AN EXPECTED FAILURE.

In justice to President McKinley, it must be said that he made an effort to fulfill the pledges of his party for international bimetalism, by sending a commission to Europe to confer with the leading uations and sue for a conference. But their mission was a failure, as all clear minded people believed it would be. An international monetary agreement without the concurrence of England would be useless, and this, nearly everybody was satisfied could not be obtained, for the simple reason that at present it is not to England's interest to have any money standard but gold throughout agent for the J. K. Gill Company, of the world. there was not evidence enough to con-It was folly to send a commission to that nation to plead for bimetalism, and the mission of Messrs. Wolcott Stevenson and Paine could result in nothing but failure. It was almost a crime do not stand for any form of foregone conclusion that England would not even consent to the opening of the India mints, and it was certain that neither Germany nor France would enter into an international monetary agreement without concessions from Great Britain, hence so far as any beneficial results were concerned, they could not be accomplished, consequently nobody is disappointed at the failure. There is only one way by which bimetalism will ever be accomplished and that is by independent action. One nation at, a time must adopt a double standard, and others will follow.

THE SUGAR INDUSTRY.

There are many indications that within the next few years sugar making is destined to become a very important feature in the industrial and commercial questions of the United States. And as cane brakes of the South are insufficient to anywhere near supply the demand, the beet must become the article from which our sugar is to be made. Past unsatisfactory conditions of agriculture, our present enormous and increasing importations of sugar and the legislation by which the present administration is attempting to foster sugar manufac ture, render the question of beet farming one of unusual interest.
