Passenger Train Was Late. DENVER, Sept. 10 .- 6 A. M .- Up to this hour but little information has been received by the Bio Grande neople here of the Newcastle disaster. The number of deaths by the collision is variously estimated at from 35 to 40 persons. The passenger train which collided with the east-bound stock train, was known as the Rio Grande and Pacific coast flyer, and at the time of the collision it was going at an unusually high rate of speed in order to make up an hour's time. The trains came together with a crash, the stock train completely telescoping the passenger and scattering the passengers and its own freight in all directions.

To add to the horror of the situation the trains took fire, and it is impossible to even approximate at this hou the number of victims. Numbers are missing who are supposed to be in the ruins of the cars.

NORTH YAHIMA, Wash., Sept. 10 .-Coroner Taggard has returned from the Horse Heaven country, where he held an inquest on the body of Clarinda Scritchfield, a bandsome girl of 16 years, who committed suicide Tuesday because the course of true lave failed to run smoothly.

She was cooking for a threshing crew on the farm of Hans Smith, where she was being courted by two men employed there. She had a preference for one, but was not disposed to relinquish the attention of the other, This resulted in a quarrel between the lovers, and when the estrangement Scills Emulsion took place she borrowed a revolver from one of the orew, making a plea that she needed it for protection, and other, those who remained unhurt stamneded. The men went down hefore the storm of bullets like tempins. and the groans of the dying and wounded filled the air. Martin Roski, an intelligent Hungarlan from Mount Pleasant, who was shot in the arm, was seen by a reporter, and gave this version of the affair:

"We were going along the road to Latimer, and the deputies were lined across the road, barring our passage. We tried to go through them, and did not attempt to hit or molest them when they fired upon us. We ran, but they kent on shooting at us while we ran. It is all their fault." Warrants have been issued for arrest of Sheriff Martin and the deputies who took part in the shooting, but they have taken refuge in the camps of the state militia that has been called to Hazelton by Governor Hastings.

General Loe, say his friends, will epresent to the president that the insurgents are now on top and will certainly achieve their own salvation without assistance.

General Lee believes Spain has los the island beyond recovery. Under the circumstances, the insurgents would refuse autonomy without besita tion, and they have already practically achieved their independence. He will inform the president that the insurgents have improved the rainy season to equip themselves better than ever before, and that Spain, on the other hand, has suffered greatly from disease
