A GOOD TIME

About 1600 People From Portland Spent Yesterday in the City.

At 11:30 yesterday morning the first section of the excursion from Portland, given by the Minnehaha Association, arrived, and stopped at the Umatilla House to let the guests off.

The second section arrived at noon and went directly to the depot. This was to scatter the people over the town and not have them in one locality. It is estimated that between sixteen and seventeen hundred people were here yesterday. Twenty coaches were filled with the excursionists, and their appearances they surely must have enjoyed themselves.

The Academy park grounds had been prepared for those who wished a cool place where they might eat their lunch.

During the day many walked around and viewed the town, while others were out in carriages, on horseback, on bicycles.

All seemed to be having a good time, in fact, some of the younger generation had most too good a time for their own welfare and peace and harmony. This was the only feature to mar the day, but under existing circumstances could not be avoided.

At 5:30 the first train started homeward bound, and was followed 15 minutes later by the second section.

The excursion was a decided success and all who visited our town left with the best impression.

A HOME INDUSTRY

New Steam Laundry to be started in the Old City Mill.

In a few days a new industry will be started in our city in the way of a first-class steam laundry. The best machinery that could be purchased will be used and first-class work can be guaranteed. This is an enterprise that should be patronized by everyone in the city, as the people employed in this work will be Dalles laborers and the money paid out for it will be kept at home.

Our people are anxious for home industries and if they do not patronize them when they get them, they cannot expect such enterprises to spring up in the city. The payroll for this institution will be increased or diminished according to the patronage secured, and we hope and trust that they will receive a liberal support, as this fact will aid in inducing other enterprises to locate at this point, and thereby furnish employment to our townpeople.

BOYS PERILOUS RIDE

Horse Runs Away—Women and Children

What might have been a very serious accident last evening, resulted only in a severe scare to several of the women folks, and lusty yelling of a small boy for help. It seems Dell Hayward, a youth about 12 years old, got on a pony on Fourth St., near Justice Condon's residence, when some boys began throwing clods at the animal, which he became frightened, started to run. The boy could not hold the horse, so nothing but a rope was around his neck, so the lad led on to the horn of the saddle and utilized his lungs. The horse ran up the Methodist hill and took a short cut past Rev. O. D. Taylor's residence containing his way to the rear of the Calvary Baptist church, where he was stopped. The boy, on alighting, drew a long breath, and stated he was not hurt although he was rather scared. A young man of philanthropic mind, gave the lad a dime and he started down the hill with several boys about his age, each trying to tell his experiences, and urging him to tell the crowd.

A Noble Order

The Pacific Circle, Women of Woodcraft, is forging to the front. Note this: During the time between April and May, 2, the tax was not allowed.

The Pacific Circle now pays the amount of $2000 with one assessment. There will now be several $100 monuments erected at the grave of every deceased benefit lady member. The last fraternal insurance policy of $2000 was paid to the beneficiary within five days after proof of death was rendered. Can any man's benefit order do better than this? There is no sinking fund for the Circle's officers to abscond with; there is no much-noted reserve fund; but there is neighborly love and genuine fraternity enough among the entire membership to insure the success of the present, and the fulfillment of every promise of the future for its neighbors in Woodcraft. A truly good order that goes toward helping us out of the sordid walks of life, daw, those who gather about their

CONSULTING THE CLOCK

Familiar Faces That Are Seldom Overlooked by New Yorkers.

One of the popular habits of the people of this city is to consult the clock almost on every occasion when an opportunity is presented. It matters little whether any special need requires that consultation, but not the clock, thus is consulted. Especially is this the case if a particular clock has the reputation of being a good timekeeper. So well is this known by many stockholders that they will place clocks in their stores so situated as to be easily seen by persons who may be passing along the adjacent sidewalk. If the clock becomes inoperative and the pedestrian is fortunate enough to carry a watch, a comparison is almost sure to be made.

Many times a clock with a good reputation placed in the back part of a store becomes a protection thereof, especially at night, if near it is located a light strong enough to illuminate its face and show the time. A policeman told a Mail and Express reporter the other day that a good clock, thus situated, is better than a private watchman for a jewelry store, as every bellied passer-by is likely to look through the store to see what time it is, and would be almost certain to notice anything unusual in the appearance of the place. It therefore becomes indirectly a silent watchman guarding the premises against the depredations of burglars, and makes the pedestrians, as it were, assistants in the work.

Church clocks have always had a large number of patrons in the work of consultation, and nothing seems to be so annoying as to find such a clock inoperative. When an event of this character occurs, especially if the church is located on or near a busy thoroughfare, the fact of the clock being stopped, or some defect appears to exist, it often made the subject of a notice in the daily papers. Especially was this the case when the steeple of old St. Paul's was recently undergoing renovation and it was a joy to many on noticing that the newly gilded hands of the clock were again traveling along their accustomed circuit, and the deep toned bells were ready to strike the hour once more.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

ADVERTISING IN MEXICO

The Natives of That Country Are Far Behind Us in Their Ideas.

We have been under the impression that the land of dark-eyed hidalgos with their wide sombreros and short jackets and gorgeous silver shackles, the land of beautiful girls in graceful lace mantillas, swarthy skins and midnight eyes, was making rapid progress, but this opinion will have to be rewritten.

It is true that the wealthier class have discarded the bright-hued serape and adopted the unpretentious habits of the better class of gringos. It is also a fact that in the City of Mexico the names of the streets have been changed from the political or intensely religious, to innocuous and the most prosaic. For example: "The Street of the Sacred Indian" and "Crown of Thorns street" are now respectively "Fourth avenue" and "Sixth street."

These and other changes led us to infer that Mexico was rapidly becoming "gringoized," but this delusion is knocked aside by the following items:

A remarkable case is being tried in the courts here. A short time ago a small weekly newspaper by the name of El Periódico in its columns carried an advertisement of a business house. Another firm in the business has sued the paper for damages, alleging that they have suffered loss through the publication of the advertisement of their rival. The case is attracting considerable attention, as it is the first of the kind in Mexico.

In our own country the man who does not advertise is regarded as a fit subject for the undertaker or the lunatic asylum.

It is strange that the Mexicans should be so slow to recognize the advantages of advertising. There is no doubt that the numerous citizens who cannot profit by advertising. For instance, a burglar overlooked eighty dollars in a bureau drawer, and the local papers so announced. He returned the next night and not only secured it, but an almost new suit of clothes besides.
