A QUESTION ABOUT

Brown's Iron Bitters

ANSWERED.

The question has probably been asked thousands of times, "How can Brown's Iron Bitters cure everything?" Well, it doesn't. But it does cure any disease for which a reputable physician would prescribe IRON. Physicians recognize Iron as the best restorative agent known to the profession, and inquiry of any leading chemical firm will substantiate the assertion that there are more preparations of iron than of any other substance used in medicine. This shows conclusively that iron is acknowledged to be the most important factor in successful medical practice. It is, however, a remarkable fact, that prior to the discovery of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS no perfectly satisfactory iron combination had ever been found.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS does not injure the teeth, cause headache, or produce constipation—all other iron medicines do. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS cures Indigestion, Biliousness, Weakness, Dyspepsia, Malaria, Chills and Fevers, Tired Feeling, General Debility, Pain in the Side, Back or Limbs, Headache and Neuralgia—for all these ailments Iron is prescribed daily.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, however, does not cure in a minute. Like all other thorough medicines, it acts slowly. When taken by men the first symptom of benefit is renewed energy. The muscles then become firmer, the digestion improves, the bowels are active. In women the effect is usually more rapid and marked. The eyes begin at once to brighten; the skin clears up; healthy color comes to the cheeks; nervousness disappears; functional derangements become regular, and if a nursing mother, abundant sustenance is supplied for the child. Remember Brown's Iron Bitters is the ONLY iron medicine that is not injurious. Physicians and Druggists recommend it.

SECRET SOCIETY EMBLEMS.

Their Use by Masons and Odd Fellows Not Much in Vogue To-day—The Reason Why.

From New York Mail.

"Secret society emblems are about played out," remarked a communicative Maiden lane jeweller to an inquisitive customer one day recently. "That is, in the East. Out West and in the South they are as popular as ever. I don't know how to account for it, excepting that the class of men who are being initiated into secret orders nowadays are higher-toned than they used to be, and consequently less given to display. Then, besides, any one can become a Mason, Odd Fellow, or Knight of Pathias, provided he is any sort of a man at all, and this has cheapened the value of such insignia. There was a time when no Mason could be found without his gold square and compass, and you could tell an Odd Fellow as far off as you could see him by his three joined links. If you want any proof of the decrease in this custom just look into the windows of the Bowery pawnshops and notice the large number of these emblems which are offered for sale. I find the falling off in sales a serious one in my business. The style of emblems, too, has changed within the past few years. Formerly nothing were wore but vest pins, watch-chain pendants and large seal rings. Now we sell more small rings with onyx stones set in them in which the token of the order is neatly engraved. The upper degrees of Masonry are generally denoted by a small band ring of gold with a plain diamond setting and the figure of the degree engraved on the reverse side of the ring. For many years the Maltese cross of the Knight Templar, with its helmeted head and a keystone on the back was the most stylish emblem we sold, but now the demand for them comes almost entirely from the West and South, and the small towns in the East. The large cities use very few of them comparatively.

"There is another reason for this decline," the jeweller observed. "It is by no means conclusive evidence, because a man wears a Masonic emblem, that he is a bona-fide member of that order. It is a comparatively easy matter for him to wear a Maltese cross, for instance, and pass readily for a Knight Templar for years, perhaps, without being detected. I don't know that such a trick would benefit a man at all, but men often do things which please their vanity, even if they do not line their pockets. Several years ago I was traveling in Minnesota selling Masonic and other secret society emblems to country jewellers. I stopped in the little town of Wabasha and sold quite a bill of goods. While I was in the store I placed a handsome thirty-second degree Masonic eagle on my watchguard to better show off its beauty. Now I am not a member of any secret society and never intend to be. When I left the shop I forgot to take this off and so I wore it down to the train. Before we had come to the first station, Lake City, I discovered that I had left my pocket-book with some of my samples in a small bag in the store and was absolutely penniless. I didn't know a soul on the train and wanted to reach St. Paul that night, where I could telegraph back to Wabasha and have my bag sent to me. It was a very long train—fourteen coaches, I think, and I was in the parlor coach at the rear end of it. I knew the conductor would be along in a few minutes, and hated mightily to be put off the train at Lake City and miss a whole day, which I knew would surely happen unless I managed to borrow the money somewhere. I then looked about me. A few seats in front of me there sat a young man whose clothes denoted that he had come from the East. With serious misgivings I took my place beside him, and after introducing myself gave him my business card. He also gave me his. He represented a West Broadway grocery. As we were exchangeing cards, I noticed that he wore a handsome Masonic charm on his watch chain. I then told him my dilemma.

"'I am in great trouble,' I said,' and I want to ask you to pay my fare to St. Paul, and I will return it when we get to that city. I see you are a Mason—'

"Yes, he interrupted hastily, as he glanced down at the emblem I wore. 'I shall be glad to accommodate you.'

"By the time the conductor arrived the matter was satisfactorily arranged, and I was safe to pursue my journey. Although I felt very friendly toward my benefactor, I found him singularly ill at ease in my presence, and as soon as he could excuse himself he left me in the front car. I didn't see him again until we reached our journey's end. The next day I called upon him at his hotel and repaid the loan. About three months later I was pleased to see this same man stand in front of my store looking into the window. I went to the door and asked him to step in, which he very unwillingly did. Of course, I alluded to the scrape he had helped me out of, and again expressed my gratitude to him for his generosity.

"'It would have been all right,' I said, 'if I had known any one to have called upon to assist me. But I was absolutely friendless. I am not a member of any secret order.'

"'You ain't,' he exclaimed, as he gave a great sigh of relief. 'I'm glad to hear that. Neither am I.'"

The late Isaac D. Farnsworth, of Boston, beside giving in his will $100,000 to Wellesley College to establish a school of art, also gave $30,000 to other institutions as follows: New England Hospital for Women and Children, $1,000; Young Women's Christain Union, $5,000; Home for Aged Men, $5,000; Home for Destitute Children, $5,000; Dr. Cullis' Consumptive Home, $5,000.

In No Hurry for Conversion.

A well known family up-town has an eight-year-old urchin upon whom a revival at one of the churches has made a deep impression. He astounded his good mother the other night by saying:

"Mamma, I am going to church to-night to be converted."

"Converted, Jimmie? Why, you do not understand what it means."

"Yes, I do, and I am going to join the church and be a christian hereafter."

"If you do that you must give up dancing and going to the museum."

"What is that? Must I quit going to the museum?"

"Oh, yes."

"Then," after a minute or two of earnest reflection, "I guess I'll go down and see the four-legged woman just once more before I am converted."

A Trip to Colfax Springs.

Colfax Springs, on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad, is a popular health resort to which many western people go to try the waters, which are noted for their healing properties. They are claimed to be beneficial for rheumatism and kindred troubles. Mr. Charles P. Griffin, a butcher of StuArt, Ia., recently made a trial of them and, while they appear to have done him some good, he afterwards discovered a cure which proved infinitely more efficacious. He gives this account:

"My attack was a very severe one, and for three months I was compelled to close my store, as I was not able to attend to business at all. My joints were swollen and there did not seem to be any part of my body that did not ache. After suffering in this way until the pain was almost beyond endurance I went to Colfax Springs to try the effects of the waters. The day I left home I had to be carried down stairs. After remaining at the Springs a month I came home feeling somewhat better. A few weeks later, however, I had a relapse which prostrated me the same as before. It was at that time that I learned of Athlophoros. I sent for a bottle of it, and in fifteen minutes after I had taken the first dose I felt the effects of it, and when I had finished my third bottle I was well. I have not had any rheumatism since and have attended to my business every day, which is a thorough test, as I am obliged to be out all kinds of weather and at all seasons of the year. If I had known of Athlophoros in the first place it would have saved me hundreds of dollars and the detriment to my business in closing my store. I take great pleasure in recommending it to others."

Dr. L. D. Rounds, a dentist, for sixteen years a resident of Oskaloosa, but for the past three years of Albia, Ia., relates an equally pleasant experience with Athlophoros:

"Rheumatism," he says, "has been my most serious trouble until about a year ago, when I used a bottle of Athlophoros. Since that time I have not had a twinge of it. Previously I had been subjected to sciatic rheumatism for several years, many times so badly that I could scarcely drag myself around. When I commenced with Athlophoros my legs were so stiff that I could scarcely get up the steps to my office. But I am not troubled that way now, and the joint of my legs are as free as they ever were. I had tried so many remedies before that I had no faith in Athlophoros when I began with it, but I changed my mind after I had taken a few doses and found relief. All I used was one bottle. It is the grandest medicine ever heard of for rheumatism. My wife has also used Athlophoros with success equal to mine."

"During the years I have been in business," says O. E. Givins, a druggist at Stuart, Mr. Griffin's home, "I have sold many different kinds of proprietary medicines but none that has given such universal satisfaction as Athlophoros has for rheumatism. I always feel when I hand out a bottle of that medicine to a customer that I am giving him the full value of his money. Since I have seen its wonderful effects among my customers I gladly recommend it in every instance for rheumatism."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLOPHOROS Co., 112 Wall Street, New York.
