Riel then said his mother, who gave him birth forty years ago, had taken care of him and nursed him. He had snother mother, the northwest, whom he loved, and whom he was suce would not kill him more than his early mother did. Me next proceeded to halk about grievences, and showed how he came back to the country for he benefit of the half-breeds alone. He was speaking in English and would try to do his best to be understood. He would yes be justified. He sought to bring about practical results, and when he was dead, which might be soon, he hoped his spirit would yet bring about practical results. He spoke strongly about the papers found at Extouche, which he said, vere his own writings, and which would yet justify him. GEN. GRANT'S REMAINS.

fhey Are Started from the Cottage on the Way to New York for Burial-Sad fcenes on the Mount.

Mt. McGregor dispatch: Last night the family, in groups and alone, had taken a final farewell of the dead General and today gave up his body to the nation. At nine o'clock the members of the family, except Mrs. Grant, repaired to the hotel for breakfast and shortly afterwards entered the cottage and preparations began for the funeral journey. Even this morning when the family were at breakfast it was not known what the widow would determine to do. She had her trunk parked yesterday is the event of her deciding to go with the remaine but her decision had not been shared with the family. At half-past eight the doors of the Grant ottem were thrown open and a stream of entropy ponced in steadily for over an hour. Soon ofterwards the area in vicinity of the cottage was thronged with vectors of every description containing farmer and their families, who had come to attend the funeral.

At 9:30 the train of two cars brought General Hanc ck and a number of distin-guished visitors among whom were Colorel Rowan, General Sherman, ne. Admiral nator Evarts, General Rofus Ingalls, Sen tor Miller, Joseph Drexel and General Hancock's staff.

At 10 o'clock the services were held at the rottage is the presence of over a thousand persons. They opened with the reading of a psalm which was followed by prayer by Rev. Bishop Harris. The hymn, "My Faith Looks up to Thee," joined in by the π hole issemblage followed. Dr. Newman then une forward and delivered his enlogistic ermon on the dead general, the family in meantime sitting about the remains he parlor. Dr. Newman spoke very feel-ngly in an address which consumed one our and a half in its deliver. He took as is text the twenty-first verse of the twen-y-fifth chapter of Matthew, "Well done. iou good and faithful servant, enter thou to the joy of thy Lord.

"Such, my brethren," said the speaker, 'is the eulogy that God shall pronounce apon human goodness and fidelity whereve ound among the sons of men." He said He said ome comrade in arms would speak of the ileador of the martial genius of the dead; atesmen would review the majesty of his il administration; historians would ace him on the pedestal of his renown, "but t me." said the speaker, "as a minister d religion, dwell upon the great character which will ever be his crown of glory, and he imperishable heritage of the countryhe country he loved so well." The minis-er then dwelt upon the honors which had een bestowed upon General Grant and th homage which was done his memory, and declared that the secret of his power on the thought of the world and the fove of man kind was the loftiness of his character grandear of intellect, and the fact that he • as none other than himself. He was one of the few men in history who exceeded spectation, and by doing what all there had failed to do, he had no hatred dhers had talled to do, he had no harved a his heart. His only evangel to the na-ion was, "Let us have peace." In his dy-ag chamber he grasped the hand of him chose sword he had first won, and as an instruction of his broad spirit, sorrow was ational to-day in its broadest sense. Duty to his conscience, his country and his fod was his condard of successful manood. He was the humblest of men and a lover of the most lowly. His love of wife, hildren and home was supreme,

Speaking of the deep and tender affection he bore his wife, the speaker said: "And such was the tenderness of his love and solicitude for her and hers he surprised them by a jetter found after his death. He had written it secretly and carried the sacred missive day after day during the required two strokes by the executioner to cut them down. The necks of Davis and Wilson were broken; the woman died from strangulation. Fully five thousand per-sons were gathered about the court-house and grounds. Davis was a little nervouse but Wilson seemed to take it cool. When the woman fainted she fell against Davis and then off the gallows. Davis lost his balance and caught hold of the ropes to the right, which fold the trap and was in that position when the trap fell at 12:45, Wilson standing coolly all the time. After the trap fell the ropes of the woman and Davis twisted together. The woman got her hands loose in her struggling and grasped at everything within reach. She was known as the wife of Davis. They both said they were innocent of the crime Life was declared extinct fourteen mintten after the drop fell.

At the fourth onnual meeting of the up tional league civil service association, bold in New York, on the 6th, the following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That under a popular republican government like out its employeess in those positions in the civil service, the duties of which are administrative and pot olitical ought to be open on equal torms to every citizen whow fitness shall have been ascertained by appropriate caseina-tion and practical tests, and that the chief executive anthority over the civil service like that over the military and nevel pervice is an official trust to be erecised not for advantage of party, but for the ommon welfare. Resolved, That by the ceneral course of his executive action in regard to appointments and removals, and notwithstanding certain actions of the administration which, measured by the principles of reform, we disprove, President Cleveland has lisplayed, amid immense perplexities and difficulties, his fidelity to the patriotic principles assorted in his latter of December 25, 1884, to the executive committee of this league, and his firmness and courage in nforeing his convictions.

Resolved, That every American citizen is nterested in securing for himself and his fellow citizens the extention of the truly American principle of the equal rights of every citizen to apply for and compete on equal terms for appointment to office with-out the necessity of obtaining aid from per-sonal friends or political leaders, and every local association is urged to bring this sub-ject to the attention of all the voters in its leighborhood by every means in its power. Resolved, That the National Civil Service Reform League offers its resolution in regard to the repeal of the laws known as "the four years laws," and urges every local association and pledges itself to unremitting efforts to secure a result so essential for a complete reform of the abuses of executive patronage. Resolved, That the reformed system of appointments in the civil service, estab-lished by the act of January 16, 1883, should be extended to all the offices and imployments under the government to which it is applicable as fast and as far as is practicable, with due regard to the conition of an efficient administration, and the national league urges upon every local association the necessity of promoting this extension of reformed system by every fair and legal means to the end of complete removal of that lingering relic of the monarchial and aristocratic abuse known as the "spoils system" which obstructs the daily discharge of duty in every department of the government, degrades American politics and disgraces the American name. Resolved. That the friends of civil servic reform have the utmost reason to congratulate themselves and the country upon the striking progress of the cause as shown in the universal public attention which is now lirected to the action of the administra-

Washington special: Judge H. D. Denman, J. H. Thompson, Edgar C. Marston, Colonel R. D. Hunter, C. C. Brainwater and H. M. Pollard, of St. Louis; Colonel Seth-Mabrey and C. W. Ward, of Kansas City, and A. T. Babbitt, of Cheyenne, all extensive cattle men, have arrived at the capital and another delegation will come later. They are a committee to represent the interests of cattle men who hold leases of Indian lands in the Indian territory. They feel despondent and have come to the conclusion to obey the president's proclamation to the letter, and are the quietest bunch of cow-boys who ever struck Washington.

A prominet state department official says the reorganization of the consular service will be completed about January next. There is said to be an increased inclination among business men to enter the South American markets. Consuls, upon entering new territory, will be expected to make such reports of resources of the country as will be valuable to business men in deciding upon trading with those states. Severe comments are being made upon consuls in South and Central America. About 200 consular posts yet remain to be filled. The majority will be small agencies, paying salaries or fees amounting to about $1,000.

The final group intended for the national Lincoln monument at Oak Ridge cemetery in Springfield, Ill., is nearly finished at the Ames company's statuary department, and will be ready for shipment about August 1. The fig-ures comprising the group are herole in size, and are oute imposing in appearance. The scene represented is supposed in have occurred on one of the battle fields of the late war. A shell has exploded in front of a cavalryman's horse, and the wounded rider has fallen to the ground in a dying condition; one arm is raised above his head and he still grasps the bridle rein of his plunging steed, while his head is supported by a congrade, the orderly sergeant of the company. The latter stands in front of the fallen man with drawn sword, determined to defend him agaoust the advancing foe. The horse, thoroughly frightened as reared on his hind less, and with distended nostros and flowing mane is about to gallop off. The position of the figures, the expression of agony, determination and terror depicted on the faces, are all true to life. On the ground, scattered about, are the bugle, hat and carbine of the dying soldier. This group is about ten and one-half feet high and weighs 5,500 pounds. It has required about one year to do the work. The monument occupies a commanding position in the cometery, standing ninety-eight feet in height from the base. It costs $136,550, and each group $15,700,9naking the entire cost of the work $206,550. Larkin G. Mend was the designer, and the statuary work has been done under the supervision of Melzar H. Important Circular from the Land Of See on Indentity Gentis.

Arting Commissioner Walker, of the general land office, has prepared a circular to all registers and receivers which has received the approval of the secretary of the interior, restricting the power of the land grant railroads in making selections of indemnity lands. Heretofore the roads have been permitted to go into their indemnity limits and practically select such lands and in such quantities as they pleased without being required to show the amount of lands they had lost through the operations of the general hand laws from their original grants. The lambs so selected were always the choicest portions of the indemnity hands, and these were withheld from settlement for years, and in some instances although the roads could not sel give titles, they are reported and . to have sold to ignorant purchasers such rights as the selection gave them. The circular requires the roads to file of the lands they claim to have lost, making oath to their correctness before being permitted to make any selections for in nity, and the land officers are instructed to carefully compare the lists with their records in every case. Where indemnity soections have heretofore been made without specification of losses, the local officers are instructed to require the companies to designate the deficiencies for which such indemnity is to be applied before further in demnity selections are allowed. Where deficie vies except for which indemnity is allowed by law, the indemnity selections are required to be made hereafter from vacant unappropriated lands nearest to the granted sections in which the loss occurred Land officers are required to reject all selections not made in conformity with these instructions.
