Three momentous events in our earlier history have their dates in the month of April: the first congress met on April 6, 1789, George Washington was inaugurated president on April 30, of the same year and the navy deparment was organized on April 30, 1789. A bunch of luscious scarlet enerries is attached to a gold pin that is to be thrust through the knot at the back of the head, letting the cherries droop slightly just above and behind the car. Fruit in the hair, how ever, under any guise of enamel and netal, is not to be commended. Its incongruity is obvious. We have accepted it on our bonnets, where its use is less distasteful than the plumage of murdered birds, but in the coiffure the association is not acceptable. French women regard their hair ornaments with great attention and take as much care to suitably complete the coiffure toilet as that of the corsage, Steel, jet gilt and silver ornaments are especially suited to dark hair, Fair-haired women could wear amber and clear tortois shell. lustralia ls a Land of Lovelin Through All the Seasons.
"There is nothing," we are told, "that stonishes the stranger visiting Ausstralia for the first time so much as the variety and beauty of its flowers." Austraila is, indeed, a land of floral loveliness, and nowhere has nature been nore lavish in her gifts of bud and clossom than in New South Wales. The andscape is an endless panorama of

There is a plethora of color in the flowers that everywhere meet the gaze they cover mountains and valleys in all cinds of forms and shades of beauty. spersed with every color, are multiplied millions and scattered with a prodiral hand that knows no stint nor bound, ave that of infinitude itself, until every splendor, makes the country gay with The gorgeous coloring of the Austraneight of four or five feet, the slender stem being surmounted by a large dahlia-shaped flower of the deepes erimson. It is sometimes grown as a garden flower, but thrives best in the ush. The native rose, which has no esemblance save in its delicate pin! cint to the favorite garden flower, is exeedingly plentiful. The blossom i small and modest, but wonderfully enduring and forms a charming addition

Silver nail polishers have dainty-colored-fawn, blue, pink, etc.-chamoi

Pique and silk is a rather incongruous-combination, but it is fashionable,
