WILL NOT DOWN.

That the American government will spread out its wings over the isles of the Pacific is beyond question. The idea of expansion has seized upon the people, and they will not be satisfied until our possessions reach the Asiatic shore. Cost of lives and money are not going to be taken into consideration. The people are so thoroughly imbued with the idea of expansion that it will not down. Other people might hesitate to count the cost of so radical a change in the systems of government as will be necessary for us to adopt a colonial policy, but the Americans will not. Why this is so, is explained in the following by the Spokesman-Review:

Timid men are speaking the word "expansion" in tones of alarm, as if it were charged with peril, as if expansion were some untried experiment in our national existence. They forget or ignore the glowing fact that all this nation has of independence and glory and empire it owes to the expansion force of its people. The American is a natural expansionist and a born colonizer. He is at home where you place him. Give him a roll of bedding, a little flour, some bacon and coffee, and a box of matches, and you may drop him in the desort or the wilderness, 100 or 1000 miles from civilization, and he will go and a squad of insurgents amused there is any credit currency or whistling about the work of building a campfire and making himself at home. WHY STAND STILL?

The merchant who says he has all the business he can do and proclaims that he is perfectly satisfied with trade is not progressive-he lacks the pluck and push of a true American. The farmer who declares he is producing every pound of produce his farm is capable of, and will not put forth an effort to make a few more bushels of grain grow on each acre when prices are high, is lacking in enterprise. The mechanic who says he cannot turn out more trade from his shop and does not feel justified in putting forth an effort to do more work is behind the times. Progress and advancement are the watchwords of the times, and the individual who is satisfied with present surroundings and has no incligation to better his condition or business is out of date. This is a moving age, and the person who is not ambitious enough to get on top of the wave is liable to fall under the surf and be drowned.

What is true of the individual is true in connection with communities. The on top and ride is going to fall into disrepute; it is certain to not keep apace with the more progressive and will bring a place that has no natural advantages into prominence, while mossbackism will kill the best place in the world.

The Dalles is one of those places that possesses every natural advantage to make it one of the most prosperous and thrifty business points in the Northwest, but we are standing still and we are seeing first one and then a thing in the past, but we are learning a lesson. We must put forth a little more energy and create inducements that will compell the outside country to come to us. We must have manufacturing industries and better roads leading into the country. If not we had about as well close up shops. We must quit standing still and begin doing something to put the town on in Multnomah county are really so the move.
