Burned to Death.

The five-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ballance, who live near Long Creek, met with a terrible death by burning last Saturday evening. Mr. Ballance was away from home freighting on the road from Pendleton, and Mrs. dallance had left her three daughters, aged respectively 8, 5, and 3 years, at the house while she went to the barn to sailk the cows. Soon she heard screams, and saw her eldest daughter running toward her, crying, "sister is burding up." With all possible haste the mother rushed to the house, to find her little daughter wrapt in flames. She removed its clothing as rapidly as possible, but not ustil its hands and body were burned in a most shocking manuer, its little hands being burned almost to a crisp in its frantic efforts to extinguish the flames. Medical aid was sent for. lieve the little one's sufferings, but notwithstanding all this, at 8 o'clock Sunday morning it died in great agony.

CANYON CITY'S GOLD MINE Continues to Rival Klondike

The more development work done is the Great Northern mine near Canyon City, the more evident it is that the 'mother lode" of that once rich placer camp has been found. The Canyon City news says of the mine: Wednesday of last week was the banner day in the Great Northern mine near town. The News has already mentioned the $792 nugget taken out in the forenoon of that day. In the afternoon there was taken out a large quantity of gold that was sacked up and not washed. The estimated value of Wednesday's yield was $1,500. The nine gallons of snow water that Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Colver arrived had been prepared was all used up, and no gold was washed out on Thursday. Friday's washings amounted to $228 and some cents, while the yield of Saturday footed up a little over $398. On Monday a couple of pans yielded $250, after which the Great Northern's owner announced a temporary shutdown. A cessation of work in the Great Northern pay streak at this time would seem remarkable were the fact not explained that the pay streak extends downward as well as longitudinally, and as it is growing richer and better toward the center of the earth in that direction. To accomplish this he was compelled to abandon work in the pit until he could sink a perpendicular shaft and erect a windlass to hoist the rich ore as well as the rock on the building fund, viz: to be removed, to the surface. He is having this work done and in the > Work is also progressing in the tunnel which is being driven in toward the ledge. R. B. Clayton has charge of the tunnel, and the boys are making very good headway. L. Bowen is engaged in burning a pit of charcoal. As soon as this is finished so that there will be plenty of fuel for the blacksmith shop an addition to the tunnel crew will be made and work will progress much more rapidly. The length of the tunnel in order to cross-cut the ledge will be about 150 feet. Only about thirty feet of this is completed. and many rich stringers or seams of quartz have been encountered already. It will take at least thirty days longer to complete the tunnel, but the shaft and hoist will be in readiness for work to be resumed on the pay seam

The mortgage for the issuance of the first mortgage bonds of the company has been flied for record in Benton county. It bears the date of January 26, 1898, and is made in favor of the Central Trust company, of New York. It covers railroad lines and appurtanences, constructed as follows: Beginning at a point on Yaquina line between Oregon and Idaho at or near Snake river in Malkeur county, and from a suitable point or junction with said first named line east of the summit of the Cascade range, in a southerly direction by some convenient route to the boundary line between the states of Oregon and California, in Klamath or Lake county, together with 141 miles of telegraph line from Yaquina to Detroit, and also all railroad equipment. The instrument covers all railroad lines constructed or acquired until such railway shall amount in the agregate to 750 miles.

The aggregate amount to be issued, it is stipulated, shall not exceed $11,-250,000, in first-mortgage bonds, of $1,000 each. When these bonds are floated Mr.

Hammond will be in position to push the work of construction toward the eastern boundary of the state, through the Princyille country. The Dalles has more to fear from this road than any that is now proposed.

Speculated at the Right Place,

Ole Anderson, formerly of Hay Creek, has had an experience going to Klondike he will not spon forget. By hard work and economy be had saved $600 berding sheep, and when the Klondike fever permeated the air last winter he was seized with the malady, and concluded he was wasting time pursuing the ordinary course of getting a fortune, so he would bie away to Klondike and make a fortune digging yellow nuggets from the auriferous banks of Yukon. With his $600 securely sewed in his pocket he started for the land of promised wealth. but he only got as far as Portland. There he embarked in "mining" and he soon mined what wealth he had out of his pocket and into another's. He struck Klondike, or rather it struck him just as it will thousands of others, though he was fortunate in not getting farther than the bounds of civilization before his accumulations vanished. Thousands of others will get to Dawson City before they get broke, and the sufferings they will endure remain yet to be told. He may consider himself fortunate at not having gone beyond Portland to do his "mining."
