We have a right-handed writing to be written with a centrifugal motion, in one direction, across the page from left to right, a writing which taxes the weak muscles of the hands, and which takes four or five times as long as is necessary for the representation of a word, as is shown by stenographers, who write as fast as a person can speak. In view of the increase of writer's rains hardly suffice to wet the gauges, cramp due to the extraordinary amount of writing to be done by bookkeepers, bookwriters, teachers and savants, it was suggested that a new method of writing should be intelligently discussed and one inaugurated that should be less elaborate, less ters can be formed as in phonography, disconnected, not requiring such precise and complicated notions to make them legible, and which can be written from above downward, from right to left or left to right, as one may choose.

Remedy for Hydrophobia.

People of Ufa, Russia, have a cure for hydrophobia of their own. They give to bitten men and beasts a powder made from a field plant known on the Volga as drok, of which Gemata Tinctoria is the scientific name. This powder is taken on an empty stomach for three days, and one dose on the ninth day. Salt and salty food spoil the effect of the drug. A well-known family of land owners used the medicine for over forty years, and saved over four hundred men, women and children affected with hydrophobia.

Gen. Sheridan was once halted by G. M. Woodward, of Wisconsin, when the latter Potomac and on picket duty. A man on horseback came along and he greeted him with the proper salutation: "Who goes there?" "A triend," was the reply. "Advance, friend, and give the countersign!" said the young private. "I am Gen. Sheridan," said the horseman. Woodward gave him to understand that he didn't care if he was Gen. Sheridan; that he wanted the countersign, and he brought his bayonet into close proximity to the General's person and demanded the proper answer, Sheridan smiled, gave it to him and, as he rode away, turned to remark: "Young man, there's a regiment of infantry coming just behind me. Don't molest 'em."

The Anomaious Summer.

Though the "harvest moon" has begun to wane, the summer of 1881 has up to yesterday tenaciously held sway over almost every section of the country. It has from the beginning been a season marked by anomalies. On the Pacific coast, where usually the summer the rainfall for last June was at some points greater than ever known. At one period it was relatively cold in the torrid reigon of the Gulf of Mexico and most unduly warm in the frigid Northtaxing upon the small and weak muscles of west. Comparatively unfruitful in the the hand; a handwriting in which the let- grand tornadoes, it was rich in local rainstorms, though in the Southwest it was a droughty season. In the allimportant element of temperature its development was equally eccentric, the midsummer being characterized by "cool waves" surging down from the eastern Rocky Mountain slopes; and when the season, astronomically speaking, had closed, its powerful reserve force was displayed in the recent glowing "warm waves" extending from the

The meteorological reports for this portion of the middle Atlantic scaboard show that until the second week of August the summer of 1884 was remarkably cool. The average heat of June was slightly below the usual figures for the Middle States, and three degrees below for all the Southern States and Tennessee. The mean temperature at New York for July was 71 deg .-- the lowest mean recorded here in thirteen years. In Philidelphia the mean temperature of July, as given by the public ledger, is 71.5, which is also the lowest recorded there for July within the last thirteen years. The August returns show that the thermal mean in Philadelphia and New York was also a litile below the average for that month.

On June 15 the Herald prognostications for the summer stated that from all meteorological data now within reach the probabilities are that the coming summer will not be marked by excessively high mean temperature "in the lake districts, nor generally on the eastern side of the country north of the Carolinas and Tennessee." The observations already published prove that the latter part of this forecast has been fulfilled. The premonitions which we gave the public in June-that the "cool waves" might be expected to occur till July 15, and there was no need to rush to the seaside and mountain resorts-were also justified by the very conspicuous midsummer coolness. August rains were by no means as copious and diffused as those which fell in July in many portions of the country. Over a large area of the Northwest, in the Southwest and in part of the Onio Valley the August drought was serious, though the farmers in some sections may find the old

Dry August and warm

Doth harvest no harm. Within the arctic circle "the midnight sun" has now lost his power, and the forces of congelation are getting into play. But the first effect of this was a 'high private" in the army of the change is small in our latitudes. The probabilities now are that, with two or three "cool waves" intervening, which will cause frosts in the Northwest and northern New England (but not so heavy as those of last September), the average temperature of the present month will be higher than it usually is in the sections east of the Mississippi river. It is also probable that during the next two or three weeks exceptionally heavy rainfalls will occur in the Northwest and the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys, and rather deficient precepitation on the Atlantic seaboard, except in the event of the passage of more than one hurricane emerging from the tropics. In the absence of distinct indications of these much-dreaded ocean disturbances, it seems premature to say anything definite as to when one of them may be heard from. But, looking at the recent exceptional meteorological changes on the continent and the period of the year, it is highly probable that a West Indian cyclone will be reported by or before the 10th inst.—New York Herald.

The Diet of a Monkey.

Herald of Health.

Dr. Allison, a London physician, has been making experiments on a monkey. He says: "Soms time ago I hit, and it is hard to find any pain or ache | bought a rhesis monkey, intending to study his habits. He is about eighteen inches high, and tame. I feed him with the same food I take wyself. He likes fruits best of all; raw grains and cooked vegetrbles and potatoes next. He prefers his potatoes without salt and his rice without sugar. Peas and beans he will not eat unless very hungry. He always eats with his hands, the same as the Turks, and as he does not wash them beforehand, he swallaws much dirt. When I give him hot food he has to wait until it cools before he can eat it, or before he dare thrust his hands into it. I tried this plan a few times with my porridge and stews, and had to wait before I dare finger them. I thought that if mankind were forced, like my monkey, to eat with their fingers, that we should not damage our teeth and stomachs with hot foods, nor should we indulge in soups. Soups are very good for exhausted people, out not good for persons in health, as they are not so easily digested as more solid articles; in fact, the superfluous fluid they contain must be absorbed before digestion goes on. Every food I offered him was first of all smelt of, and then if the smell was agreeable, he ate it; if otherwise, he threw it down. If mankind would always be guided by the sense of smell we should eat less rotton cheese, high game, etc., than we do, and consume more delicious fruits, whose aroma naturally attract us. He is also a nose breather, and I never saw him breathe once through his mouthanother good example which mankind might follow with benefit, as we naturally are nose breathers.

Nebraska's Rapid Growth.

Nebraska happily escaped those civil and anti-bellum strifes that stained the soil of 'bleeding Kansas" so red with blood that, like the hand of Macbeth, it might "the multitudinous seas incarnadine, making the green one red." The history of the sister state has been one of peace and prosperity, and her annals contain no such records of violence and crime as in earlier days cave an unenviable notoriety to the land for which pro-slavery and anti-slavery men contended. Though next to the baby state, Colorado, in point of age, having only been admitted to the Union in 1867, Nebraska has already out-stripped in population many of the older states, and if the next census returns don't require seven figures to show the number of her inhabitants she will be as disappointed as was St. Louis when Chicago took a big jump ahead of her and crossed the half million

After all, however, the greatness of a state or city does not consist in the number of her residents but in her enterprise and intelligence, and Nebraska stands this test also. She claims as thrifty and brainy a population as any state possesses, and some recent evidences of popular feeling upon certain important issues of the day tend to support this view. New ideas have been heartily welcomed and merit has received its due. This will help to explain why Athlophoros, which has been so successful as a cure for rheumatism and neuralgia in more Eastern States, is now meeting with such favor as it makes its way Westward over the prairies.

Miles Finlan, of Tuckersville, Neb., says: "After using two bottles of Athlophoros I was enabled to rise from my bed, to which I had been confined for four months. I have not had an attack since, and it is the longest relief I have found from that droad disease, theumatism, for nineteen years. I still have two bottles left that I keep in case I should be again attacked."

From Long Pine, Brown county, Neb., came good news in a letter from Mrs. M. A. Morford, who says:

"Two bottles of Athlophores have almost cured a lady here who was a great sufferer from rheumatism. She has been using the medicine for about two weeks and finds great improvement. She thinks it a most valuable remedy and is so pleased with it that she doesn't know how to express herself, but says that those who make it are angels for helping her so much. I have also recommended it to several other persons.'

"Some lourteen months ago," says A. Hayward, of Burlington, Ia., "I was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism. I tried a dozen different kinds of medicine said to cure rheumatism, but to no pur pose. Finally, I procured a bottle of lophoros. After using the bottle it did me so much good that I bought another, but did not have to use more than a third of the second bottle before I was entirely cured. From that time up to the present I have never had anything like rheumatic pains, and I thank Athlophoros for the

A Shoemaker Wins $15,000.

New York Tribune, Feb. 16th. Frederick Scharf, a shoemaker of No. 704 DeKalb avenue, Brooklyn, has suddenly found himself possessed of troops of friends. Men who formerly paid no attention to him, have been exceedingly affable and anxious about his welfare. This change has been brought about by what he regards as a piece of exceptional good luck. A few days ago be received notice that a lottery ticket, of which he owned one-lifth part. had drawn the capital prize of $75,000, en-titling him to $15,000. He expects to receive the money this week. Scharf is a poor, hardworking man with no family, who barely earned his own support by his trade, and who found his only luxury in drinking a social glass of beer with some One of these, named Meyers, one day bantered him to buy a lottery ticket. Scharf at first refused, but Meyers told him that he had bought one-fifth of a ticket for $1, and urged Scharf to do the same. After some delay the shoemaker did so. One day last week the two men got a list of the lucky numbers, and Scharf's was among them. He proposes to give Meyers $1,000 and give a support o his friends. What to do with the rest of the money he has not decided, although a multitude of advisers are seeking to give him wisdom.
