alaska is allowed only under the executive order, for medicinal, mechanical or scientific purposes by persons who obtain a special permit from the governor, and the giving of a bond that he will not sell intoxicants to people unknown to him or in the habit of becoming intoxicated. The laws are very restrictive, but have not been enforced, and this is one of the objects the new administration has in view. The collector of customs—the enforcement of the regulations. The whisky they make up on the Yukon is both fearful and wonderful. Young sports who want to be real devils and to call sounders and all that sort of thing, have no conception of what a concoction of brown sugar and watery, weak alcohol is. In a Dawson dance hall—a Portland boy is authorized by this statement—you can get a dance from four bits to $3, and the accompanying drink of poison costs 75 cents, so that the pace is a warm one. Collector of Customs Ivey will find this Alaska whisky interesting to deal with. It is the only one of its kind. One story goes that the Louisa Ten whisky is the world beater for strength. When you call for a drink, it is poured out for you and beside the glass there is a whisky broom.

After you open your stuff you take your broom and retire to a corner of the barroom where there is a sawdust bed. There you lie down and roll around in a contented state for five minutes, after which you arise, brush your face with the whisky broom, and go away for some fresh air, and your thirst overcomes your temperance scruples again.—Telegram.

In a Dilemma. While other papers bob up and bob down in Pendleton, the East Oregonian pursues the even tenor of its way, takes all the abuse heaped upon it good naturedly, and accepts the credit of everything charged against it. Here is the way it views the present situation of the Republic with the view of doing up the Tribune. Between those friends and their accusations we are at a loss to know "where we are at."

The Yukon River. As to access to the Clondyke region, the ultimate expectation must be that this will be by way of the Yukon, a wonderful river of which little is known except that it is undoubtedly second on the continent only to the Mississippi. The head of its delta is more than 100 miles from the sea, and its total width at the sea over 70 miles. Efforts for surveys of the delta of the river have never come to anything, but it appears that only one of the mouths is navigable, and is called the Kuskawm. Its shallowest part admits of vessels drawing 15 feet. Above this shallow place there is a depth of four or five fathoms to the mouth of Anvik river, 300 miles, and in general way we know that the river is navigable for about three-fourths of the 2000 miles of length. Several of its tributaries are also navigable.

Both Gold and Fish. Gold may not be, after all, the chief wealth of the Yukon country. The salmon has the curious faculty of adapting itself to the size of the stream, it frequents. In the Sacramento river its average is 16 pounds. In the Columbia it is 20 to 22 pounds in weight, about 25 pounds. In the Yukon the salmon averages 40 pounds. Fish have been taken weighing 120 pounds, while the largest Columbia catch was a little over 80 pounds. If salmon-catching could prove profitable as a profitable industry on the great river of the north, the wealth taken from its water might easily exceed that washed out of its sands. The Columbia river has yielded some $70,000,000 in fish products, and its doubtful waters yield $100,000,000 and its tributaries will ever produce that amount in gold.—Oregonian.

Another Crook County Tragedy. A letter dated at Prineville, July 23, states that news had just reached that place of the fatal stabbing of Horace Cadle, youngest son of Jack Cadle, of Prineville, at a dance on Beaver creek on the night of the 24th. It appears that Cadle was attending a dance at the Beaver creek school house, and got into a fight with a stranger outside the building. Cadle knocked his antagonist down, when the latter sprang to his feet, drew a knife and plunged it into Cadle's head. When Cadle fell he struck against a building so that the knife was driven into his head. Cadle was about 22 years of age, and had resided at Prineville some eight or ten years.

Carlisle Measles is Dead. After a lingering illness of nearly five years with consumption, Carlisle M. Measles died at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Victoria Measles, on 24th street, Tuesday. Deceased was born at the old Catholic mission in this city 38 years ago, and has resided here all his life. He was an unassuming, pleasant gentleman, highly respected by all his acquaintances. Besides his aged father, Theodore Measles, he leaves four brothers and four sisters. The funeral took place from the Catholic church Friday forenoon.

An Unfortunate Accident. Thursday morning George Keller, proprietor of the Oregon Market, was preparing to send his team to the slaughter house to get meat, and climbed on a barrel to get a meat cover off a high chest. The barrel slipped from under him in some manner throwing him to the floor, and he lay with all his weight upon his right foot, wrenching his leg in a way that both bones were broken above the ankle. Mr. Keller was taken at once to his residence, where Dr. Doane reduced the fracture, and the suffering was made as comfortable as circumstances would permit.

MARRIED. CHIRSMAN-BARZEE—At the residence of the contracting minister, Rev. Edward Locke, in Portland, on Monday July 28th, Mr. Frank Curdman, of this city, and Miss Victoria Barzee, of Astoria, were united in marriage.

Only a few invited guests were present, and after the ceremony was solemnized Mr. and Mrs. Curdman departed for their home in The Dalles.

ALASKAN BEVERAGES.

Red Hot Stuff is Dispensed in the Northern Camps. The sale of liquor in Alaska is allowed only under the executive order, for medicinal, mechanical or scientific purposes by persons who obtain a special permit from the governor, and the giving of a bond that he will not sell intoxicants to people unknown to him or in the habit of becoming intoxicated. The laws are very restrictive, but have not been enforced, and this is one of the objects the new administration has in view. The collector of customs—the enforcement of the regulations. The whisky they make up on the Yukon is both fearful and wonderful. Young sports who want to be real devils and to call sounders and all that sort of thing, have no conception of what a concoction of brown sugar and watery, weak alcohol is. In a Dawson dance hall—a Portland boy is authorized by this statement—you can get a dance from four bits to $3, and the accompanying drink of poison costs 75 cents, so that the pace is a warm one. Collector of Customs Ivey will find this Alaska whisky interesting to deal with. It is the only one of its kind. One story goes that the Louisa Ten whisky is the world beater for strength. When you call for a drink, it is poured out for you and beside the glass there is a whisky broom.

After you open your stuff you take your broom and retire to a corner of the barroom where there is a sawdust bed. There you lie down and roll around in a contented state for five minutes, after which you arise, brush your face with the whisky broom, and go away for some fresh air, and your thirst overcomes your temperance scruples again.—Telegram.

In a Dilemma. While other papers bob up and bob down in Pendleton, the East Oregonian pursues the even tenor of its way, takes all the abuse heaped upon it good naturedly, and accepts the credit of everything charged against it. Here is the way it views the present situation of the Republic with the view of doing up the Tribune. Between those friends and their accusations we are at a loss to know "where we are at."

The Yukon River. As to access to the Clondyke region, the ultimate expectation must be that this will be by way of the Yukon, a wonderful river of which little is known except that it is undoubtedly second on the continent only to the Mississippi. The head of its delta is more than 100 miles from the sea, and its total width at the sea over 70 miles. Efforts for surveys of the delta of the river have never come to anything, but it appears that only one of the mouths is navigable, and is called the Kuskawm. Its shallowest part admits of vessels drawing 15 feet. Above this shallow place there is a depth of four or five fathoms to the mouth of Anvik river, 300 miles, and in general way we know that the river is navigable for about three-fourths of the 2000 miles of length. Several of its tributaries are also navigable.

Both Gold and Fish. Gold may not be, after all, the chief wealth of the Yukon country. The salmon has the curious faculty of adapting itself to the size of the stream, it frequents. In the Sacramento river its average is 16 pounds. In the Columbia it is 20 to 22 pounds in weight, about 25 pounds. In the Yukon the salmon averages 40 pounds. Fish have been taken weighing 120 pounds, while the largest Columbia catch was a little over 80 pounds. If salmon-catching could prove profitable as a profitable industry on the great river of the north, the wealth taken from its water might easily exceed that washed out of its sands. The Columbia river has yielded some $70,000,000 in fish products, and its doubtful waters yield $100,000,000 and its tributaries will ever produce that amount in gold.—Oregonian.

Another Crook County Tragedy. A letter dated at Prineville, July 23, states that news had just reached that place of the fatal stabbing of Horace Cadle, youngest son of Jack Cadle, of Prineville, at a dance on Beaver creek on the night of the 24th. It appears that Cadle was attending a dance at the Beaver creek school house, and got into a fight with a stranger outside the building. Cadle knocked his antagonist down, when the latter sprang to his feet, drew a knife and plunged it into Cadle's head. When Cadle fell he struck against a building so that the knife was driven into his head. Cadle was about 22 years of age, and had resided at Prineville some eight or ten years.

Carlisle Measles is Dead. After a lingering illness of nearly five years with consumption, Carlisle M. Measles died at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Victoria Measles, on 24th street, Tuesday. Deceased was born at the old Catholic mission in this city 38 years ago, and has resided here all his life. He was an unassuming, pleasant gentleman, highly respected by all his acquaintances. Besides his aged father, Theodore Measles, he leaves four brothers and four sisters. The funeral took place from the Catholic church Friday forenoon.

An Unfortunate Accident. Thursday morning George Keller, proprietor of the Oregon Market, was preparing to send his team to the slaughter house to get meat, and climbed on a barrel to get a meat cover off a high chest. The barrel slipped from under him in some manner throwing him to the floor, and he lay with all his weight upon his right foot, wrenching his leg in a way that both bones were broken above the ankle. Mr. Keller was taken at once to his residence, where Dr. Doane reduced the fracture, and the suffering was made as comfortable as circumstances would permit.

MARRIED. CHIRSMAN-BARZEE—At the residence of the contracting minister, Rev. Edward Locke, in Portland, on Monday July 28th, Mr. Frank Curdman, of this city, and Miss Victoria Barzee, of Astoria, were united in marriage.

Only a few invited guests were present, and after the ceremony was solemnized Mr. and Mrs. Curdman departed for their home in The Dalles.

ALASKAN BEVERAGES.

Red Hot Stuff is Dispensed in the Northern Camps. The sale of liquor in Alaska is allowed only under the executive order, for medicinal, mechanical or scientific purposes by persons who obtain a special permit from the governor, and the giving of a bond that he will not sell intoxicants to people unknown to him or in the habit of becoming intoxicated. The laws are very restrictive, but have not been enforced, and this is one of the objects the new administration has in view. The collector of customs—the enforcement of the regulations. The whisky they make up on the Yukon is both fearful and wonderful. Young sports who want to be real devils and to call sounders and all that sort of thing, have no conception of what a concoction of brown sugar and watery, weak alcohol is. In a Dawson dance hall—a Portland boy is authorized by this statement—you can get a dance from four bits to $3, and the accompanying drink of poison costs 75 cents, so that the pace is a warm one. Collector of Customs Ivey will find this Alaska whisky interesting to deal with. It is the only one of its kind. One story goes that the Louisa Ten whisky is the world beater for strength. When you call for a drink, it is poured out for you and beside the glass there is a whisky broom.

After you open your stuff you take your broom and retire to a corner of the barroom where there is a sawdust bed. There you lie down and roll around in a contented state for five minutes, after which you arise, brush your face with the whisky broom, and go away for some fresh air, and your thirst overcomes your temperance scruples again.—Telegram.

In a Dilemma. While other papers bob up and bob down in Pendleton, the East Oregonian pursues the even tenor of its way, takes all the abuse heaped upon it good naturedly, and accepts the credit of everything charged against it. Here is the way it views the present situation of the Republic with the view of doing up the Tribune. Between those friends and their accusations we are at a loss to know "where we are at."

The Yukon River. As to access to the Clondyke region, the ultimate expectation must be that this will be by way of the Yukon, a wonderful river of which little is known except that it is undoubtedly second on the continent only to the Mississippi. The head of its delta is more than 100 miles from the sea, and its total width at the sea over 70 miles. Efforts for surveys of the delta of the river have never come to anything, but it appears that only one of the mouths is navigable, and is called the Kuskawm. Its shallowest part admits of vessels drawing 15 feet. Above this shallow place there is a depth of four or five fathoms to the mouth of Anvik river, 300 miles, and in general way we know that the river is navigable for about three-fourths of the 2000 miles of length. Several of its tributaries are also navigable.

Both Gold and Fish. Gold may not be, after all, the chief wealth of the Yukon country. The salmon has the curious faculty of adapting itself to the size of the stream, it frequents. In the Sacramento river its average is 16 pounds. In the Columbia it is 20 to 22 pounds in weight, about 25 pounds. In the Yukon the salmon averages 40 pounds. Fish have been taken weighing 120 pounds, while the largest Columbia catch was a little over 80 pounds. If salmon-catching could prove profitable as a profitable industry on the great river of the north, the wealth taken from its water might easily exceed that washed out of its sands. The Columbia river has yielded some $70,000,000 in fish products, and its doubtful waters yield $100,000,000 and its tributaries will ever produce that amount in gold.—Oregonian.

Another Crook County Tragedy. A letter dated at Prineville, July 23, states that news had just reached that place of the fatal stabbing of Horace Cadle, youngest son of Jack Cadle, of Prineville, at a dance on Beaver creek on the night of the 24th. It appears that Cadle was attending a dance at the Beaver creek school house, and got into a fight with a stranger outside the building. Cadle knocked his antagonist down, when the latter sprang to his feet, drew a knife and plunged it into Cadle's head. When Cadle fell he struck against a building so that the knife was driven into his head. Cadle was about 22 years of age, and had resided at Prineville some eight or ten years.

Carlisle Measles is Dead. After a lingering illness of nearly five years with consumption, Carlisle M. Measles died at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Victoria Measles, on 24th street, Tuesday. Deceased was born at the old Catholic mission in this city 38 years ago, and has resided here all his life. He was an unassuming, pleasant gentleman, highly respected by all his acquaintances. Besides his aged father, Theodore Measles, he leaves four brothers and four sisters. The funeral took place from the Catholic church Friday forenoon.

An Unfortunate Accident. Thursday morning George Keller, proprietor of the Oregon Market, was preparing to send his team to the slaughter house to get meat, and climbed on a barrel to get a meat cover off a high chest. The barrel slipped from under him in some manner throwing him to the floor, and he lay with all his weight upon his right foot, wrenching his leg in a way that both bones were broken above the ankle. Mr. Keller was taken at once to his residence, where Dr. Doane reduced the fracture, and the suffering was made as comfortable as circumstances would permit.

MARRIED. CHIRSMAN-BARZEE—At the residence of the contracting minister, Rev. Edward Locke, in Portland, on Monday July 28th, Mr. Frank Curdman, of this city, and Miss Victoria Barzee, of Astoria, were united in marriage.

Only a few invited guests were present, and after the ceremony was solemnized Mr. and Mrs. Curdman departed for their home in The Dalles.

Special Attractions in WARM WEATHER WEARABLES. The balance, about Fifteen Suits, of our stock of Men's Summer Suits TO CLOSE AT 50c on the Dollar. Just one-half the regular price. Only fifteen suits left. Sizes from 35 to 47. We sold seventy-five suits at the former advertised sale, July 21; therefore do not delay, but make your selection today. $10 Suits for $5. $12.75 Suits for $6.38. $15 Suits for $7.50. MUSLIN UNDERWEAR. Of the good kind, to close at reductions that astonish. 40c garments for... 20c 50c garments for... 30c