During the winter months people se alleys and unused streets for depositories for rubbish and refuse, and are partially excusable, since during cold weather it is not particularly detrimental to health. But such refuse should not be permitted to remain in the town during warm weather, as it breeds disease and endangers the health of the people.

There should be a general cleaning up begun at once, and if people will not do it voluntarily, they should be forced by the authorities to do so. LIFE IN MANILA

Writes an Interes

Letter From the Seat of War. Frank Menefee received a letter a few days ago from George Dufur, who has a position in the office of the provost marshal at Manila. The letter is dated February 17th, and among other things George says.

It is very hot here, but the warr eason is just coming on. The winter or cold season lasts until the middle of this month, when it begins to turn warm. The seasons change here in just about a day. Here we dress in white clothes and I have six suits, one for each day. A suit costs $5.35 Mexican money, or $2.60 American money The Philippine horses are a sight. When I first saw them standing around the river banks I thought they were jack rabbits, they looked so little. The principal beasts of burden are the 'water buffalo," and they are fine work animals, weighing perhaps 1200 pounds each, and are the most trusty easts I ever saw. Only one is used as a team but he will draw a big load. The Manila street car is a curiosity also. They are little affairs and two the wholesale grocery business. There is a rather peculiar custom among the people here of always turnthe Portland National bank, and in ling to the left when they meet a person on the street, and in consequence we Americans collide with them very often, for we always go to the right. I am working in Brigadier-General Hughes' office, and draw $25 American noney a month extra pay, and have to pay $30 Mexican for board as I cannot eat with my company, it being stationed so far away. Five dollars of our money is equal to $10.60 Mexi-Albina was effected in the spring of can, so I can save $10 a month out of my extra pay. My work is not heavy or regular, but I have to be on duty pretty closely. The sidewalks here are built of stone as are most of the buildings, and the walks are just wide enough for one person. The buildings are low and compactly built so as to withstand the earthquakes which are frequent. The churches are very solid structures, and are miniture forts, built so that in case of an attack the iron doors can be closed from within and no one can enter when the doors are shut. Manila has a population of about 400,000, and the people are decidedly mixed, mostly Spaniards, Chinese and native Filipinos There are some 50,000 Chinese here and they are as a rule very different from the Chinese at home, being large, well developed fel-I saw the Spanish gunboats that ou
