NEW YORK, April 15 .- A World special from Washington says: The president's present intention is to give his act of war in taking possession of Cuba a humanitarian aspect. He proposes to send merchant vessels oaded with medicine, food and clothing for the starving Cubans to Havana and Matanzas. These vessels will be accompanied by a fleet of 20 warships and by transports carrying regular United States Troops. They will land peaceably and take possession of the fortified towns, unless Spain forces battle on them. If Spain fires the first shot the battleships Indiana and Iowa, and the monitors Puritan, Terror and Amphitrite will instantly begin the bombardment of Havana with their 12 and 13inch guns. How long the two-centuryold fortifications of Havana, with their 17th-century muzzle loading cannon, will stand against the 68-ton guns of Captain Sampson's fleet, is an interesting question.

CHICAGO, April 17 .- The Chronicle's Washington correspondent sends the following special: The announcement late last evening that Theodore Roosevelt had resigned his position as assistant secretary of the navy to become an aid on general Lee's staff, created a sensation in official circles. Roosevelt was moved to resign for two easons. One is that he is the only man in the administration who has red blood in his veins. The other is that Roosevelt is very much ashamed of his chief, the secretary of the navy. Secretary Long is an exceedingly timid, cautious man, while Roosevelt s bluff and frank.

Several times since the Cuban situation became critical, Roosevelt has talked very emphatically about the way things were being conducted in the navy department, and it was reported at one time that his resignation had been called for. The report proved to be incorrect, but it has been plain for some weeks that Roosevelt was not satisfied with his position. While General Lee was here a few days ago, it was officially agreed that he would raise a brigade of Virginia volunteers, the command of which would be given to him. The idea was first suggested that an act of congress second thought of the extremists, who be passed authorizing the president to necessary issue with the program of ular army, but the Virginian said he Their battery will consist of 10 six-Cuban intervention framed by the preferred to be brigadier-general of inch guns, five to a broadside, and volunteers, and the only request he they will be equipped with a secondmade after that was that his brigade ary battery of breech-loading rifles. should be the first American troops to

NOSEBLEED.

What to Do for This Very Annoying Affiction.
Pliny regarded nosebleed as one of the distinctive characteristics of the human race, for he said that "man is animal when the arteries or ing cards. The entrance of a occurring without any apparent cause is seldom, if ever, seen in animals. The reason for this human peculiarity is that the membrane lining the nostrils in man is especially full of blood vessels, the walls of which are weak and easily ruptured by slight causes.

It is usually very easy to recognize osebleed, but sometimes the blood flows backward into the throat, and then is coughed up, or vemited, and may be thought to come from a hemorrhage of the lungs or stomach, and so cause much needless alarm.

As a rule nosebleed is a thing of slight importance, and stops of itself after a little while, but the blood may escape in such quantity, or the bleeding may continue so long, that the patient is greatly weakened. When occurring in children it has ordinarily no significance-though this is not always to be taken for granted-but in older persons it may be a symptom of some other illness, such as the beginning of typhoid fever, or a trouble of the liver or heart Nosebleed is one of the common manifestations of that curious condition in which there is a tendency to severe hemorrhage after any slight injury or even without any cause that can be discovered. Children with this predisposition-often called "bleeders"-suffer from frequent and uncontrollable attacks of nosebleed, and . sometimes die in one of them in spite of all efforts to control the hemorrhage. Ordinarily there is little to be done. The child should be made to sit quietly in a chair with the head only slightinclined forward, just enough to let the drops fall clear of the lips into a basin. All clothing should be loosened about the neck. Ice may be applied to the back of the neck, or ice water may be dashed into the face or made to trickle down the back. It is useful, also, to insert a little sometimes the effect is better if the ice is put into the other nostril-and retain it there for a moment or two; or a still better plan is to snuff up a mixture of alcohol and water as hot as it can be borne. The introduction of cobwebs into the bleeding nostril often induces congulation, or the same purpose may be served by a little wad of

LEGEND OF THE AU SABLE. Horseman Crossed the Chasm at

To the lover of curious scenery the dirondacks present an infinite variey. The region abounds in lakes, large nd small, surrounded by mountains or embowered in forests; and the rivers which find their way between the mountains seem, in some places, to have cut their way through, leaving the sheer precipices on either hand to mark their pathway. The most famous of these gorges is the Au Sable chasm. which is not far from where the Au Sable river flows into Lake Champlain. The galleries, caves and castellated columns attract thousands of tourists yearly; but 70 years ago it was comparatively unknown. In those early lays the precipitous cliffs were spanned by a wooden bridge, over which the farmers had to pass on their way to Au Sable Forks. The bottom of the special dispatch from Madrid, Senor chasm at this point was a sheer descent approved a contract to lay a cable beof 125 feet. In those early days the pioneers were not skilled in the art of bridge building; and so one night, when a fierce storm thundered through the mountains, the bridge was swept sway, with the exception of the mrun stringer, a beam of about 18 inches square. The bridge was never rebuilt, and another road to the little village of Au Sable Forks was utilized. The old stringer, however, still stretched they would wait until the next morning, when it could easily be settled if there was a bridge or not. He made a wager with the landlord that it was still standing across the chasm. The next morning every man, woman and child in Au Sable Forks was at the chasm. Sure enough, in the soft sand of the road there were footprints of a horse, and the trail led from the stringer across the chasm up to the tavern porch.

When that forenoon the stranger rode down to the Au Sable chasm to settle his wager with the keeper of the tavern and he saw the perilous path over which he had traveled the night before, it is said that he was stricken with a trembling that never left his limbs until death, and that within the space of 60 seconds his
