LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE.

A gold standard paper asks "why it is the silver people will at this time persist in demanding a change in financial systems now, while everybody is prosperous?" This same paper insists that we should be content to let well enough alone, and not attempt to disturb business, by everlastingly clamoring for the free coinage of silver and the adoption of a 50-cent standard dollar.

To this we would say there is another party before the people that is not content to "let well enough alone," but is proposing a more radical and dangerous change in finances than is the silver party, though it is able to publican party and his intimate associmore securely cover up its objects. The party to which we refer is the one masquerading as the currency reformers under the lead of Secretary Gage and Speaker Reed. They are not satisfied to let well enough alone. They are not content with maintaining the present gold standard as it exists, with the credit currency of the country as a co-ordinate money. They propose to destroy some $300,000,000 of paper Hanna. money that is totally inexpensive to maintain, and if it is substituted at all, it shall be at the expense of the issuance of more interest-bearing bonds. and the circulating notes to be doled out at the will of a few national banks.

Are not these, instead of the silverites, the ones who are undertaking to disturb business? They would give to the national banks the right to inflate or contract the currency at will, and since contraction would be to their interest, that would be their method of proceedure. The most radical silver man has no hope of getting free coinage during the administration of President McKinley, but the silver party does hope to prevent the enactment of any such vicious legislation as the Gage bill by electing a majority of the lower house of congress.
